Some business succeed in spite of the way they are operated.

Taxes are wonderful until some legislator devises a plan to tax you.

The position of France, as we gather it, is that Vichy is ready to fight for its colonial possessions if the British threaten them.

BUSINESS PROFITS

The regular quarterly compilation of business profits, tabulated by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, covers 441 industrial and mercantile corporations.

It reveals that the profits of these concerns, during the first three months of the present year, were 16 per cent above the same period of last year and the highest of any initial quarterly period since 1929.

WHERE THE U. S. STANDS

The position of the United States, in relation to the present war in Europe, may be summed up as follows:

- (1) The outcome of the struggle will determine who will regulate the world for many years.
- (2) The main interests of the United States in the post-war world are identical with those of Great Britain.
- (3) A German victory would mean German control of the seas and the restriction of American commerce.
- (4) From a selfish standpoint, it is necessary that the United States aid the British to defeat Hitler in order to have a chance to avoid staggering armaments or a stupendous war.
- (5) American aid will be sent to Great Britain, regardless of German threats and attacks upon American ships will begin a fight.
- (6) Shooting incidents in connection with getting goods to Great Britain may result in an undeclared war, with our objectives limited to protecting our commerce.
- (7) The safety and security of this hemisphere will not permit Hitler to acquire Iceland, the Azores, or the Cape Verde Islands, and possibly, Dakar on the West Coast of Africa.
- (8) While every effort will be made to avoid forcing Japan to join in the struggle, there will be no appeasement of Japan at the expense of the British, the Dutch, or the United States, in the Far East.
- (9) American defense production will be vastly extended and our forces—Army, Navy and Air Corps—will be enlarged and ready for protective action whenever and wherever required.
- (10) At this time there is little idea that American soldiers will ever participate in the battles of Europe, but will be sent anywhere, if necessary, to protect this hemisphere by preventing potential enemies from securing dangerous bases.

JUNE DAY IN CAROLINA

White fleecy sails touched with gold
Gliding on a sea of startling blue,
A soft sweet murmuring breeze,
heavily laden
With honey-suckle, juicy apples,
Ripening plums of brilliant hue;
The freshness of green cabbage,
Petunias and sweet alyssum
Fragrantly mingled—
Somewhere a robin's song—
A bobwhite's call—
How could anything be singled!
And all about a glow—
As if the sun had burst,
Shedding its radiance below.

—Grace S. Carraway.

Boom In Cotton Goods Seen

Cotton farmers of North Carolina are expected to stimulate a boom in sales of cotton goods in stores when they start trading in their cotton stamps for wearing apparel, such as is pictured above. The Triple-A program, of which E. Y. Floyd of N. C. State College is North Carolina executive officer, will distribute cotton stamps to farmers who voluntarily reduce their cotton acreage below their 1941 AAA allotments. The stamps are redeemable at retail stores for new articles, made entirely of cotton, grown and manufactured in the United States.

Certainly I can buy at wholesale—and just as certainly I do not and won't, because I cannot help my community that way, and my institution can progress only as does my community.

It may seem hard to pass up a chance for a sizable dollar saving on a purchase—but the profit is the money that stays in town, and that's the money that builds up our community.
