Bureau Fights Price Ceiling On Farm Products

R. Flake Shaw of Greensboro, executive vice president of the North Carolina Farm Bureau, this week is calling on all county leaders and more than 70,000 Farm Bureau members in North Carolina to "go all out against Titles 4 and 5 of the Defense Production Act, which seeks to place unfair price ceilings on farm commodities."

He called on county presidents and secretaries to wire their Congressmen and Senators protesting the possible extension of price and wage controls on the grounds that "they are unworkable, impractical and will not control inflation."

He said that the House of Representatives will begin voting Monday on Amendments to extend this act which he termed as unfair to farmers.

The Farm Bureau leader called attention to a resolution made by the Farm Bureau delegation at a recent meeting in Raleigh which states: "we join with the other 45 states, the American Farm Bureau and other national organizations in our request that Title 4 of the Defense Production Act be terminated. Our justification for this request is based on the fact that price control without wage control is an impossibility, and we do not believe any fair-minded person would claim to date that there has been any evidence that the Administration would try to enforce wage control without the faintest hope of a rollback."

Shaw said that since the Defense Production Act was passed by Congress in 1950 it has done nothing but confuse our whole system of production and marketing throughout the state and nation. He pointed out that inflation has not been controlled in the least and cost-of-living index has continued to rise.

At The Rotary Club

The Rotary club was honored Tuesday night in having as guests 15 Boy Scouts who have been studying and working at Camp Charles.

In the absence of the program chairman, Paul Ewell, Scoutmaster Ed Nash Warren called upon several of the boys to outline some of their activities at camp. Cliff Simpson told about the first day at Camp Charles, and Mack Holmes followed with an interesting summary of a typical day at camp. Harold Flanagan told of some of the general activities and Wilbur Rollins explained how he received a merit badge for rowing. Bert Warren held the interest of the club by going into detail about the life saving methods taught at camp. Many honors were brought back by the local Scouts and Wilbur Rollins and Bert Warren received the single honor of the Order of the Arrow.

Scoutmaster Warren stated that this award was made on the basis of stowed on certain members by the leadership and character and was boys in the camp. Harold Flanagan received this award two years ago, and this time, although he went to camp to further his knowledge of Scouting, he was called upon to act as an assistant to the camp counselor, and did very well in this role.

Horton Rountree, assistant Scoutmaster, was also present, and told something of the fine record of the boys. John Lewis called attention to the baseball games being played at Municipal Park and placed particular emphasis upon the game to be played Saturday night. He urged the Rotarians to support the Jaycees in their efforts to bring baseball to the town. Six members were absent. Charlie Fitzgerald received the attendance prize.

W. M. Orr and Floyd Bingham were visitors from the Kinston club. Jim Redmond of Oak Ridge, Tenn., was a guest of his father-in-law, Frank G. Dupree.

FRONT ENTRANCE OF NEW CHURCH

Presbyterians Will Hold Open House In New Church Sunday Afternoon

First services in the handsome new sanctuary of the Farmville Presbyterian church on Grimmersburg street will be held Sunday morning at 11 o'clock and open house will be held in the afternoon, from 3 to 6 o'clock, at which time the Presbyterians will welcome their friends for an inspection of the new plant.

The educational wing of the new building has been in use for several weeks and church services have been held during that time in the Sunday School assembly room. An earlier opening of the sanctuary was prevented by difficulties experienced in getting pews and other furniture and equipment.

Rev. Edwin Coates and members of his congregation have every reason to be proud of their new church and their friends are cordially invited to visit and inspect the building Sunday afternoon. They will be glad, also, to have as visitors Sunday morning.

those who do not have services in their own church at that time.

Mrs. Emerson Smith is in charge of arrangements for the open house. The new church is built along lines of an English mission, and that idea is followed throughout. In addition to the sanctuary and assembly room, there is a recreation room on the second floor capable of accommodating youth meetings and similar gatherings. The kitchen is equipped with two electric ranges, sink, a refrigerator, and adequate cabinet space. The ladies' parlor, on the first floor also, fills a long-felt need in the church.

The Presbyterians are in accord with the views of one young lady, a visitor, who exclaimed, as she inspected the sanctuary after the furniture had been installed, "Prettiest church I ever saw." The Presbyterians may be a bit partial in their opinion, but the rest of town welcomes the new church as a valuable asset and addition to the town's religious facilities.

"A greater range of everything is offered this season," he said. "Many more designs, a wider selection of woods and fabrics in the greatest variety yet—all will be available."

The Southern Furniture and Rug Market is held in High Point each January and July to display the industry's new creations and established lines to retailers. This is one of the ranking exhibits in the country for the display of wholesale home goods exhibits exclusively for retail stores. Ten acres of floor-space are contained in the 14-story exposition building. More than 400 lines are shown.

"Comfortable living facilities highlighted by the fashion motif in home furnishings summarize the market offerings in general," Joyner stated. "A mixture of modern and traditional styling will be seen, with the modern predominating, together with a great many 20th century designs of native American origin intended especially to fit the changing patterns of living."

Nylon will be seen extensively as well as numerous new, improved fabrics produced by constant research and readily fitting contemporary patterns. It was indicated that there would be a wider variety, too, of metallic yarn, nubby and textured weaves, tweeds and plaids. Bright green, rose, gold and orange-red colors will bring new striking color effects to traditional upholstery shades of gray and beige.

Many of the new offerings, selected carefully to give homemakers top value for their money, will be on display here soon.
