The scene entirely. Since the war women have bought over 4,500,000 vacuum cleaners by putting their names in lists and waiting for them.

But the time is ripe for salesmen to start wedging the right foot in your front door again, with cleaner in one hand and plug in the other. According to Bret C. Neece, President of the Vacuum Cleaner Manufacturers' Association, the saturation point is about reached for easy sales.

Dealers who don't believe this, he said, "are due for a brutal awakening."

Here's a little something that will find a rich field among women drivers—something salesmen may not find difficult to peddle, despite its price of $69.50. The gadget, its manufacturer claims, will restore the contour of a dented fender within three minutes.

Halloween came early this year in East Cleveland, Ohio. A butcher was surprised to see women lined up for a block in front of his store one morning recently when he arrived at work. He didn't have to look far for the reason. Written in familiar white letters across the window was: "Beefsteak, 32 cents a pound; pork chops, 21 cents; Big Sale Today."

WAA GIVES RADIO EQUIPMENT

War Assets Administration, in cooperation with the Federal Works Agency, is distributing millions of dollars worth of radio and electronic equipment to Southeastern colleges and school systems at little cost to the institutions. L. D. Strom, Zone Administrator, Atlanta, has announced.

Radio transmitters, receivers and miscellaneous electronic devices for which the government paid $113,877, have just been sold to colleges and schools in North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Tennessee, either at a 95 per cent reduction from fair value or for freight charges only, Mr. Strom disclosed.

Markdown sales to educational institutions, said Mr. Strom, will continue at an accelerated rate, and he predicted that the next three months will see an enormous amount of scientific equipment placed in the hands of students for study and research.

Schools under contract with WAA to undertake scientific research will have first priority to obtain equipment. Federal Works Administration, to obtain equipment for schools training veterans, has next priority. In third priority position are state school systems and colleges. Lists showing available equipment may be obtained by universities, colleges, vonational schools and public school systems in Florida, Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee and the Carolinas through their own state procurement agencies.

The South Georgia Trade and Vocational School at Americus received radio and electronic equipment originally valued at $25,000 for five per cent of present fair value.

Electronics equipment and radio units and parts which cost $25,000 originally were sold to the Public School System at Asheville for $75.

The State Educational Agency, Nashville, Tenn., obtained equipment originally valued at $23,153.00. The equipment will be distributed to public schools throughout Tennessee.

Radio and electronics equipment originally valued at $13,296 has just been sold to Columbia Bible College, Columbia, S. C., for transportation costs.

The Citadel, Charleston, S. C., received equipment which cost $7,623 for transportation charges only.

The Negro Agricultural and Mechanical School, Orangeburg, S. C., obtained electronics and radio units which originally cost $4,623.96 for five per cent of present fair value.

WAA and FWA are now in process of filling the electronic and radio equipment orders of Valdosta Vocational School, Valdosta, Ga., Thomas County Vocational School, Thomasville, Ga., Oglethorpe University, Oglethorpe, Ga., North Georgia Vocational School, Clarksville, Ga., Albany Public Schools, Albany, Ga., Auburn Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, Ala., Georgia School of Technology, Atlanta, Ga., and North Georgia College, Dahlonega, Ga.

Institutions may obtain further information by writing Priority Claimants Division, WAA, Atlanta.

BIRD CLUB NOTES

Marion Corbett read about the black skimmer Saturday morning at Bird club. It is a large, long-winged bird, black above and white beneath. The bill of this bird is most unique, both mandibles being thin and flat like a knife-blade, which come together edgewise. The upper one is an inch longer than the upper, and this is pushed forward under the water as the skimmer with open mouth flies along the sea looking for the small animal life upon which it feeds. They never go inland, nor do they travel very far to sea. When skimmers first appear in spring along southern beaches, they come in flocks of hundreds or even thousands. At this season they are very restless and the flocks are continually taking flight from one beach or bar to another, with their shouts fairly drowning the roar of the surf. Their nesting places are situated on sand spits running out from shore or on small isolated islands of sand and sea-shells. The nest is a simple, unlined hollow in the sand which the bird makes by turning its body around many times. The eggs vary from three to five in number and are variously spotted and blotched, no two exactly alike. If the nests are robbed, a second nest is soon made and another clutch of eggs is laid. They are poor fighters and are little disposed to defend aggressively their rights. If a person approaches one of their nesting places, the skimmers will leap into the air and beat down upon him with hoarse cries, but never get near enough to strike one. Sixteen to 20 inches in length, this bird breeds from Virginia to the Gulf coast and Texas. It winters from the Gulf coast to Colima, Mexico and Costa Rica.
