We do not think it morbid when people inquire about our preparation room... many have asked to see it. For those who have not seen it, we might describe it as a laboratory, as sanitary, sterile and private as an operating room in a modern hospital.

The Story Behind The Red Poppy

There is a story behind every one of the little red poppies which the citizens of Farmville will wear in honor of the war dead on Saturday, May 25, Poppy Day.

Each poppy is different and has its own story, explained Miss Mamie Davis, President of Farmville Unit of the American Legion Auxiliary, which is completing preparations for observance of Poppy Day here.

The poppies have been received at American Legion headquarters here from Fayetteville, where they were made by disabled veterans of both world wars. Miss Davis told about them as they were being sorted, counted and made ready for distribution.

"As they are made by hand, no two of the flowers are exactly alike," she said. "Some come from the hands of men who were hurt 28 years ago in the battles of the first world war. Others have been shaped by young veterans injured in Europe or in the Pacific in the second conflict, who made poppies this year for the first time. If we could know the stories of all those veterans, old and young, they would make an epic of service and suffering for the security of America."

"Making the poppies has two important benefits for the disabled veterans," Miss Davis continued. "First, it enables them to earn money. The American Legion Auxiliary pays them for every poppy they make. To actually earn some money again is an encouraging experience for these men, after long months of helplessness. Most of them send the money home to their families."

"Second, the work is valuable as occupational therapy. It occupies their hands and minds and helps them get well."

"I hope everyone who puts on a poppy on Poppy Day will look closely at the little flower and think of the men who make the poppies, what they have been through and what they are still enduring because of their war service. Then it will be understood that the poppy is not just a machine-made tag, but a carefully shaped symbol of remembrance made by the disabled in honor of their departed comrades."

Turkey Breeding On Upgrade In Alexander

Turkey raising is off to a good start in Alexander and surrounding counties this year, according to a report by County Agent H. C. Colvard of the State College Extension Service.

Better poultry have been secured and in many cases, better rearing methods are being followed, Colvard said.

Farmers in the Stoney Point section of Alexander County have started larger numbers of poults and thus far this season have observed encouraging results. Sledge Smith will produce about 2,000 turkeys, Jack Lackey, 600; W. H. Norton, 1,200, and Everette Grant, 500.

"Lackey is raising his flock in two broods of 800 each in range shelters," the county agent reported. "Smooth surface roofing was placed over the wire floor on which crushed corn-cobs are being used for litter. The sides of the shelter are enclosed by glass cloth which permit the penetration of beneficial sunlight. Leg weakness in the birds is almost entirely eliminated when all-day sunlight is permitted to bathe the turkey house."

"An oil-burning brooder is used in each house to maintain even temperatures during days of variable spring weather."

Smith is following similar production practices except that five of his seven pens of turkeys are being reared in an enclosed structure originally used as a dressing plant. These birds get extra daily rations of cod liver oil to offset the difference in sunlight.

Thus far in the season, losses to producers have been exceptionally low.

STATE COLLEGE ANSWERS TIMELY FARM QUESTIONS

QUESTION: What is the best means of controlling the cabbage or "tarrapin" bug?

ANSWER: James T. Conroy, Jr., new Extension entomologist at State College, says that the relatively new sabadilla dust in 10 and 20 per cent solutions for application now to cabbage, collard, turnip and other leafy crops is the best controlling agent. The 10 per cent dust is best for infestations by older bugs. The 20 per cent dust for newer infestations. Dusting now will control the bugs which strike hardest during June, July and August.

QUESTION: May home-grown strawberry plants be used successfully in this state?

ANSWER: Yes, decidedly. Growers in the Chatham-Wallice area lost more than $100,000 in this year's crop by importing strains of plants which proved to be sterile but which had been advertised as "improved" types of established varieties. Home-grown plants will be highly satisfactory provided inspections for the control of disease and insects are properly made.

QUESTION: Why are North Carolina poultrymen having trouble getting chicks from the Rice Leghorn Farm in Missouri?

ANSWER: Because that firm does not yet have the proper labels or pullover control certificates from the Missouri Livestock Sanitary Board. North Carolina law requires certification that chicks brought into the state shall have less than two per cent pullorum infection. The same requirements are applicable to state hatcheries.

Old Alfalfa Theory Disapproved In Madison

The old theory that alfalfa would grow on well-drained "super-productive" soils, has been conclusively disapproved this year by Madison County farmers, according to Assistant County Agent John E. Walker of the State College Extension Service. "Several Madison farmers have had marked success in growing alfalfa on relatively thin land by using lime, phosphate and potash liberally," Walker declared.

Olin Jarrett of Rt. 1, Marshall, seeded 10 acres of alfalfa in thin, hillside land in March, 1944, and in four summer cuttings last year harvested more than three tons of hay per acre. Contending that "it is much cheaper to buy lime, phosphate, borax and potash than it is to take tobacco money and buy hay," Jarrett followed an intensive fertilization plan and used high quality Kansas seed.

In the spring of 1944 his well-limed alfalfa land was treated with 500 pounds of 20 per cent phosphate, 500 pounds of 50 per cent murate of potash and 25 pounds of agricultural borax to the acre. A year later, 400 pounds of phosphate and another 500 pounds of potash per acre were added.

R. R. Ramsey, Walnut Community dairyman, who seeded alfalfa on a hillside last September, now has a fine even crop averaging well above a foot in height. He also applied recommended fertilizers liberally.

E. W. Reems of Piney Grove proved to his own satisfaction in producing a five-acre crop of alfalfa that his crops simply will not grow in acid land unless lime is applied. Annual applications of lime were made in the field for three years prior to seeding. A quarter-acre plot which was deliberately not limed, now is devoid of alfalfa while the remainder of the field is green with a healthy crop.

The Yancey County Guernsey Association recently sold 26 good animals of that breed for an average of $261 each.

The soft coal strike has already been reflected in the reduced supplies of fertilizers coming into North Carolina.

College Cows Win National Approval

The Holstein-Friesian Association of America has announced that two registered Holstein cows in the dairy herd at North Carolina State College, Raleigh, have recently completed official production records in herd test of more than 400 pounds of butterfat.

The highest producer of the two was North Carolina Echo 7th 2097439, with a record of 471 pounds of butterfat and 13,225 pounds of milk. This is more than two and a half times the production of the nation's average cow. The record was made in 365 days at two milkings daily. Echo 7th is four years and 11 months of age and was sired by the famous Osbornedale Daniel Inka May, 726892.

The second high producer is North Carolina Echo 2nd, 1770760, with 448 pounds of butterfat and 12,391 pounds of milk, made in 344 days on twice daily milkings. Echo 2nd is nine years, 11 months old, and was sired by North Carolina State Butterboy, 647045.

These and other purebred animals of various types have been used in a 20-year-old program to bolster private herds in the state. Despite the sale of many of its top animals to farmers over the years, the college herds have been gradually improved by the introduction of improved breeding stock.
