FARMING FOR WILDLIFE

To solve the problem of restoring wildlife on farmlands requires an effort to understand the conditions which have brought about its decline, and to seek effective remedies. Land owners are coming to realize more and more that wildlife is primarily a product of the soil, and a valuable resource that should be given every encouragement. As other crops, game and other forms of wildlife have certain requirements, which must be provided during all seasons of the year, or failure of the wildlife crop results.

There are some very simple methods by which farmers and sportsmen can improve habits on agricultural land. A possibility often overlooked by the farmer is the advantage of sowing tobacco plant beds in wildlife foods after the young tobacco plants have been removed.

Sowing wildlife foods in old tobacco beds is not only beneficial to wildlife but does much to keep beds in suitable condition for replanting the following year. Another possibility to improve wildlife living conditions on the farm is to leave strips of summer maturing grain, soybeans and cowpeas unharvested. These strips should be left adjacent to thickets, hedgerows or wood borders.

It is only too true that the best wildlife management on the farm quite often is not the things done at special expense, for that purpose. A good policy is to leave blocks of cover unharmed along ditches. In this way game birds and wild animals may escape should danger threaten while they are feeding along the edges of open fields or field borders. Unproductive field borders may be made to benefit wildlife by merely mowing or plowing strips every third year and planting annual legumes.

Let us bear in mind if we are interested in wildlife conservation, that we are hunters by instinct, and that there is little use of planting food and cover for wildlife if a surplus of one is left to roam the fields.

The Oglesbys Celebrate on Their Silver Wedding Date

Mrs. B. Edison Moore Honored at Tea; Young Set Enjoy Dance; Wednesday Club Has Bridge Dinner

Among the loveliest social functions of the Spring season, was that of Tuesday evening, when Mr. and Mrs. David Ervin Oglesby were at home from eight to ten in celebration of their silver wedding anniversary. Mrs. Oglesby was formerly Miss Dezie Cooper, of Columbia.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Q. Roebuck greeted the guests as they arrived.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Joyner introduced the receiving line, composed of Mr. and Mrs. David Ervin Oglesby and their children, Mr. and Mrs. David Ervin Oglesby, Jr., of Elizabeth City, Carroll Dean, William Cooper, Ralph Sherwood and Miss Edith Anne Oglesby, and Rev. and Mrs. D. A. Clarke.

Receiving in the gift room were Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Joyner and Mr. and Mrs. John D. Holmes.

Directing guests in the hall were Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Roebuck and Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Holden. Mrs. P. E. Jones and Mrs. A. C. Hodges, of Goldsboro, were in charge of the register.

Mr. and Mrs. Judson L. Walker, of Raleigh, received in the dining room. The Oglesby home, on North Main street, was illuminated by candlelight and beautifully decorated throughout with snapdragons, gladiolus, daffodils and forsythia, with the colors of pink and white prevailing in the reception room, yellow and white and rose and green being used in the other rooms.

The color note of white and green with silver was carried out in elaborate detail in the dining room, the table being spread with a Maderia cloth, centered with a silver bowl of white snapdragons and carnations, and illuminated by white candles in silver holders. The buffet held a three tiered wedding cake decorated with a silver bell.

Mrs. Bertha Gardner and Miss Annie Perkins, seated at either end of the table, served ices molded in the form of wedding bells, orange blossoms, love birds and wedding rings, and individual cakes decorated with silver leaves. Assisting in serving mints and nuts were Miss Gene Horton, Miss Vernice Lang Jones, Miss Verona Lee Joyner, Miss Russell Ward, Miss Ellen Liles and Miss Geraldine Cameron.

Mr. and Mrs. Plato Monk, of Wilson, directed the way into the living room, where Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Morgan introduced a second receiving line, composed of Mrs. E. N. and Miss Eunice Storey, of Chatham, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Sykes and Mrs. J. D. Cooper, of Columbia; Mrs. H. H. and Miss Patricia Swinson, of Richmond, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. S. M. and Miss Betty Ann Cooper, Mrs. Wilbur Cooper, and Mrs. Joseph L. Sprull, of Greensboro; Mr. and Mrs. George Charlton, of Raleigh; Mr. and Mrs. Graves Smith, of Goldsboro.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Gates received in the solarium, where punch was being served by Miss Mary Dorcas Harding, Miss Eva Mae Turnage, Miss Geraldine Gardner, and Miss Jeanne Reese.

Good byes were said by Dr. and Mrs. W. M. Willis.

Instrumental selections were rendered throughout the evening by Mrs. Haywood Smith and Mrs. Daisy H. Smith.

Around two hundred and fifty guests called.

After the calling hour, Mrs. Daisy H. Smith sang "I Love You Truly," and when the strains of the wedding march from "Lohengrin" were sounded, Mr. and Mrs. Oglesby entered the reception room and renewed their marriage vows in a Silver Wedding service, read by the Rev. D. A. Clarke.

Prominent among the festivities of the week was the lovely tea, given by Mrs. George E. Moore, Mrs. Floyd D. Warren, of Durham, and Mrs. C. Lynn Eason, in honor of Mrs. Benjamin Edison Moore, whose marriage occurred this month. Mrs. Moore was formerly Miss Doris Lee, of Oriental.

Floral decorations were in most part sprays of forsythia, daffodils, camellias, spires and other spring blossoms from the lovely garden of Mrs. Moore, in whose home the affair was held. The mantels of the spacious Moore home were banked with ivy and white tapers were used in graduated effect.

The dining room was particularly lovely, the lace-spread table being centered with a silver bowl of white snapdragons, carnations, stocks and fern, flanked by white candles in silver candelabra. Similar arrangements were on the buffet and serving table.

Mrs. B. O. Turnage and Mrs. M. V. Jones greeted guests as they arrived.

Mrs. A. C. Monk introduced the receiving line composed of Mrs. George E. Moore, Mrs. Benjamin Edison Moore, Mrs. Floyd D. Warren, Mrs. C. Lynn Eason, Mrs. George E. Moore, Jr., and Miss Meta King Moore.

Mrs. J. W. Bass, Mrs. Mary Lewis and Mrs. Helen Joyner directed the guests to the dining room, where the tea was served by Mrs. Frank M.

Mrs. R. A. Parker was a gracious bridge hostess, entertaining the New Deal Club and additional friends. Arrangements of spring flowers were used with pleasing effect as a setting for the five tables. Mrs. L. E. Walston and Mrs. H. Neal Howard won the club and guest prizes, honey jars. The delicious refreshments consisted of a congealed salad, a variety of sandwiches and coffee, with the shamrock motif and Irish green being charmingly emphasized.

Members of the Lamrad Club and guests, Mrs. Merrette Moore and Mrs. Rex Hodges, enjoyed another tournament series played at the home of Miss Hazel Monk. The guest prize of cigarettes went to Mrs. Merrette Moore. A variety of dainty sandwiches, cookies in the seasonal motifs and a beverage were served. The refreshment covers also carrying the appropriate colors.
