BIRD NOTES

The widespread interest in the conservation of wild birds has grown rapidly. This interest is manifested in the propagation of various game birds on private and public properties, in the building and erection of innumerable boxes for the convenience of nesting birds and in the constantly increasing financial support given to the National Association of Audubon Societies and its many affiliated state and local bird protection clubs throughout the country.

A lively curiosity has spread among all classes of thinking people as to the names of the birds they see, what they feed on and something of their coming and going, resulting in a great demand for bird books.

The earlier legislative enactments for bird protection in the United States dealt almost entirely with game birds. So persistently was this class of birds shot, trapped and netted after the coming of the Europeans, that it became necessary to take measures of restriction in order to preserve these birds for posterity.

Only at certain seasons of the year birds can be killed, thus affording them protection during the incubation period and the time of caring for the young. Certain methods of capture are forbidden—"fire lighting" at night, netting and shooting into flocks with large swivel guns. A limit is made on the number that may be taken in a day or season.

About the middle eighties, public attention was drawn strongly to the desirability of preserving the group known as "non-game birds." The Audubon Society began to arouse public sentiment on the subject, with the result that the law usually known as the Audubon, and which has for its purpose the protection of this large group of birds, was enacted in the legislature of almost all the states.

The best place to study birds is on a Bird Reservation, for there they have lost fear of man. In thousands of door yards throughout the country, wild birds, won by kind treatment, now take food and drink with a few feet of their human protectors. This is because the door yards have been made little bird reservations. By putting out food and water, all homeowners can make birds feel at home in their yards.

CLUBS and PARTIES

Contract Club
 Camellia Japonica, narcissus and evergreens were used as an effective setting for the Contract Club, Tuesday afternoon, when Mrs. Arthur F. Joyner, was a gracious hostess for two tables.

Compiling high score, Mrs. Marvin Jones, received an apron and the low award, a cosmetic bag, was given to Mrs. Wesley R. Willis.

Fruit cake, ambrosia, salted nuts and coffee were enjoyed after cards were laid aside.

Junior Woman's
 Plans for the annual March of Dimes dance were discussed at the regular meeting of the club, presided over by Mrs. J. T. Nolen, Tuesday evening. Mrs. Mabrey Pollard and Mrs. George Farr were joint hostesses in the former's home.

After the meeting was opened with the pledge, Mrs. R. T. Williams gave a report on Girl Scout activities. A collection for schools in China, Korea and other countries, where the pupils lack such essentials as pencils, paper and books, was taken. Mrs. Curtis Flanagan read a message from the North Carolina Clubwoman, which was written by the state president of the Juniors. She also had charge of the program, using "What is the Individual's Part in Maintaining Peace?" as her subject. The members were reminded that each is of foreign descent and each was asked to trace her lineage.

The hostesses served chocolate cake, mixed nuts, pickles and coffee after adjournment by repeating of the Collect.

Lamrad
 Mrs. A. C. Monk, Jr., graciously entertained the Lamrad Club and a guest, Miss Elizabeth Davis, Friday afternoon, in her home which was attractive with potted plants.

Mrs. George Moore, Jr., was high scorer for the afternoon.

Strawberry shortcake, cheese straws, stuffed dates, nuts and coffee were served during a delightful social hour.

U. D. C.

The January meeting of the Rebecca Winbourne Chapter, U. D. C., was held Friday with Mrs. A. C. Monk, Sr., as the gracious hostess.

Lovely specimen camellias were in effective arrangements throughout the Monk home.

Reports of special committee activities during the Yuletide were presented by the chairmen. Miss Annie Perkins presided and announced the subject topic as "Outstanding Achievements of the Confederacy," with Mrs. J. W. Parker as program leader of the afternoon. Mrs. J. H. Darden read a poem on General Robert E. Lee.

After adjournment the hostess served heavenly hash, ham biscuits, ritz, pickles, stuffed dates and coffee.

New Deal Club
 Mrs. G. L. Gilchrist delightfully entertained members of the New Deal Club, Wednesday and additional guests, Mrs. John D. Dixon, Mrs. H. Neal Howard, and Mrs. Arthur F. Joyner.

Tables were laid with refreshment cloths and centered with miniature arrangements of narcissus and first breath of spring. Following the arrival of guests, the hostess served ambrosia, individual frosted cakes, salted nuts and coffee.

Mrs. L. E. Walston, scoring high for the club and Mrs. Arthur F. Joyner for guests, were awarded potted plants, and Mrs. G. Alex Rouse received note paper as consolation prize.

Mrs. W. M. Willis and Mrs. R. C. Ruffin were cordially received as new members at this time.

Wednesday Afternoon Club
 Mrs. George Moore, Jr., was gracious hostess to the Wednesday Afternoon Club this week, entertaining at her home, in which camellias, pansies and potted plants were arranged with artistic effect.

Mrs. Ben L. Lang won the club award, a crystal vinegar cruet, and Mrs. Irvin Morgan, Jr., the guest prize, a crystal relish dish. Mrs. Charles Edwards scored low and received bric-a-brac.

A delicious pear salad was served with saltines, ham and prune sandwiches, brownies, candies and Russian tea.

Mrs. Wayne Mitchell, Jr., of Kinston, Mrs. Walter Jones, Mrs. Ted Albritton, Mrs. Charles Fitzgerald, Mrs. Charles Edwards and Mrs. Irvin Morgan, Jr., were special guests.

ORDER OF THE EASTERN STAR

Mrs. C. H. Flanagan presided over the regular meeting of the Eastern Star, Friday evening. Reports from the grand and district officers were read. The treasurer gave reports on the amounts contributed to the Masonic and Eastern Star Home and several of its varied funds and the Oxford Orphanage Chapel Fund gift. She also reported the sending of a Christmas gift to Mrs. Bell Ash Peck, adopted guest, who lives at the Masonic Home.

Mrs. J. W. Parker gave a brief summary of the district meeting held in Beaufort in December.

Cards and flowers sent to shut-ins and visits to the sick were mentioned after which the meeting was adjourned.

MOVERS

Mr. and Mrs. Joe H. Bynum and family moved this week from the country to their home at 318 East Home Avenue. Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Freeman, who formerly occupied the residence moved recently to their new home on Lang street.

In too many parts of the world the dove of peace is acting like a game rooster.

Some of the people who fall in love at first sight, wish they had taken a second look.

All married men should carry insurance, but not enough to make the wife rejoice.

Most husbands agree a successful marriage is not so much the mating as the estimating.

Then there was the man who married his deceased wife's sister so he wouldn't have to break in a new set of relations.

PICTURE OF CONTENT
 with a pair of Gainsborough Chairs

It's Sunday morning and you can almost hear the crackle of the newspaper in this picture. Two people very contented with each other... and with their companion, Gainsborough chairs.

At home in every room in the house, the Gainsborough by Tomlinson makes your dream plan successful from the start. And not just by chance is it named after one of the greatest of portrait painters. The Gainsborough is a portrait chair. Its lovely curved lines make you a picture, too.

We would like to show it to you, in several styles of coverings, each with a charm of its own.
