Dr. Hugh T. Lefler, who was born on a farm between Cooleemee and Greasy Corner in 1901, was honored this past week for his contributions to the history of the State of North Carolina.

the Eastern part of the U.S. to Charleston. It also includes his impressions of New York in 1700.

Dr. Lefler has made many contributions to a better knowledge of state history. He edited "North Carolina History" about 30 years ago and is a recognized expert on the subject.

A review of his new book appeared last Sunday in the Salisbury Post under James S. Brawley's Column, Footnotes to History, on the editorial page.

Clay Trexler's Trip...

The biggest news in The Journal last week was Clay Trexler's visit with his brother A. T. Trexler Jr. out on Route 4. Since it's all of about two miles, several people wondered why that was news. It provoked an argument between Bud Sell and Hayden Stiller. Bud swears that Clay went out there by jet airplane.

Hayden says, no, that Clay's afraid of jets and in fact he saw him hop on Bill Webb's train headed for Charlotte. Hayden figures that Clay took the train to Charlotte, caught the Seaboard to Eastern N. C. and returned on that Norwood-Salisbury train and arriving on Route 4 either on foot or possibly by hitch-hiking.

Neither Hayden nor Budd know what they're talking about. When I wrote my first article for the Journal, I told you that we were going to try to report everyone and everything that moved in the Cooleemee area.

If Clay Trexler's moving out to Route 4 to plant a few turnips over the weekend isn't news, then my name isn't !+5%2*/@e*9%11

Bank's New Building

Open House At Central Carolina

The Central Carolina Bank will feature a "Pot of Gold" at the open house for its new and handsome Colonial office building at South Main and Water streets in Mocksville Friday and Saturday.

The new building will be shown from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. both days. Anyone who opens an account of $100 or more will get a choice of one of five gifts valued at about $5 retail.

Also, the cards sent out by the bank or available at the open house are to be inserted into a "Pot of Gold" machine. If your card is a winner, the machine will light up and blare forth with all kinds of excitement. Winners then receive a gift.
