HE HAS AN IDEA!

A news dispatch from Chattanooga, Tennessee, advises that J. B. Hayes, 67-year-old WPA laborer, who can neither read nor write, has recently become the father of his twenty-fifth child.
 Only thirteen of the Hayes children are living. The prolific father expresses the opinion that "twenty-five is a plenty." Most readers will probably agree that the old boy has an idea there.

HOW TO SAVE LIVES

The best way to save the lives of some of the American citizens who are killed in highway accidents is by enforcing the laws regulating the movement of vehicles.
 The highway regulations, including the rules for parking, are little matters that spell life or death at times. Nobody knows when a minor violation may cause a major tragedy. Consequently, the minor violators should be punished promptly.
 The enforcement of traffic rules should proceed without recognition of "big-shots." Nobody in any community ought to have prestige or power enough to escape punishment for violations of the regulations. Enforcement officers should not "know" anybody; neither should juries and judges.

AIRLINES VERSUS BATTLE FLEET

That the airplane is the master of the naval vessel and that a fleet of airplanes, "in sufficient numbers," will prove the nemesis of the battleship, is the opinion of Robert Inley, chief research engineer for the Pratt and Whitney Company, makers of aircraft engines.
 This proposition has been advanced for a number of years without any satisfactory demonstration of its truth being available. In the war now going on in Europe conditions are ripe for a test. Great Britain has the battle fleet and Germany has the airfleet. A decision should result.
 Of course, no nation is going to depend entirely upon warships any more than an army will depend entirely upon artillery. There is power diversified forces, with each unit having points of value that are unequalled by other units. The importance of an airfleet cannot be overestimated even if possession of a corresponding fleet will offset it. Battleships have similar advantages that can be secured only through their possession.

INCREASE

Receipts from the sale of principal farm products in November, 1939, were larger than the same month in 1938 in four of the six major geographical divisions of the United States.

ADMINISTRATOR'S NOTICE

Having qualified as administrator of the estate of A. B. Brown, deceased, late of Pitt County, North Carolina, I hereby give notice to all persons having claims against the estate of said deceased to present them to the undersigned at the office of the Administrator of the Estate of A. B. Brown, Farmville, N. C., on or before the 15th day of February, 1940.

RECORDS
 Henderson County growers are showing a steadily increasing interest in farm records, with the total keeping account books mounting each year since 1936.
 ... into the home of the ...
 ... a great experience, ...
 ... a fixed habit in the life of this writer. He looked with joy for the coming of the Sabbath and his heart was happy when he thought of going into the house of the Lord. It was here that he expected to find God in fellowship and comradeship.
 God will be in His Temple next Sunday. If your heart is burdened and your spirit is drooping, then come to church that you might find His Presence and help.

State College Answers Timely Farm Questions

Question: What are some of the sources of protein in hog foods?
 Answer: At least one-third, by weight, of the protein supplement should be composed of products from animal sources, such as digester tankage or high grade fishmeal. Fifteen pounds of skim milk or buttermilk will replace one pound of tankage. The remainder of the protein requirement may be provided from plant sources, such as cottonseed meal, soybean oil meal, or peanut oil meal. Complete directions for the feeding, breeding, and management of swine are contained in a new Extension circular which may be obtained on request to the Agricultural Editor at State College. The circular number is 238.

Question: What are the fertilizer requirements of the tobacco plant bed?
 Answer: Two hundred pounds of a 4-8-3 fertilizer for each 100 square yards of bed should be sufficient. If a lower grade fertilizer is used, it can be supplemented with from 50 to 100 pounds of cottonseed meal, provided the meal is thoroughly mixed with the soil. The fertilizer should be broadcast on the bed and thoroughly mixed with the upper 3 or 4 inches of the soil. Avoid the use of manure containing tobacco leaves, stalks, or roots.

Question: Should a general plan be followed in locating fruit trees?
 Answer: Preferably. The location of the different fruits should fit in with the general plan of landscaping and beautifying the farm home. Apple, cherry, pear, and nut trees may be set in the rear of the lawn as shade trees or near corners of farm buildings in order to provide attractive settings. Peach and plum trees may be set in the poultry yard or along the border of the vegetable garden. Grape vines may be trained as arbors, planted as a rear line fence for the lawn, or along the borders of the garden.

Trade at home is a slogan that becomes a reality only when merchants and buyers work together, each doing their part.

Headache, Bad Breath May Be Your Warning

The sea's thrilling S. O. S. means "Help is needed now!" And, so do most of these headaches, that biliousness, coated tongue, or bad breath which are often signs of constipation.
 To disregard these symptoms may bring on a host of other discomforts from sluggish bowels: sour stomach, belching, loss of appetite. See how much better you feel the day after taking spicy, all vegetable BLACK-DRAUGHT. By simple directions, it acts gently, cleanses promptly, thoroughly. Its principal ingredient is an intestinal tonic-laxative; imparts tone to lazy bowel muscles. Next time try BLACK-DRAUGHT!
