SEVEN PINES R. D. CLUB

The Seven Pines Home Demonstration Club members entertained their husbands at a supper on Tuesday night at 6 o'clock, at the Pullman luncheon.

A color scheme of yellow and green was effectively carried out by the use of cedar and magnolia leaves, yellow roses and yellow candles in crystal holders which were used on each of the tables.

A sumptuous supper of fried chicken, boiled ham, potato salad, pimento sandwiches, sliced tomatoes, pickles, rolls, muffins and hot coffee was served.

Mrs. Clifton Ellis presided and gave the address of welcome to which Ichabod Allen responded. The program consisted of a talk by Mrs. Fred T. Langford, home demonstration agent, on "Good Health through Proper Diet." S. G. Winchester, county agent, spoke on "Soil as Related to the Production of Health Foods."

A clever skit explaining what foods are needed to give the necessary vitamins in order to promote good health was enacted by several of the members. The characters were the patient, Mrs. Johnnie Little, Jr., the doctor, Mrs. Roy Jones; the nurse, Mrs. Howard Garris; the garden leader, Mrs. Bert Little and the home agent, Mrs. Langford.

With Miss Lillian Hines directing, a recreational period featuring games, songs and The Virginia Reel was enjoyed by all.

You must say for most men that they eat what's put in front of them and shut up. This is discouraging when the little woman has attempted something special, but she is rewarded on her off days.

OUR CAPITOL—ONE OF RARE BEAUTY

Let's not remodel the Capitol!

How can we picture the Capitol without the smiling faces of the patients peeping bravely out in late winter near the south entrance? Or what would happen to the tall, stalwart statue of George Washington, 'the father of our country', which stands on a lovely green mound surrounded by the iron fence? Over on the north side the driveway and the plot of azaleas, which add a cheery part of the year, would be gone. Along with all these other things of beauty, would go the stately shade trees, which squirrels enjoy frisking up and down so much.

Nor would there be much room left for the mothers and children and passersby who come to feed the squirrels and pigeons, or just to rest and enjoy the beauty of the Square.

The Doric architecture is recognized by experts as a splendid example of that particular Grecian period; it is so outstanding that the most casual visitor to the Capitol goes away with his sense of beauty enriched. In Texas, so we are told, the legislature at one time voted to have their Capitol painted. When the next legislature convened the painting was incomplete and this body decided not to spend any more money for the project. The Texans realized when the job was incomplete how utterly foolish they were to have allowed a high pressure salesman to talk them into such a thing.

If the wings were added to our Capitol (and we hope they will not be) later on we Tar Heels would reach the same conclusion as the Texans did. Our forefathers handed this structure down to us through the years untouched, and we should hand it on to our children the same way.

As for installing escalators or elevators, if the legislators are too lazy to walk up the steps, they shouldn't be representing us. One lady pointed out that children would find escalators a great source of amusement, because they would be the only ones in Raleigh.

If there is a need for more office space and spending of some of the accumulated revenue, why not erect a new building on Edenton street, facing the square?

Only a few buildings are surrounded by such well kept and beautifully proportioned grounds. Long may the Capitol and its grounds stay as they are!

I . . . experience that general all-pervading sensation of getting up to be hanged, which I have usually found inseparable from untimely rising.—Dickens, The Holly Tree.

Chairman Announces 1947 Poultry Contest

State and regional prizes will be awarded to winners of this year's "Chicken of Tomorrow" Contest which will be climaxed with a dressed poultry show the week of June 16-21, it was announced this week by C. J. Maupin, state chairman, and poultry specialist for the State College Extension Service.

Outstanding entries from each of the twelve states grouped in the southeast section will compete in a regional dressed bird show to be held in Georgia, June 23-28, Maupin said. This region includes Tennessee, West Virginia, Virginia, Kentucky, Delaware, Maryland, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Mississippi, and North Carolina.

"There is still plenty of time," Maupin said, "for any breeder, hatcheryman, or flock owner interested in improving meat quality to enter this contest and become eligible for both state and regional prizes." Contest rules call for a minimum of fifty chicks hatched from March 24 to 28, 1947, he added.

Entry blanks and other details can be secured from the state chairman, care of State College, Raleigh.

A New York lady of our acquaintance, tired of the urban clamor, bought a house on the proper street in a small aristocratic Eastern Shore Maryland town.

How women and girls may get wanted relief from functional periodic pain

Check, every woman who has ever suffered from the "cramp-like" pain and nervousness of functional periodic pain. This is a pain, it should stimulate growth, and children's lives help build character for the future. In some cases, it can be a "new star" in a child's life. It is a pain that is not only a nuisance, but it is a part of the woman's life.
