FARM LEADERS DISCUSS LEAF FERTILIZER GRADES

Agricultural leaders and representatives of the State Grange and the N. C. Farm Bureau Federation at a meeting in Raleigh voted to recommend that the State Board of Agriculture keep the chlorine content of field tobacco fertilizer at a maximum of three per cent and that of tobacco top-dresser at five per cent.

The meeting was called by Assistant Commissioner of Agriculture D. S. Coltrane to obtain information on the wishes of farmers regarding fertilizer grades which will be adopted by the State Board of Agriculture.

In explaining the recommendations of the Experiment Station, Dr. Ralph Cummings, assistant director, pointed out that the Tobacco Work Conference, which is composed of agronomists from several Southern states, had agreed two per cent chlorine should be the maximum used in tobacco field fertilizers except in unusual circumstances, when it might be permissible to go up to 3 per cent. He added that the five per cent chlorine content which has been permitted in tobacco top-dressings was two per cent over the maximum regarded as favorable and was permitted only to offset diminished supplies of sulphate of potash.

While there was some feeling at the meeting that fertilizer companies should be permitted a wider range in their own experiments, it was the consensus of the group that the quality of the tobacco being produced should be given first consideration.

T. W. Allen, of Creedmoor, speaking for the Grange, said: "I am absolutely opposed to our appropriating large sums of money to the N. C. Experiment Station, and then to disregard its findings."

G. T. Scott, director of the State Production and Marketing Administration, said that although quantity has meant much during the past two years, "the time is not far distant when quality will come back into its own again."

Dr. Cummings expressed the opinion that sufficient sulphate of potash is coming into North Carolina to care for the needs of tobacco and that, consequently, it should not be necessary to increase the chlorine content of tobacco fertilizer if this sulphate of potash supply is given correct distribution.

Carl Hicks, Farm Bureau official of Walstonburg, said that the fertilizer industry "has made great strides in providing the farmers with better fertilizer, and I think we should permit the manufacturers some freedom in formulating their tobacco grades."

However, Alonzo Edwards of Hookerton, legislator and Farm Bureau leader, expressed the fear that fertilizer companies would devote too much attention to the quantity of tobacco produced instead of to the quality of this tobacco, and this position was agreed to by W. W. Eagles of Macesfield, president of the State Farm Bureau, who remarked that "we must look at tobacco from the long-run basis."
