State College Hints For Farm Homemakers

By Ruth Current, N. C. State College

White spots on varnished furni-ture may be caused by standing water, hot dishes on alcohol, according to wood experts and furnishings spe-italists.

cialists.

If the spots are slight, they may be removed simply by rubbing with camphorated oil or oil of peppermint—get 10c worth at the drug store. Or they may disappear when the surface of the furniture is washed with a mixture of 1 quart of warm water; 3 tablespoons of boiled linseed oil, and 1 tablespoon of turpentine; then dried with a soft dry cloth, and rubbed with furniture polish.

For more severe white spots a mixture that may be used is salt and saled oil. Dip the finger in oil, then in salt, and rub. Repeat until the spot disappears. Then dry and polish. Or use a paste made of powdered pumice and linesed oil, and rub over the spot with the finger or soft cloth said the spot disappears. Don't rub too hard—you might remove the varnish.

A good tailor does not press wool completely dry, for it scorehes very easily. Rather, he lifts the wool garment from the pressing board while the last bit of steam is still rising from it. Then he puts or beats out that little whiff of steam with his hand. This keeps the wool from having a hand-pressed look.

It is a good idea to be particular shout the cloths used for pressing. When using new material for this purpose, wash and rinse it thoroughly so that not a bit of starch or assing remains. Keep the cloths close always and wash out every trace of scorels, if by any chance the iron gots too hot. A scorched cloth can discolor the garment underneath.
