HONORS SENIOR CLASS

The senior class of 1938 was entertained Wednesday evening at their first Senior party by Miss Bertha Bell at her home near Fountain.

Dancing was enjoyed and "The Big Apple" was a special feature of the evening.

Delightful refreshments were served by the hostess.

WOMAN'S CLUB MEETS

The Fountain Woman's Club met Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. M. E. Smith with Mrs. J. W. Reddick as assisting hostess.

Following a short business session led by the president Mrs. J. L. Peele, a very interesting program on "The Family" was presented by the chairman Mrs. Bruce Eagles. Others taking part on the program were Mrs. C. M. Smith, Mrs. F. L. Eagles and Mrs. J. M. Horton.

At the close of the meeting the hostesses served a delectable salad course.

ENTERTAINS FOR BRIDGE CLUB

Mrs. J. M. Horton entertained the members of her bridge club and a few additional guests at her home Wednesday evening.

Bridge was played at three tables and Rook at two. Following several progressions high score prizes were awarded to Mrs. G. W. Lane, Jr., and Mrs. Lynwood Owens for Bridge and to Mrs. M. D. Yelverton for Rook. Consolation prizes went to Mrs. William Reddick, and Mrs. Ernest Hunt.

The guests were served coca-colas while playing and after cards were put away the hostess served a salad course.

The home was decorated with fall flowers and the Halloween idea was carried out very attractively.

FIRST FALL MEETING OF P. T. A.

The P. T. A. Fountain High School held its first fall meeting in the school auditorium on Thursday evening.

The meeting was opened by group singing led by the principal Mr. John A. Guy. The devotional was led by Mr. M. H. Johnson, pastor of the Baptist Church.

Mr. H. B. Mayo of Lucama and a former principal made a short talk on the needs of the music department.

The primary grades gave several vocal selections. The school library was discussed by Mr. Guy and Miss Ella Flemming.

The meeting was presided over by Mrs. Bruce Eagles, the new president for this year.

ENTERTAINED SUNDAY

Mr. and Mrs. Bennie L. Phillips of near Fountain entertained at their home Sunday the 3rd of October Mrs. Phillips' father, John R. Tugwell in honor of his 75th birthday together with his immediate family and his sister and husband Mr. and Mrs. Watt Parker. The cake was charming, the dinner was sumptuous and delicious, the presents and gifts were appreciated and fitting, especially to one who has past the three score and ten mile posts of life. The youngsters were happy, the elders, contented and all seemed to be filled with gratitude as they extended congratulations, kisses and good wishes for this aged sire. About 5 p. m. they all hurried away to their respective homes.

Pick Cotton Early And Keep It Clean

The best ginning equipment in the country cannot produce high quality lint from dirty, trashy, damp cotton, said J. C. Ferguson, extension gin specialist at State College.

To get best prices for their cotton, he urged growers to pick the seed cotton as soon as the bolls are well opened, and to keep the crop as free from trash as possible.

When a boll opens, the fluffy cotton has a bright, creamy white color the market likes. But when exposed to sun and rain, the cotton becomes dull and grey, which makes for a lower grade.

Newly opened bolls have a brilliant luster that soon fades out with exposure to weather, Ferguson added.

While the gin can remove some of the trash, he continued, it cannot remove it all, and when trashy cotton goes through the gin, the lint is usually damaged enough to lower the grade materially.

Early picked cotton is not only more lustrous, he added, but it is cleaner—the longer that lint is exposed to weather, the greater its chance of getting dirty.

Cotton that is picked early in the season should be kept separate from that picked later, Ferguson said, as it is usually of better quality.

And if the cotton is damp when picked, be sure to give it time to dry before it is taken to the gin.

Seed cotton should be stored loosely in a dry place, and stirred frequently to facilitate drying.

Legume crops, well known as soil-builders, also make excellent forage for livestock.

They give larger yields of more nutritious hay than the common hay crops, said Dr. Frank Sherwood, nutrition chemist of the central experiment station at State College.

Since legumes are more palatable than other hays, he continued, livestock will eat them with less waste.

Legumes are rich in protein elements not found in the proteins of cereal or grain crops.

Animals need all the elements in forming skin, wool, or horn material, in building muscles, and for internal organs and tissues. A combination of legumes and corn provide an excellent protein mixture for cattle.

Legume hays are too bulky for swine, however, and the corn fed to swine should be supplemented with concentrated proteins such as is contained in fish meal or tankage.

Legumes are rich in calcium, but contain a small amount of phosphorus. Cereal grains and especially cottonseed meal and soybean meal are rich in phosphorus and supply this material when included in the animals ration.

The high vitamin content of legumes also make them a good feed for milk cows and growing animals. Only fresh, tender pasturage exceeds legume hay in vitamin content.

If young pigs do not have the run of a pasture, as little as five per cent good legume hay added to their ration will determine the difference between profit and loss—even loss of the pigs.

Sad Colors Dampen Spirits of Family

"Give me a rug with a color like mashed sweet potatoes — you know we have boys in the house."

That was a statement Miss Pauline Gordon, of State College, heard a friend make to a salesman while buying a rug for the dining room.

"Why should we continue to live with the same old dreary things just because our forebears did?" Miss Gordon asked.

"If I were asked to name one fault most of us have in home furnishings, it would be sad colors—what we call useful shades that will not show stain or soil easily."

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Cornwell, of Cleveland County, realized that something was wrong with their living-room, crowded with the accumulations of a life-time, Miss Gordon said.

So they called in their county home demonstration agent and planned some drastic changes.

Down came the crayon portraits and cluttering bric-a-brac, out went the dreary linoleum. In their stead were placed two good pictures, one over the mantel and the other over an old table that "no one thought could look like such a choice piece of furniture until it had been refinished."

Narrow, dark drapes were removed from the windows so the sunlight could flood the room. Furniture was placed for harmony and balance and cheerful colors were introduced.

Twelve big hooks for coats and hats were removed from the front hall where they, together with the array of hats and coats, had been an eye-sore for years.

"You just ought to see the difference," Miss Gordon added.
