REV. J. WAYNE DRASH TO HOLD MEETING HERE

We are pleased to announce that Rev. J. Wayne Drash, pastor of the Gordon Street Christian Church of Kinston, will lead a meeting here beginning October 6, and continuing for eight or ten days.

Mr. Drash has lately come to Kinston from Greenville, Tenn., and is rapidly making for himself a place in our hearts. He has a pleasing personality, persuasive manner and is an all round strong gospel preacher. You will enjoy knowing him and hearing him speak. You are urged to plan to attend each service, and to tell others.

During August there will be no evening services at the Christian Church. The Sunday School and morning service will be as usual. Mr. Mashburn is preaching on "Some things we have forgot." Last Sunday was, "Have we forgotten God?" Next Sunday he will speak on "Have we forgotten the sinfulness of sin?"

Preparing Young Men and Women Physically For Universal Service

Raleigh, June 27.—The importance of immediately preparing young men and women physically for universal service, through means at the disposal of governmental and cooperating State and local units, was emphasized by Dr. Carl V. Reynolds, State Health Officer, in a statement issued recently. He urged that no time be lost in preventing the preventable, protecting the protectable and curing the curable, in order that American youth when it goes into centers of training, will not be inviting epidemics or epidemics in these centers, but will be fortified against these risks.

Dr. Reynolds said: "Today, I saw nine billions of dollars being appropriated for the national defense.

"Today, I saw plans in the making for universal training.

"Today, and tomorrow, we need the man and the woman who is sound in mind and body, to guide, direct and operate our preparedness program.

"Delay means waste of both time and opportunity. Procrastination is the thief of time whose loot is never recovered.

"Man's physical fitness is essential in war or peace—it is an integral part of preparedness.

"Today, we need the means to take advantage of the protection that already is at hand. It is essential and should be forthcoming—on a well balanced budgetary basis. Monies thus wisely made available will not only brook immediate needs but will result in an educational program that will not become obsolete—but endure.

"Medical science and research have made available a vast amount of material we are not using as advantageously as we should in our preparation for life's work, either in times of peace or in preparation for war.

"Today, I saw a horse—sound and sleek—manufacturing anti-bodies, to immunize against the ravages of disease.

"Six days hence, this horse will act as a donor, giving up a known quantity of blood to save the life of dear, dying man.

"Today, I saw a calf that had manufactured protective agents for the welfare of man—a rabbit and a guinea pig doing the same thing.

"What science has provided, let us take—without hesitation, which spells loss!"

Boll Weevil Control Outlined In Bulletin

This is a tough year on the boll weevil. The cold weather of the winter just past froze out the main army of this No. 1 insect enemy of the Agricultural South, and now farmers have found an effective weapon with which to combat the hardy weevils that survived the freezes.

These weavens—the new pre-square mopping and dusting treatment, and the established post-square poisoning methods—are outlined in detail in a new publication of the State College Extension Service. It is Extension Folder No. 45, entitled "Boll Weevil Control."

Any farmer of the State may receive a copy of the folder free upon request to the Agricultural Editor at N. C. State College, Raleigh. County farm agents of the Extension Service also have supplies of the publication in their offices at the county seats.

J. O. Rowell, Extension entomologist, is author of the new boll weevil control bulletin. In it, he gives full information on the 1-1-1 mopping treatment, which has proved very effective in South Carolina and other States, and which was used successfully by a number of North Carolina growers on an experimental basis last year.

Rowell says that boll weevils have made only scattered attacks this year, but he recommends vigilance in order that the insect can be poisoned at the first signs of his invasion of the cotton field. The pre-square mopping treatment calls for the use of a mixture of one pound of calcium arsenate, one gallon of cheap molasses, and one gallon of water. This amount is sufficient to mop one acre.

Facts You Should Know About Children

Three persons are brought into some county jail in North Carolina every twenty minutes of the day and night, making a total of some 30,000 a year.

In North Carolina there is a 1700 average daily county jail population, cared for at a cost of 65 cents a day, or about $4,000,000 a year spent from the county treasuries.

In North Carolina there were jailed 1231 children in 1936, all under 16 years of age. The number lowered to 1070 in 1937; dropped to 883 in 1938 and last year was down to 784.

Since inception of the Public Assistance Program in North Carolina 25 counties have found it unnecessary to provide an institution to care for needy aged. An average of $10.04 was paid to 35,227 old people who received a total of $355,704 during the month of February.

Aid to dependent children came to $137,987 which gave 21,803 children an average of $6.33 for February 1940, in North Carolina.

Authorities in child care believe the boarding home to be the best type of foster home care. In North Carolina there are 80 licensed boarding homes and there is a real need for several more.

A. E. Langston, State Director of Commodity Distribution, stated that last year 843 schools were given commodities, in which 48,983 undernourished public school pupils were aided with surplus commodity lunches. He estimated that before the close of the current school year about 1800 schools will have been certified, giving free lunches to approximately 148,000 undernourished children.

"The home and family are the first thing of importance in growth, development and education of children and a primary responsibility for the religious development of the child rests upon the parents," states Mrs. W. T. Bost, State Welfare Commissioner.

Farmers Organized In Defense Program

Farmers of North Carolina are organized for any emergency, says Dr. I. O. Schaub, director of the State College Extension Service. They are ready to meet any call for contributions to National defense in the form of food, feed and the materials for clothing. They have been preparing for such a call in recent years. They have experienced leadership to do the job, he declared.

Dr. Schaub said that the National Farm Program has enabled farmers to become better organized and more ready to work together than at any time in history. He also pointed out that, through the Agricultural Conservation Program, the fertility of the soil has been built up to where the necessities of war could be produced in greater quantities, with less time and expense.

"Our Extension organization was only three years old when the United States entered the first World War in 1917," Dr. Schaub continued. "Yet, with limited personnel and experience, the farm and home agents and subject matter specialists provided efficient leadership in that great crisis. Farm and home demonstration work is now 26 years old, and we have an organization of trained agents, specialists and administrators. Every county in the State is organized for Extension work."

"Many of the farm and home agents, canning and clothing specialists, and others who directed emergency activities of rural people in 1917 and 1918, and again during the depression years, are still with the organization. They did their jobs efficiently then; they have the confidence of the farm people, and are ready to lead again."

"It will not be necessary to set up new services, or new organizations of farmers to carry on agriculture's part of the National defense program."
