Burlington Industries' New Research Center To Be Dedicated Fri., May 19

GREENSBORO, N. C. -- Burlington Industries' large new research center on Interstate 40 near Greensboro will be dedicated May 19th with Governor Moore as principal speaker.

State and local government and civic leaders have been invited to attend the ceremonies which will include a guided tour of the facility. Other program participants include Burlington President Charles F. Myers, Jr., and George E. Norman, Jr., vice president for research and development.

Located on a 42-acre site in area near the Greensboro Airport, the research center houses the textile company's expanded corporate research and development facilities formerly located on Elm Street in Greensboro. Equipped, the center represents an investment of $3.5 million.

In addition to Burlington's central research activity, many of the company's 32 operating divisions maintain their own research effort within specialized areas.

Actually three buildings in one, the Research Center includes an administration wing, a laboratory wing and a pilot weaving plant.

The building provides facilities for Burlington chemists, physicists and technicians to conduct exploration of new finishing chemicals, sizing and yarn treatments, dyeing techniques, polymers and elastomers, electronic testing and control devices, and physical evaluation of fibers, yarns, fabrics and finished garments.

Contemporary in design, the research center is constructed primarily of precast concrete and glass. It was designed by A. G. Odell Associates of Charlotte and constructed by H. L. Coble Co. of Greensboro.

Extensive landscaping of the planting of more than 25,000 flowering shrubs such as azaleas and chrysanthemums, and some 400 oak and crepe myrtle trees.

This note of natural beauty is accented by two large pools and fountains, complete with colored lights, set into the building's entrance as a dramatic centerpiece.

Lions To Present Distinguished Citizens Award

The Cooleemee Lions Club will present a Distinguished Citizen Award to some outstanding person in the Cooleemee community for the first time this year.

By taking this action, the club hopes to encourage continued effort toward betterment of the community as a wholesome, enjoyable place to live, and to recognize publicly some person who has made significant or outstanding contributions already.

Hopefully, the award will be presented annually. Due, however, to the high standards which must be met in order for the award to be presented, there may be years during which no award will be made. In such a case the club will announce that no selection has been made.

Any person in the community may make nominations for this award. Standard forms for nomination may be obtained from any member of the Lion's Club, or from several places at the Shopping Center. The completed forms may be given to any club member. All nominations must be handed in by May 27.

Once the nominations are closed, they will be submitted to an impartial committee from outside the community who will make the final selection solely on the basis of significance or outstanding contributions.

BANK OFFICE RECEIVES AWARD FOR EXCELLENCE

Awards to individuals for achievement are made every week, and announcements of these awards are far from unusual. This week, an entire bank office made news by receiving an award for achievement.

The Cooleemee Office of Central Carolina Bank was declared the 1966 winner of the CCB President's Cup for general excellence. Charles F. Bahnson, the bank's manager at Cooleemee, received the award from CCB President Paul Wright, Jr. in ceremonies at Durham. The silver cup, surmounted by a business-suited figure carrying a briefcase, is to be presented annually, and will become the permanent property of the office which first wins it three times.

Criteria considered by the management committee in selecting the winner of the cup included: Community service by the staff, efficient operation, growth, earnings, new business effort, esprit de corps, and general excellence.

In addition to Bahnson, the staff of CCB's Cooleemee Office includes: Mrs. Robert N. Walker, Assistant Manager; Richard A. Beck, Installment Loan Manager; Mrs. Hubert Reavis, Mrs. Arthur Atwell, and Mrs. Allen V. Snipes, tellers; Miss Betty Sue Wofford, Mrs. Hubert Reavis, and Mrs. James R. Jordan, bookkeepers; Frank Neely, custodian; and Elizabeth Neely, maid.

Central Carolina Bank opened an office in Cooleemee in May, 1935, under the supervision of George R. Dupuy. Bahnson has been manager since March 1, 1938.

Bahnson said in regard to the award: "Naturally, we are pleased that our office was selected as winner of the President's Cup for 1966. As with most other successful enterprises, ours is not a one-man show. Our achievement came as a result of continuous, energetic effort on the part of every member of our staff. We are delighted to win, and we are already working to earn the cup for 1967."

While They Are With Us

We may sometimes wonder why it is that so many nice things are said, or written, about people after they are dead. Why, People ask, do we not say them while they are living? The answer to that question lies in the fact that no person is seen in the totality of his character until he has passed on. Death itself is a revealer of what people are. Their absence makes us realize more fully their fine character.

However, it is a sort of policy of ours to write good things about people while they are alive, that they may know that they are loved and appreciated. We prefer to give our roses to the living.

The approach to Mother's Day reminds us that we know a mother in our community who deserves all of the tributes which may be paid to mothers everywhere. The person to whom we refer is Mrs. Maude Nichols, the mother of eight children. She lost her husband when her children were small, but her love for them made her determined to keep the family together. With fine faith and courage she secured employment, and managed to keep the family together. It is that sort of sacrificial devotion which has crowned motherhood with honor and glory. In our time there is a tendency for mothers among the younger generation to find expression of themselves in careers of one sort or another, and giving second place to children. It is, therefore, all the more reason for our interest and appreciation of a mother such as Mrs. Nichols, whose children have indeed risen up to call her blessed. No greater reward can come to anyone greater than that of the love of her children for her.

Mrs. Nichols lost a daughter, and a daughter-in-law and two grandchildren in a car accident, a son died some years later. But with the same faith and courage manifested in the rearing of her children, she accepted the sorrows of bereavement, and continued to give her best to the living.

And on this year's Mother's day, we would salute this mother who exemplifies the best in motherhood, and wish for her many more years in which to rest in well-earned joy and happiness.
