STORY OF FARMVILLE TOBACCO MART ONE OF STEADY DEVELOPMENT

Pitt - Greene Makes Plans For Ten Years Hence

Pitt and Greene Electric Membership Corporation, the local REA Cooperative, is now making plans for 1961. A study is being made to, as accurately as possible, forecast the amount of electric power needed then by its consumers. As improvements to the system are made in the near future, they will be made to care for the anticipated load ten years from now. This means that if larger fire is needed in the near future, a size will be installed which can adequately be a part of the system at that time. The location of loads and power supplies must also be considered in this type of long-range planning.

Pitt and Greene Electric Membership Corporation, along with 16 other member cooperatives of Eastern North Carolina Electric Membership have recently negotiated a contract with the three power companies serving eastern North Carolina. These are Tide Water, Carolina Power and Light, and Virginia Electric and Power Co.

Eastern North Carolina Electric Membership Corporation was organized over two years ago, by 17 REA cooperatives in the eastern part of the State, for the purpose of obtaining adequate, economical, and dependable power for this section of the State. A good bit of thought was given to obtaining power from Bugs Island dam when completed. The power companies insisted that they were willing and able to supply the power themselves, or to "wheel" it from Bugs Island. No satisfactory agreement was reached concerning the "wheeling" of this power, so the five year contracts, recently negotiated, provide that if power can be delivered cheaper by the Government, than under the contract with the power companies, the contract can be terminated.

Pitt and Greene Electric Membership Corp. was operated by the Town of Farmville, under an operating contract until last year. The source of power was the Farmville plant. The Board of Directors hired the present manager, Gilbert Whitley, on June 1, 1950 to administer the Co-op's affairs. On June 16, 1950 the new office at 105 N. Main Street was opened for business. The office force was previously employed by the Town when it was operating the system.

On June 26, 1950 the largest generator in the Co-op's plant suffered a broken crankshaft. The Co-operative immediately started building interconnecting tie lines to other neighboring systems. Within sixteen days seven supply points had been effected for the entire load on an emergency basis. This had required construction of eight singlephase and three-phase tie lines, plus the construction of one sub-station, and conversion of other lines.

The lines were operated thus until February of this year. At this time the Town having repaired its generator, took a part of the load. This relieved the overloaded condition on some of the other sources. At present the Cooperative is receiving power at eight locations from four suppliers, which are: Tide Water, Carolina Power and Light, Town of Greenville, and the Town of Farmville.

According to present plans, when Carolina Power and Light Company has completed its transmission line to Farmville, the cooperative's load will be supplied off this line.

The Cooperative had grown under the Town's operation until the Town officials and the Pitt and Greene Board of Directors were mutually agreed that it should assume its own operations. Since then it has continued to grow, having constructed approximately 25 per cent of the lines and purchase of 100 and Greene Electric Membership Corp. are located in Pitt County. Of the remainder in other counties, 75 per cent are in Wayne County, and the balance in other counties.

Plans are being made to serve the remainder of the un-served rural homes in the Pitt and Greene service area, in addition to the system improvements planned. The percentage of un-served farms is not as great in this section as it is in many other sections; but there are still quite a few un-served. This, plus the need for adequate power, and facilities to supply the increasing demand to the farm people become more aware of the benefits derived from the use of electricity on the farm, will induce a sizeable job to be done by Pitt and Greene Electric Membership Corp. and other rural electric systems all over the nation.

Approximately 25 per cent of the lines and purchase of 100 and Greene Electric Membership Corp. are located in Pitt County. Of the remainder in other counties, 75 per cent are in Wayne County, and the balance in other counties.

SALES SUPERVISOR

Established in 1906 with two small warehouses, Farmville's tobacco market will open its 1951 season next Tuesday with seven large warehouses and a reputation of being the "best tobacco market in the State."

The history of the market shows steady, uninterrupted progress, as the market approaches its 50th anniversary of service and satisfaction.

When the auctioneering center launched its career in 1906, one of the warehouses was operated by C. R. Townsend and the other by Staton and Usher of Oxford. Mr. Townsend operated his house here for several years, later going to Greenville, and finally returning here. He eventually sold his interest to cooperatives.

Staton and Usher operated their house for two years, selling out in 1907 to the late James Y. Monk, who could rightfully be called "Father of the Farmville Market." His reputation as a tobaccoist and a "square shooter" spread like wild-fire throughout the section, and soon growers were bringing their tobacco from many miles to have the opportunity of selling on the local market. The firm which Mr. Monk founded is still active on the market, operating two warehouses.

The late R. L. Davis served as Mr. Monk's partner until 1913, and Monk's Warehouse number 1 was built on West Wilson street. The first season of this warehouse was marked by tragedy. A storm blew down the front of the building, killing two boys and injuring four others.

It was along about this time that R. H. Knott moved to Farmville and established a warehouse which added to the market's facilities and his ability further strengthened the rapidly-growing market. Mr. Knott served the market until his death a few years ago.

Mr. Monk operated Monks 1, with McD. Horton and R. E. Belcher, until 1917, when they sold their interests to J. M. Hobbard, who formed a partnership with Mr. Knott.

The third warehouse was built about 1910 and operated by R. L. Joyner and Timberlake. The four additional warehouses have been built in recent years.

Most of the pioneers of the Farmville market have passed away but their places are being taken by capable warehousemen who are carrying on the reputation of dealing squarely with farmers for whom they are continually getting the high dollar for every pile sold. The Monk houses are operated by James Y. Monk, Jr., R. D. Rouse, and J. C. Carlson. Grover Webb has been added to the management staff this year.

John N. Fountain is serving as manager this year of the Farmers and Fountains Warehouses. Mr. Fountain has served the market for a number of years and his two houses have become popular selling places for the grower.

Two additional warehouses are under the management of L. R. Bell and C. C. Ivey and Brothers. These houses, the newest on the market are located on the Fountain highway. Mr. Bell is an old-time grower and warehouseman who knows what to do with tobacco from the time it is put into the plant bed until the auction party weighs its quality on the warehouse floor. Mr. Bell was on the Goldsboro market, then came back to Farmville.

The seventh warehouse, Planters, is operated by two tobaccoists, well-known to growers. They are W. J. (Jack) Moye and Chester Worthington, who make a good team. They have together for four years been on a quest to the market, as is shown by the ever increasing number of customers who cry for selling space on their floors.

The first pile of tobacco sold on the Farmville market was bought by the late A. C. Monk, whose company today is known as one of the largest independent dealers and exporters in the country. At first, Mr. Monk packed his purchases in hogheads on the warehouse floor. Later, he built a small redrying room on West Wilson street in front of the Texaco service station site. There he operated until one section of the present plant was erected. From this beginning the Monk company continued to expand. Its reputation is maintained today by three sons of the founder—A. C. Monk, Jr., Robert T. Monk and William C. Monk.

In 1917, the J. E. Taylor company erected a plant on Hodge avenue which was operated by C. B. Choudry for several years. W. B. Lee, of Rocky Mount took over this plant, which has since been destroyed by fire.

In 1920, the Farmville Development Company built the plant on West Church street that is now operated by Farmville Tobacco Company. It was built originally for the Hobbard Tobacco company. H. Hobbard is president of Farmville Leaf, a company which today has greatly supplemented the warehouse as a source of strength and stability for the market.

ALL GAMES IN FINAL SERIES TO BE PLAYED HERE

Under the sponsorship of the Jaycees the Bright Belt Playoffs will be held in Farmville. In order that everyone who desires may see all the games, the contestants will play on alternate days. In the first game Friday night at 8 o'clock the league leading Ormondville team will meet Maclesfield, the fourth place team. Maclesfield finished the season surging upward and defeated Ormondville two games by one run each, in the last series they played.

On Saturday night, Farmville, winner of 22 of its last 36 games, and just one-half game out of first place, will meet Pinetops, the third place team. Farmville finished the regular season with two wins over Pinetops and one over Greenville. Norman Clark and Moe Webb pitched for Farmville as they defeated Pinetops, 22-3 and 3-1. Moe Webb limited Pinetops to two hits. Roger Thrift led the hitters by getting two doubles and two triples in five trips to bat in Saturday's game.

Sunday, Ormondville and Maclesfield will again meet in the local park. Farmville and Pinetops play on Monday night. The teams alternate until the winners of the best three of five contests are determined.

FOOTBALL PRACTICE

Initial drill for 1951 edition of Farmville High Red Devil Football Squad will be on Wednesday, August 22, at 4 o'clock.

Advance indications point to a large turnout of grid hopefuls. This group will be headed by nine returning lettermen who will form the nucleus of the '51 team. These experienced boys are: Paschall Barrett, center; Jack Allen, back; James Fountain, tackle; Roy Vick, end; Joe Smith, back; Charlie Fitzgerald, back; Sighe Dilda, back; Gene Meeks, back and Jimmy Allen, end. Some boys who played on last year's Midget team, along with non-lettermen of last year, plus several newcomers will complete the squad. Several of these latter named boys, in all probability will break into the starting lineup.

The main problem this year will be to find adequate replacements for the graduates of last year. Eight lettermen of last year's squad have graduated and boys of the calibre of Roy Flora, Bobby Fulford, Harvey L. Webb and Richard Oakley are not easily replaced.
