

The adopted litter follows its new mother

Photos By Barringer

Fosters Have Home For Orphan Kittens

Sometimes a foster home can be just as good as the real thing.

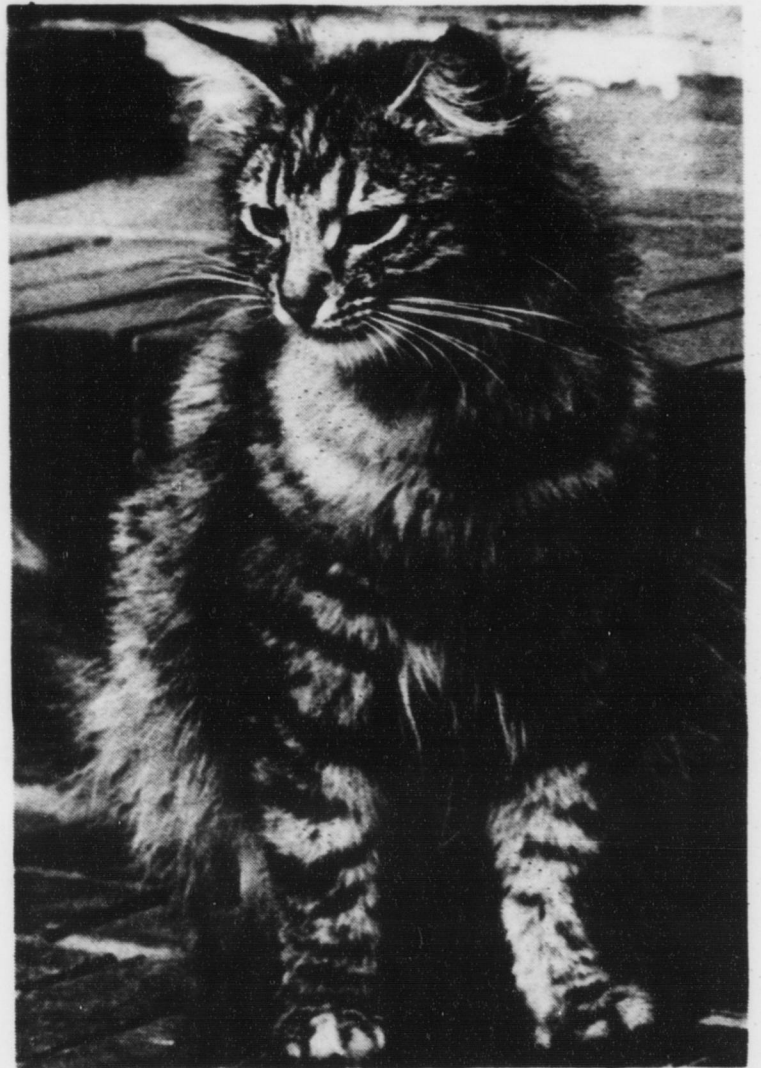

At least that appears to be the case at Doll Foster's house on Center Street. The Fosters' cat has adopted a litter of kittens and added it to her own.

The kittens were orphaned when their mother was killed, so the Fosters' cat accepted the job of feeding and caring for the whole bunch.

The cat was caring for as many as 10 kittens at one time, but the number has been decreased to six now.

The Fosters have given the cat vitamins to keep it healthy, but what's a mother to do with 10 children?

The new mother

Missie Foster plays with cats

Playing with her kittens