Chamberlain To Present Czechoslovak Surrender To German Leader Today

However, No Definite Indication Given That Hitler Will Accept Franco - British Proposal.

London, Thursday, Sept. 22. — Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, carrying Europe's last hope of peace in his brief case, prepared to fly today to Germany for his second meeting with Fuehrer Adolf Hitler, to offer him the complete surrender of Czechoslovakia to Germany's territorial demands.

Even as the lanky, 69-year-old British Premier got ready to board a British Airways plane, German troops were massing nearly a half-million strong along the Czech frontier, ready to march at the Fuehrer's signal.

There was no indication that Hitler would accept Chamberlain's peace offer, or that some explosive incident might not set off the fireworks before any deal could be made — but Britain and France were virtually sure of one thing. They had averted the danger of war to themselves for the present.

Both governments had served notice on Czechoslovakia that by proposing the peaceful way out, they had liquidated their obligations to that little war-created republic; and if the Czechs elect to fight, they will in all probability, fight alone.

Army May Revolt
In spite of Chamberlain's desperate efforts to avert the catastrophe — and it seemed probable that he had at least confined it to Czechoslovakia and Germany — there was still the danger that the Czech army might rise against the Prague government and elect to go to war rather than submit to national suicide.

Crowds stormed through the streets of Prague after the cabinet had announced its unconditional surrender to the Anglo-French demand for cessation of Sudeten territory, shouting "We want to fight!"

Whether Hitler accepts or rejects Chamberlain's "peace at any price" solution to the Czech crisis, it was believed that the British Prime Minister had spared Europe a general war, since neither France nor Britain now feel they are obligated to go to the aid of the Czechs.

And in doing this, they elevated the German dictator to a commanding position in Europe's political horizon unparalleled since the days of Napoleon.

Rebellion Threat Looms at Prague

Angry Crowds In Prague Streets Call for War and Rule By Dictatorship.

Prague, Sept. 21. — Angry mobs surged in the streets tonight crying "To war—we want a dictatorship!" and carried a threat of internal rebellion against the government's complete surrender of the rich Sudeten border regions to Germany.

This post-war republic of 15,000,000 polygot peoples at 4:55 p. m. (11:55 a. m., E. S. T.), ceased to exist in the form in which it was established under the treaty of Versailles, when Britain and France amputated the rich Sudeten industrial region and handed it over to Fuehrer Adolf Hitler as his price of peace.

After stubbornly defying Hitler and his overwhelming armed might for weeks, the government of scholar-ly President Eduard Benes capitulated "with pain" to what it called the "irristable pressure" of a Franco-British ultimatum and 300,000 German troops massed across the border for an invasion.

As the anger of the crowds rose, with open condemnation of a Franco-British "betrayal" and cries of "Down with Hitler," the government appealed desperately for order. "God knows that more courage is needed for living than for committing suicide," a government spokesman assured the people by radio.

"We resolved to offer ourselves as a sacrifice for world peace, just as centuries ago the Divinity sacrificed himself on the Cross."

Thousands of mobile and foot police were rushed to trouble spots, and heavy cordons were thrown around the British and French legations.

History, the government announced, will pronounce a judgment upon Britain and France "who left us in the lurch."

The gravest threat was the overthrow of the Benes government and the rise of a military dictatorship which might refuse to yield to German occupation of the Sudetenland and precipitate war after all.

Hurricane Winds Take Heavy Toll In Coast States

At Least 15 Deaths and Large Property Damage From Jersey to Boston.

West Hampton, N. Y., Sept. 21. — Commander William M. Wolfe of the Coast Guard tonight reported a "severe loss of life" in the wind and rain storm that struck fashionable beach colonies along the Long Island shore. He said that he could not estimate the number dead, but that it might be tremendous.

Bodies of at least four women and two men were washed ashore tonight from fashionable West Hampton Beach, playground of the wealthy, where approximately 200 residents were marooned and nearly all homes were reported washed away or badly battered.

Reporting to Coast Guard headquarters in New York City that the entire area from Moriches to East Hampton was flooded, Commander Wolfe said that loss of life was heavy and that property damage was very great.

A tropical storm which moved up the Atlantic seaboard swept the New Jersey, Long Island, and Connecticut coasts late yesterday and struck in Providence, R. I., with lashing rains and a 78-mile wind.

It tore off roofs of buildings in the Rhode Island city, marooned thousands of workers and shoppers, blotted out electric lights over a vast area and caused theatres to be emptied in alarm.

Shifting gales and drenching downpours marked its passage across the New York metropolitan area before it howled its way northeast into the New England states where a week's rain already had swollen rivers to the flood stage, bringing death and ruin.

Fifteen deaths—five of them women who drowned yesterday—were attributed to the storm in New England. One of the women was a nurse returning from a maternity case when an automobile in which she was riding was caught in the rush of water from a breaking dam. The four others were standing on a bridge at Weare, N. H., when it collapsed.

With the storm's velocity only slightly diminished on its long course up the Atlantic—earlier in the week Florida was threatened—it moved across the New York metropolitan area, piling high tides and a thunder of surf on the coast.

Sudeten Germans Start Taking Over Czech Area

D. A. Rs. Meet in New Chapter House

Hold Initial Fall Meeting In Building Recently Completed.

The September meeting of the Major Benjamin May Chapter, D. A. R., was characterized by a new enthusiasm and a spirit of justified pride, evidenced in an achievement which members had anticipated for several years, the construction of the handsome chapter house on the Wilson highway, just outside the incorporated limits of Farmville. Miss Tabitha DeViscanti and Mrs. B. S. Sheppard, direct descendants of Major May, were hostesses at this meeting.

The building, modeled along colonial lines, has been erected since March 1 at a cost of around $11,000, which was made possible by a gift some years ago of the site, and by a subsequent gift of $5,000 at the beginning of this year by A. C. Monk, who is not only a prominent tobaccoist, banker and church man, of Farmville, but a community-minded citizen, whose generosity has been extended to many worthwhile movements and to various religious bodies here for the past several years.

Thus the first fall meeting of the Major May Chapter, convening in its new home, was an epoch in the history of this large and vigorous organization—a dream come true, and the first act of the chapter in the business session, presided over by the regent, Mrs. Henrietta M. Williamson, was to express its collective appreciation to the building committee, composed of Mrs. W. M. Willis, Mrs. A. C. Monk, Mrs. U. H. Cozart, Mrs. T. C. Turnage, Mrs. C. H. Arrington, Mrs. T. E. Joyner, Mrs. C. E. Moore, Mrs. G. W. Jefferson and Mrs. W. H. Whitmore, and to instruct the secretary, Mrs. Bruce Eagles, to write notes conveying the appreciation of the members to all friends, who had contributed in any way to this endeavor.

Mrs. E. Bruce Beasley, chairman of the year book committee, gave her report and as chairman of the rules and regulations committee, read the rules regarding the use of the chapter house, which are subject to amendments by the board of governors, of which Mrs. A. C. Monk is chairman.

Mrs. U. H. Cozart was appointed to purchase a silver marker for memorializing the A. P. Turnage family, who donated an exquisite colonial mantle to the new chapter house.

After the immediate needs of the chapter house in relation to furnishings were listed by the regent, generous donations were made by individual members. The contribution of several pieces of colonial furniture to the chapter by Mrs. J. S. Schlemmer, of Norfolk, Va., formerly Miss Martha Carr, of Farmville, was reported at this time.

Mrs. B. S. Sheppard, historian, reported the chapter's offer made to the school, of a prize to the high school student doing the best work in American history this year.

The district D. A. R. meeting to be held in Tarboro, October 4, was discussed and the committee chairmen were urged by the regent to attend.

Remove Border Posts and Disarm Czech Officials in Eger-Asch Territory.

Eger, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 22. — Sudeten Germans last night took over power in sections of Czechoslovak territory close to the frontier. They disarmed gendarmes and customs officials and ripped up border posts.

Asch, the home of Konrad Henlein, the Sudeten German fuehrer, was completely in the hands of his followers.

The Sudeten vigilance corps stormed police and gendarmes headquarters shortly before midnight, disarming the Czechs.

All police and gendarmes on night service were being held under guard at their respective headquarters.

The vigilance corps likewise occupied the Czech customs houses, disarming the customs guards, who were taken into German territory.

Fearing that the Czechoslovak army might come down on them from the interior, the Heleinists blocked the roads leading from Eger to Asch. Four large trees were felled across the main highway two miles from the city's edge.

Armed Sudeten labor corps boys defended and guarded the barricades.

News of the Czechoslovak government's agreement yesterday to hand the Sudeten regions to Germany started a systematic execution of police and rule the territory immediately.

In Eger, former Sudeten German party regional headquarters, Czechoslovak police still nominally were in charge early today.

Duke Opens Classes Of New Term Today

Durham, Sept. 21. — Duke University's new academic year was opened this morning in exercises in which civic leaders joined with students and faculty members.

President W. P. Few, in his opening address, expressed the wish that Duke would not grow so large that it would function as a machine to turn out graduates. Rather, he said, he wishes the university to function so that the possibilities in each individual may be developed.

Classes will be begun tomorrow morning.

Revival services will begin in the Methodist Church on October 16th and continue through the 23rd, embracing two Sundays. The public will be informed later as to the arrangement of these services.

Revival Services To Begin At Methodist Church

Dr. D. E. Earnhardt, President of Louisville College, will do the preaching. Dr. Earnhardt has served leading churches in our Conference, is a former Presiding Elder and a very interesting speaker.

We invite you to make your plans with these services in view and we extend our welcome to the entire community.

Poland Submits Demand for Return of Minority

Warsaw, Sept. 21. — Poland tonight made a formal demand upon Czechoslovakia for "surrender" of the Teschen Silesia area along the Czech-Polish border and warned that 1,600,000 troops are being held in readiness to back up the demand.

The government announced that the Polish minister in Prague, Dr. Casimir Papez, had handed a note to Foreign Minister Kamil Krycia demanding that the Polish minority of 62,000 in Czechoslovakia be given "the same solution as the German minority."

The demand was served shortly after the Czech cabinet, as a only alternative to a German invasion, capitulated to Fuehrer Adolf Hitler's ultimatum for surrender of the Sudeten-German belt to the Reich.

A military class which was to have been released yesterday was held under arms indefinitely and more troops were rushed up to the Czech border.
