NO BUSINESS ABOVE GOVERNMENT

There are individuals in this country who believe business should be operated by, and for the benefit of, wealth. They include many wealthy individuals, the employes of wealth and, it may be said, the beneficiaries of wealth distributed in the form of gifts, donations and other largesses.

If any American takes time out for thinking, it should be obvious that the government of any country must have powers superior to any part of the governed nation. This applies to business as well as to individuals. Whenever any business, or group of business leaders, acquire the idea that it, or they, are above the government itself, the time has come for the government of this country to assert its power.

"GOLD STAR MOTHERS' DAY"

Sunday, September 29, has been designated by the President as "Gold Star Mothers' Day" and the people of the nation have been requested to give suitable expression "to the love, sorrow and reverence of the people of the United States for the Gold Star Mothers."

This is an occasion that should not be overlooked. The men who gave their lives for this country, during the first World War, should never be forgotten and, just as important, the people of this country should not hesitate to accord full honors to the mothers of the heroic dead.

The honor that the nation often displays for its living veterans is all right and they have been generously provided for by a grateful government. There should be some public recognition of the great sacrifice that other men made at the price of tears and sorrow for many others. It is right that Farmville, in this grave period, should not forget to honor its Gold Star Mothers.

THE DRAFT IN PEACE

Now that the President has signed the selective service draft act, the United States, for the first time in a year of peace, has resorted to compulsory military service in connection with national defense.

That public opinion approves this legislation is almost self-evident. The developments of modern warfare have convinced American mothers that it would be criminal to send untrained soldiers against seasoned veterans. They do not want war, but if war comes, they insist that their sons have, at least, an even chance.

The demand in some quarters for a trial of the volunteer system merely indicates, in our opinion, that these fellows haven't caught up with world events, or else that they wanted to postpone the draft until after the election. There is no use in trying the volunteer system; it is the amateur way of preparing for war and if this country becomes involved in war in the next few years, it will be no amateur affair.

The silly charge that operation of the draft law will be a disgrace to the youth of the land and a reflection on their patriotism has nothing in it that we can fashion. The draft law operates equally upon every citizen of the republic, within the age limits, whether rich or poor. It is a democratic procedure. It permits the selection of a best quality of men from the type

Year Around Income From The Cotton Crop

Farmers and livestock raisers are not the only ones who benefit from the North Carolina's new agriculture that blends livestock production with the growing of cotton.

"Cotton picking time," the South's traditional herald of better business conditions in towns and cities, as well as income for farmers and workers, is beginning to have a new meaning, say State College Extension workers.

With the blending of livestock and cotton, farm income and farm purchasing power are spread over twelve months of the year, to the benefit of the entire community. Fall business still continues to reflect the major importance of lint cotton and cottonseed as dependable cash crops; but butter and eggs, beef, lamb, pork and poultry sales are contributing to a steady farm employment, farm revenue and to the trade of merchants throughout the year.

The use of cottonseed illustrates how "blended" farming benefits the entire community. Sales of cottonseed to the oil mills provide ready cash in the late summer and fall, as well as employment at the mill. Then, by obtaining a supply of cottonseed feed products, cotton growers lay the foundation for future income during the winter, spring and summer.

Fed in balanced rations with farm grains and roughages, cottonseed meal and hulls are converted into varied sources of income. For instance, dairy cows transform the feeding nutrients into milk and butter for year round cash sales. In feed lots, and on cotton farms, beef is produced for home use, and for sale. Farm flocks of sheep may also convert cottonseed meal into lamb and wool clips; while the efficient protein furnished by cottonseed meal now aids in the economical production of firm pork from farm hogs.

In these ways, as well as through the fertility restored to the soil through the feeding of livestock and the direct use of cottonseed meal as a fertilizer, cotton contributes to improved agricultural and business conditions. With the blending of livestock and cotton farming, this contribution is not limited to the autumn, when the economic importance of cotton is generally recognized, but extends throughout the entire year, from one cotton picking to the next.

CELEBRATES THIRD BIRTHDAY

Anne Whittelsey Morgan, lovely little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Morgan, Jr., celebrated her third birthday on Wednesday, at a party which was attended by thirty-five of her friends, including several Wilson cousins.

The small hostess received her guests and after all had arrived, invited them into the dining room, which was aglow with candlelight from thirty-five pink tapers on thirty-five individual birthday cakes on the dining room table, and from three candles on a large size cake, which marked the place of the hostess. Ice cream was served with the cakes. The table was spread with a white lace cloth and had as a centerpiece a bowl of small pink decorative dahlias, flanked by pink tapers in silver candleabra.

After guests had tried out their favors of horns, they were entertained at a fish pond game.

Announcing the big
NEW FORD 1941 FORD

In some years, some cars take a big jump ahead. The Ford does that for 1941.

It has jumped ahead in size. It's the biggest Ford we've ever built, inside and out. It's wider. It has a longer wheelbase. Its seating room is wider by as much as 7 inches. It has new wide doors and semi-concealed running boards.

You'll notice also a new beauty, achieved by a skilful blending of mass with longer flowing lines. Larger windshield and windows give better vision all around.

One of its biggest advantages is the new soft ride.

New, slower-action springs give a slow, gentle, gliding movement. A newly designed stabilizer helps absorb road shocks, and maintains balance on sharp curves and in cross winds.

More rapid acceleration to match its familiar speed and power makes this new Ford an even livelier car to drive.

These are only a few of this new car's outstanding features. It represents all the rich experience gained in building more than 28 million motor cars.

Any Ford dealer can give you many good reasons for making this your 1941 car.
