IS LOVELY LADY REAL LIVING MERMAID?

"Sea-Tiny," pictured above, one of the feature attractions with the Mammoth Marine Hippodrome, that will exhibit in Greenville for one day only, Wednesday, November 10. This young lady is usually the center of interest aboard the exhibition car, in fact, has been known to "steal the show" from "Colossus" the 68-ton Sea Monster, also featured. While "Sea-Tiny" is at home in the water, and can travel about there in much ease, when out of the water she remains a prisoner within herself, being unable to move about without assistance. People who have visited the exhibition have come away thinking that perhaps that might be something to the legendary idea that "Mermaids" really did exist. The exhibit has many other features including living penguins from the Byrd's south pole ship; "Fredia" known as "the little Ray of sunshine;" Giant Devil Fish; 40 species of deep sea life; and dozens of other equal interesting displays. The exhibit on a specially constructed railroad car will be placed on a siding near the Norfolk and Southern Depot immediately on arrival in Greenville and will be open to the public from noon until 10 p. m., Admission ten cents.

STATE COLLEGE ANSWERS TIMELY FARM QUESTIONS

QUESTION:—Can a breeding male be selected for the poultry flock by handling only?

ANSWER:—Yes, but there is always the chance that the best male from a handling standpoint has the poorest breeding qualities. It is always best to study the performance of the parents before selecting a male for breeding purposes. However, if the bird has to be selected by handling so that it is true to breed so far as father pattern goes and that he is without any serious feather defect. The body should be deep in front and equally deep in the center. The head must be distinctly masculine and show good character with well developed secondary sex characters as comb, earlobes, and the wattles. Be sure the bird shows high vitality and has a good body weight.

QUESTION:—How should soil be prepared for growing in window boxes?

ANSWER:—To obtain a good soil which is the first essential in producing good plants, make a compost pile of alternate layers of manure and good garden soil. After the soil has been thoroughly mixed it should be sifted to get rid of trash, stones, and other coarse material. These window boxes or flats should measure about 11 by 16 inches outside and be from two to three inches deep. Plants started in these boxes should be transplanted to other boxes or to the hotbeds or coldframe as soon as they begin to crowd. Crowded plants become spindly and worthless.

QUESTION:—How much grain should be fed a Jersey Cow for maximum milk production?

ANSWER:—The general rule recommended by the U. S. Experiment Station at Beltsville, Maryland is to feed six-tenths of a pound of grain for each pound of milk produced above ten. However, different cows have a different capacity for milk production and each cow must be studied as an individual before a definite grain feeding can be determined. By increasing or decreasing the grain allowance and weighing the milk the proper amount can be determined for the most economical production.
