Mrs. J. C. Mann is ill at her home here from effects of a fall suffered last Monday. Miss Hazel McKeel spent several days last week at Carolina Beach. Mr. and Mrs. B. D. S. Dixon spent Sunday with relatives in Rocky Mount. A farmer was anxiously searching for his cow, which had strayed during the night. "Don't worry, said the little girl from the city, 'she can't go far, because I saw a man drain her crankcase last night.'" Two sailors were looking out of a porthole at a floating log. "See that log, Joe?" said one. "It reminds me of Washington." "Washington? You mean it's got a wooden head?" "Nope, came the reply. "If you'll look closely, you'll see that there are 200,000 axes on the log, and each axe thinks he's steering the log." Advice to brides: Always eat breakfast with your husband, even if he prepares the breakfast.
