State College Hints To Farm Homemakers

By Verna Stanton N. C. State College. Labels on cans and packages give the exact weight of contents and should be used as a guide in estimating cost. Check cost per ounce or pound.

The cost of food is no measure of its food value. For example: cheap cuts of meat have the same food value as expensive cuts from the same animal. Brown and white eggs have the same food value.

A well-centered yolk is what every cook wants in a hard-cooked egg for deviling or stuffing. If the yolk is too far offside, the white is likely to break through during the stuffing process. The quality of the egg rather than the method of cooking determines the position of the yolk, say poultry specialists. In an egg of Grade A or AA quality, the white is thick and holds the yolk in place. As the quality deteriorates from lack of refrigeration and aging, the white becomes thinner and allows the yolk to float. When such an egg is cooked on its side, the yolk rises to the upper side of the shell.
