

MOTHERS AND DAUGHTERS

Read This Letter from Mrs. W. S. Hughes

Greenville, S. C.—"I was under the impression that my eldest daughter had accomplished something as great as I had ever done since the first time her little hands were placed on the keys of a piano and even had to quit school once for a week. I always take Little E. Finckham's Vegetable Compound myself so I gave it to her and she has received great benefit from it. You can use this letter for a testimonial if you wish, as I cannot say too much about what your medicine has done for me and for my daughter."—Mrs. W. S. Hughes, Greenville, Delaware.

Mothers and daughters grandmothers have taken and have learned the value of Little E. Finckham's Vegetable Compound. They recommend the medicine to others.

The best test of any medicine is what it does for others. For nearly fifty years we have published letters from mothers, daughters, and grandmothers all over the world recommending Little E. Finckham's Vegetable Compound. They know what it did for them and are glad to tell others. In every one's neighborhood are women who know of its great value.

Mothers—daughters, why not try it!

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

THE EARLY MORNING

THERE is an invisible, inspiring force in the early morning air, drifting down from the hills, sweet with the incense of the dawn, which vitalizes everything it touches, from the sod and the sea to the souls of humans.

It is the birth of a new day, opening its eyes like a new-born child to a new world. Every atom, every sphere and every creature is facing a threshold that has never been crossed.

The old quiverers of arrows have been shot away.

Time is handing out another supply, sweetening the sharpest and strongest for the hardy hand of youth, and urging youth to do its best, pointing to the dazzling paths that lead up and up to Arcadia.

Are you, young man and young woman, giving proper heed to Time's friendly admonitions?

Do you in the early morning of your life realize the blessed privileges that are yours?

Do you comprehend that this is the hour in which you must begin your march over the hills by every bowery road, toward a loftier peak, which in your delightful dreams you are picturing of wealth and power and fame?

If you do, and your quiver securely, look carefully about you and march on to the uplands nearer heaven, holding firmly all the while to faith and hope and honor, as you go.

Let not the lure of the valleys, the shade of the trees nor the purring waters call you back, when the sun approaches the meridian, and the day waxes warm and drowsy.

And at high noon, when the incitation comes to seek relaxation, and to side-step into fields of idle amusements, mind that you do not slip and go tumbling down among the failures.

If such desire confronts you, summon all your resolution, all the fine virtues that within you lie, and face the way to Arcadia, though the outlines of the golden domes of the city do not yet appear.

At this moment, you are at the turning point, when a single deviation from high resolve, a step or two from the entree you have been so faithfully with painful effort. If you tried to learn vocabularies by asking the meaning of words you would make little progress in the language.

Ask questions when you have to, but remember that you are pretty sure to overestimate the number of times when this is necessary.

Remember, too, that in gaining knowledge in this way you take chances on other people's mistakes.

The safest and surest way is to go straight to the printed authority, study the answers to your questions, reason out for yourself why it should be the answer, and then think it over a couple of times after that.

The kind of an education you get for yourself is the kind of a fortune it runs out for himself. You know what it is worth, how hard it was to acquire, and you are very likely to keep it.

IF YOU DON'T KNOW—

IF YOU don't happen to know how to spell a word, consult the dictionary. The effort you make turning over the pages and hunting out the word will probably fix the spelling in your mind.

Ask some boy how it is spelled, and you will almost instantly forget it. Then next time you need to use the same word, you will have to ask again.

Any form of knowledge, if it is to remain with you, must be got with some effort.

The child whose parents answer all his questions as he is studying his lesson books usually fails in examinations. There are no parents to ask.

If he has been compelled to look up the answers he would have remembered them.

If there is no other way to get information than by asking questions, ask them.

You could not, for example, find out a man's name without asking. But you could find his place of residence and his telephone number, and his business, by looking him up. And if necessary for you to know these things, that would be the only sensible way of learning them.

In the study of languages, pronunciation and idiom can be learned of teachers. But the grammar and the vocabulary must be dug out of books.

THE ROMANCE OF WORDS

"TAMMANY"

WHEN political reports say that each and each person is the "Tammany candidate" or that "the Tammany organization is back of a certain move," the expression is understood to refer to a prominent organization in New York—but the fact that it receives its name from a noted Indian chief is overlooked.

Tamanend, the chief in question, was the ancient wise and friendly head of the Delaware tribe of Indians who, for want of a better candidate, was "elected" by the soldiers of the American Revolution as the patron saint of the new country. The Tammany organization dates from May 12, 1783, when it was formed for benevolent and social purposes, but eventually became an important political body, formally chartered in 1805 and opposing the so-called "aristocratic" Society of the Cincinnati. It was essentially anti-federalist or democratic in its character and its chief founder was William Mooney, an American abolitionist of Irish extraction. The grand sachem and the thirteen sachems typified the president and the governors of the thirteen original colonies.

The Tammany Society today is a charitable and social organization, entirely distinct from the general committee of the Tammany political body, which cannot use Tammany hall without the consent of the society.

There are the other WRIGLEY friends to choose from, too:

Acceptable Advice. "You get a great deal of gratuitous advice from your constituents," I dare say.

"Oh, yes," replied Senator Sorrowful. "Ever get on any of it?"

"Occasionally," said the scout, "I have taken the suggestion of constituents who thought I was overworked."

"Hrmhghghgh," said the scout.

"There seems to be no practical penalty for the bootlegger."

"Well," replied Senator Sorghum, "he's at least deprived of the privilege of writing pieces for the paper and signing them 'Faspyler'."

The ambitious man doesn't worry much about his gray matter.

Attack Premature. "Why did you strike this haberdasher's clerk?"

"Your honor," said the large, thoughtful juror, "he showed me a collar and said it was a 'perfect dear'."

"Well," said the judge, "what did you do about it?"

"I told him to stop it," replied the juror, "and catch him in an alley."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

To Be Sure. "Why did they introduce those hatting girls? They don't further the story."

"He—they are their own excuse for being, my dear."—Film Fun.

THE FINGER NAILS

THERE is much that can be gained from a detailed study of the finger nails. Nature's protection for the tips of the fingers. In fact, in ancient times certain societies were known to be able to read a person's entire past, present and future from a study of the finger nails.

If the nails are short, about the middle length, and the skin grows fast upon them, you may read in them a strong personality, but with a tendency toward the much cultivated of others. The possessor will wish to dominate and control in social circles, directing himself and the surrounding world. He will be able to make a good thing out of a bad thing, and will be a good partner of course, but he will be a good partner, if the only thing he can do is to make a good thing out of a bad thing.
