WILMINGTON, DEL., Feb. 2.—Burlington Industries, Inc., major textile producer, expects its 1967 capital expenditure program to be at least one-third below its record outlay of $159 million last year for plant and equipment.

Charles F. Myers, Jr., president, told the annual meeting of shareholders here today that capital investment this year will be directed toward modernization projects to increase production efficiency, rather than expansion.

The Company completed six new plants last year. A seventh is now beginning operations, and a new research center will be opened shortly near Greensboro, N. C.

A decline in sales and earnings which began in Burlington's fourth quarter last year continued through the first quarter of fiscal 1967, Mr. Myers noted.

"The short-term business outlook is extremely difficult to forecast," he said. "Most economists expect consumer spending for non-durables, including apparel, to increase in 1967, but the rate of increase is expected to be more moderate than in 1966."

Textile business in the home furnishings area has been affected by the decline in new housing starts, Mr. Myers added, but recent improvement as a result of mortgage money becoming more available should bring additional demand for home furnishings.

The Burlington chief executive said maintenance of a "healthy balance between sales and inventories is especially important in the current period of adjustment, and we consider it not only realistic but helpful long range to keep production closely in line with demand. The fact that the industry generally is following this policy should help moderate the effect of the present slowdown in textile markets."

Government sales in the Company's first fiscal quarter were slightly over 5% of total sales for the period, and are expected to remain at approximately the same level for the immediate future.

New products, including a soil-release process for polyester/cotton durable press fabrics announced as a significant development by Burlington last week, were cited as an area receiving increased attention.

"Burlington has experienced rapid growth in the past ten years," Mr. Myers stated in his comments to shareholders. "Sales have doubled since 1957, and net earnings last year were nearly five times greater than in 1957. This span of time included dips but the trend has been steadily upward. We are confident that the outlook for longer-range growth of the textile industry is quite good, as it is for the American economy overall, and that Burlington will be in excellent position to capitalize on its investment in modern productive facilities."

John Daniel Hodge

MOCKSVILLE — John Daniel Hodge, 24, of Mocksville, Route 4, was killed about 10 P.M. Sunday when the car he was driving collided with a truck on U. S. Highway 601 about five miles north of Salisbury.

Craft and a passenger in the truck, George R. Lively, received minor injuries. Doster said the Hodge car was damaged about $4,000 and the truck about $1,000.
