

Letter To The Editor

Dear Miss Benson:

I feel impelled to offer a comment upon the pictures appearing in the Cooleemee Journal, and one picture in particular. You must have some expert photographers within your staff, who know how, not only how to take pictures, but have some deep understandings of their spiritual significance.

The one in particular to which I refer, is the little boy fishing in a placid stream, sitting in the cool of overhanging branches, flanked by wild flowers. Here, in the boy and his surroundings is the America of which our forefathers dreamed and laid the foundations for political, social, economic, and spiritual development: America as a land where freedom rightly used, expands into greatness. The little boy can dream because those who have gone before have made it possible for him to develop his latent possibilities, and act upon the countless opportunities which are open to him.

It is not difficult for grown-ups to share his feelings of happiness in eager anticipation of a great catch the next moment. We elders have been there — and we love the boy for refreshing our memories.

And, as we share his feelings, let us devote ourselves to make America the kind of place in which little boys may fish and dream of the greater America which their generation will make.

William Johnson Receives Scholarship

William G. Johnson Jr. of Mocksville, sophomore at UNC-Chapel Hill has been named to receive a $750 education scholarship from N.C. Association of Insurance Agents.

Johnson was one of five college students and 10 high school graduates to be selected for this award.

The manta ray, or devilfish, can crush man or boat with powerful pectoral fins. But its major prey is tiny shrimp.

Church Of God News

The annual Church of God state-wide camp meeting convened Monday and will continue through July 6 at the campground in Charlotte.

Services begin at 9 a.m. each morning and run throughout the day and evening. Attendance will be over 70,000 for the entire meeting. The public is invited.

Rev. J. E. Rogers will attend the meeting and the Cooleemee Church of God will hold their regular Sunday morning services with the Rev. Dorothy Everhart of Lexington as guest speaker.

During the past two weeks the men of the church have given the church and parsonage a face lifting. They have cut trees and hauled logs for the new youth center and painted the buildings.

Rev. and Mrs. Robert Sprinkle of the Cooleemee church organized a new church in Hamlet this weekend.

Plans are being made for Bible School to be held the last week of July. Jeanette Helper will be in charge. Classes will be held from 8:30 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. Monday through Friday.
