No Relief Soon From State Meat Famine
 Raleigh, Oct. 10.—Speaking at the first general meeting of the North Carolina Meat Processors and Dealers Association held here recently, T. S. Johnson, State OPA director, said that "even if price controls were lifted from all meat, this action would have little or no effect on the local supply of meat available to the public."
 Johnson declared that meat which would normally be in butchers' cases today was slaughtered and eaten during mid-summer when no price ceilings were in effect. He said further that he could see no immediate relief from the meat famine even if producers could sell the product at their own prices.
 The meeting, which was presided over by A. B. Brady of Chadbourn, president of the organization, attracted abattoir operators and meat dealers from throughout the State.
 Lt. Governor L. Y. Ballentine pointed to the need for improvement of slaughter facilities in this State, and he expressed the opinion that more attention should be given to native grown beef and pork.
 "The livestock industry is 'fenced out' because of inadequate facilities for local handling," said Ballentine. Agriculture Commissioner W. Kerr Scott asserted that growth of the livestock industry in this State has been retarded because of an indifferent attitude toward the processing of meat.
 Scott said that markets must be established if a stable livestock industry is to be built in North Carolina.
 Other speakers at the meeting included Paul Kelly, of the State Department of Conservation and Development, who discussed the expansion of packing plants in relation to the State's economy, and Dr. Dan E. Brady, of State College, who talked on the necessity of proper slaughter of meat and the relationship of freezer locker plants to the meat industry of this State.
 The association passed a resolution saying it would give "every preference reasonable and practicable to supplying meat to the hospitals and school lunch programs."
 The group also went on record as favoring the de-control of meat or a re-writing of the regulations "to permit us to stay in-business and at the same time furnish North Carolina meat for the North Carolina table."

BIRD CLUB
 Two new members, Leslie Allen Driver and Bill Morgan were welcomed into the Bird Club, Saturday morning.
 Chandler Cox, as reader, gave an interesting talk on the handsome, amiable, industrious, useful Maryland Yellow Throat whose length is four and three-quarter inches. Its upper parts are olive green while the under parts are a lovely contrast of yellow and buff.
 The bill is decidedly shorter than the head. Wings and tail appear to be almost the same length and are very short and rounded.
 This bird cleverly builds a large and bulky nest, placing it on a raised platform, generally in a damp location. The platform is constructed of dried grass and leaves and is carefully hidden beneath a tussock or patch of briars. Three to five eggs, shiny white, speckled and blotched with chestnut, purplish-black, brown and lilac, are laid in the nest, which is constructed of coarse grass, leaves, rootlets and lined with fine grass and hair.
 The male Maryland Yellow Throat is quite conspicuous with his bright yellow waistcoat and black mask drawn over his eyes. A distinct interest and friendliness in human beings is manifested by this bird, provided they keep at what he considers a safe distance.
 Pictures of colored birds, the insects they devour and the buried shrubs used for food were shown. A walk through the yard to locate birds for study was made.
 Building bird houses and swinging in the rope tree swing concluded the meeting.

NOTE OF THANKS
 I wish to express appreciation to my friends for their many expressions of love by cards, flowers and prayers during my illness.
 May God bless every one.

 J. Archibald Joyner, Secretary & Treasurer
 Joyner Mutual Burial Association, Inc.
 Farmville, North Carolina
 Dear Sir:
 Please accept my congratulations in your success in organizing a burial association for the colored people of Farmville and the community. This has been long needed here in Farmville and knowing the reputation of your officers, I do not hesitate to recommend membership in your organization and trust that your people will support the home town corporation and especially the Joyner Mutual Burial Association, Inc., because I can gladly say that they are putting forth every effort to give a real needed service and the members of this corporation have proven themselves worthy of the patronage and support.
 I further state that this much needed service is a big asset to this community.
 Wishing for you and your members a most successful enterprise.
 Yours very truly,
 TOWN OF FARMVILLE
