

Dunbar's All-Star Male Quartet Here at Chautauqua

Dunbar's All-Star Male Quartet of notable singers and players—capital entertainers featuring bell-ringing de jazz—will give two popular concerts on the opening day of the coming Redpath Chautauqua, a grand concert in the afternoon and a shorter concert at night.

The quartet's programs cover a wide range of musical entertainment, including operatic favorites, character songs, novelty instrumental numbers and many unusual effects obtained by the bells. A particularly impressive bell-ringing feature in the representation of a Sunday morning in London, in which the chiming of the famous Cathedral bells of that city are faithfully reproduced.

This quartet of musicians was organized by Ralph Dunbar, well-known Chicago pianist, whose name sets a seal of superiority on any musical entertainment organization sent from his studios.

The quartet is a rare-dre entertainment attraction—an attraction that is predicted to be one of the biggest features on a big Chautauqua program.

Europe Greet's Former Pres. Taft

Former President Taft made an ebullient announcement of his trip to Europe this summer, still he is being received with enthusiasm and honor and honors in a way befitting his ability. The fact that he is now chief justice of the United States impresses Europe. The tour is developing into a triumphal trip not unlike that tendered other great men in past times. Pictures show Mr. and Mrs. Taft arriving in Europe. It also shows how the former president has lost in weight.

HIKING DOWN THE LONG BROWN PATH

Vacationists With Shelter Tents and Tin Cows Learning to Walk All Over Again.

Oh! It's not the back that you carry on your back. Nor the 57 on your shoulder. Nor the 200-odd crust of khaki-colored dust.

That makes you feel your limbs are growing aches. And it's not the hike on the hard tar-pine that drives away your smile.

Nor the looks of cats that raise the blooming blisters—It's the long dog walk.

—The Great Marching Song.

Straggling out from the suburban transit terminals of New York every Sunday and holiday goes the army of think-did hikers. There may be an exception for every county of the country's population, but a host of city folks disprove the theory of a future respectable citizenry and are learning to walk all over again.

To the more casual minded, the hike is just exercise, but to those who catch its real significance the hike means a great deal more. It is the cheapest form of recreation and therefore appeals to those living in crowded districts and unable to avail themselves of the more expensive amusements. And these people, be it noted, are just those the country is so anxious to have spread out and settled in the farming sections.

The hike, indeed, has possibilities as a real starter for the "back to the farm" movement.

Donkey and Boy Scout Lead Way.

Just a brief survey of the rollicking groups which move off from the outlying terminals on holidays establishes a few general types. There is the ex-serviceman and his friends who will hear from him the story of more serious excursions on the muddy roads of France. He tightens a strap here and another there on the blanket roll adjustment or the "shelter tent," in which the commensurate is packed for the mid-day feast by the roadside. Expert directions come from him on the method of slinging the pack so it will not feel so heavy or interfere with the free body movement. He will pass along the information gained in his army days of how that same pack was evolved after numerous experiments to find the angle was of carrying the heaviest load. With results he has not forgotten, but which in his estimate were a downright failure.

Then there are the boy scout parties, adept at everything pertaining to "stake out" (traveling and woodcraft). The ex-serviceman and the boy scout are plotters in the hiking game. Listen to one of them, right off the trail and making ready for a twelve-mile jaunt: "Get that tent over the side, Jimmie, and it won't keep bouncing off your leg every step. Is it tilted? Well, then, we don't. How about the tent? Let's check 'em off. You got the tent, the tent, the tent. Who has the coffee and the horse, the cow?"

"Right here," announces a freckled mite of the road, putting his knee-jack. "Bunched the moccasins and the tin of salt when it's wasn't looking."

"Well, then, let's go!" snaps the commander of the expedition.

This party is traveling light for real business. Another must expect a shorter hitch or else he comes too heavily on its power of endurance. Perhaps the camp is not far off because the group is composed of the brown-tinted stay with heavy blankets, hats, hammers, lanterns, knives, pens, new length Aristocrat, etc., etc. The hikers are laid out for a better picture of the huge and vast of land which the party announces to lead in the marchers' tracks all over with their tools and equipment.

Back to the Farm.

The veteran from the world's old countries has found a new territory in his own and one almost unknown to his associates. He is introducing them to the most desirable land and an opportunity to buy in the independence of the new world.

They have found of any settlement but what they have found the "back to the farm" movement. "That's what you've got," is his motto.

Who will stay the longest? The hikers in the city will stay the longest in a serious organization of hikers, especially those who are able to be hunched under the sun of the farm. When the hiker looks up the horizon before him, he sees the possibility of the country that is his own. The hiker, when he looks up the horizon, he sees the possibility of the country that is his own. The hiker, when he looks up the horizon, he sees the possibility of the country that is his own.

Goodrich

new tire prices

—lowest cost mileage ever known.

Effective July 20th, Goodrich establishes a revised price list that is a base line of tire values. It gives the motorist the buying advantage of knowing that whatever size tire he selects is of the same quality—the Goodrich one-quality standard. It gives him the longest mileage, the most satisfactory service and the highest quality his money can buy. Results will prove that it is impossible to buy tire mileage at lower cost.

Think of being able to buy Silvertown Cords at such prices as these:

SIZE	BASE LINE PRICE	SIZE	BASE LINE PRICE
30 x 34 CL	53.50	34 x 4 S.B.	53.85
31 x 38.5 CL	15.95	34 x 4 1/2 S.B.	37.00
