Tournament Committee Appointed by Jaycees

A steering committee for the Fifth Annual Gold Medal Basketball Tournament, sponsored by the Jaycees at the local high school, was appointed at the regular meeting Thursday night of last week. Heading the committee is Elbert Moyer. Others on the committee are Jack Tyson, Harry May, Marvin Speight, Harold Rouse and Rom Webber, will be ex-officio members.

President Emerson Smith presided and welcomed the guests, Rev. Frank M. Ross, Rev. J. H. Waldrop, F. T. Carr and Willard Lane. No action was taken on a number of possible projects discussed at the meeting. Joe Joyner, C. W. Casper and C. J. Rasberry were appointed to serve on a committee to investigate the possibility of holding a public speaking contest in the high school in connection with the nationally-sponsored Voice For Democracy program.

It was announced that the total membership of the club is now 95 and that the team ratings in points are 136-133, with the team that C. W. Casper heads still in the lead.

At The Rotary Club

Members of the Rotary-sponsored Little League Baseball Team were guests of the club at their regular meeting Tuesday night. Edwin Mall who is responsible for the organization of the Little League Club in Farmville this year was also an honored guest.

Walter Jones on behalf of the club expressed appreciation for the splendid record of the Rotary team which tied for first place in the season play with the Veterans' team. Jones explained that tokens of the club's appreciation, small silver baseballs, did not arrive in time for the meeting but would be given to them later. Thanks were expressed to Mr. Mall for his efforts in working with and for the boys and Coach Elbert Moyer was also thanked for his splendid leadership.

Members of the team present were: Troy Dail, Erwin Allen, Gus Hoebeck, J. Y. Monk, Jr., Ray Mewborn, Joe Flake, Walter Jones and Donnie Fulford. Members of the team not present are: Eddie Thomas, Todd Holmes, and Tommy and Sammy Wainwright.

James Monk was in charge of the program and most appropriately showed a film of the highlights of the State College Basketball 1950-51 season. The film stressed team work and sportsmanship.

Eli Joyner, Jr., acting Fellowship Chairman, announced that G. A. Rouse and Jack McDavid had observed birthdays and R. A. Joyner, Cleveland Paylor and Mr. McDavid had observed wedding anniversaries during the past week.

Donnie Fulford won the attendance prize. President Charlie Rasberry presided over the meeting and Bill Kennedy, local recreational director, was another guest.

MISS FAYNE SUGGS SPEAKER AT WALSTONBURG MEN'S CLUB

Miss Fayne Suggs, superintendent of the Greene County Welfare Department, was guest speaker at the Walstonburg Men's Club meeting, Tuesday night. Sheriff of Greene County, Kirby Cobb, and Miss Evelyn Fields of Walstonburg, were also guests. Truett Lang, president, and Richmond Holloman, vice-president, presided over the business that followed the supper. The meeting was held in the school lunchroom.

Miss Suggs gave an over-all picture of the work of the welfare department in Greene County and presented some plans for the future. Following her talk an open discussion was held, in which questions were enthusiastically discussed.

Bruton Taylor was the supper host.

Farmville High School Football Practice Begins Wed., Aug. 20

The Farmville high school football squad will begin practice Wednesday, August 20. Equipment will be issued at the gym at 2 p.m. This year's squad will be composed of a young group of boys. There will be nine lettersmen missing from last year's squad which won 5 and lost 4. The backfield will be headed by such boys as Charlie Fitzgerald, Sigbe Dilda, Jess Joyner and Carroll Allen. The line will be led by Billy Shackelford, Jess Spencer, Jimmy Allen, W. Allen, Carroll Wooten, M. Tagwell and Dennis Walston. Teddy Allen to the boy who is capable of filling any position.

This group promises to be a most interesting group to work with, possessing plenty of spirit and determination. There are many other boys who are capable of breaking into the starting lineup and will see much action during the season.

The team will use the split "T" formation, a formation that the boys are familiar with. The "Red Devils" have what is considered the best schedule in years. There will be five home games. The schedule is as follows:

- September 12—Norlina, there.
- September 19—S. Edgecombe, here.
- September 26—Snow Hill, here.
- October 2—Morehead City, here.
- October 10—Robersonville, there.
- October 17—Ayden, there.
- October 24—Vanceboro, here.
- October 31—LaGrange, here.
- November 7—Scotland Neck, there.

Farmville's Warehousemen, Tobaccoists Prepared To Defend Title of 'World's Best Market'; Sales Begin Thursday

Jim Edwards One Of State's Oldest Auctioneers

A regular tobacco auctioneer who went on a "blitz" during the 1907 sales season and failed to show up for work one morning on the Farmville market was directly responsible for launching Jim Edwards on a successful career which continued until 1950, when he went into semi-retirement because his eyes were so dim he had difficulty making out the buyers' signs.

But Edwards, one of the best known auctioneers in the fine-cured belt and whose continuous record with one warehouse is probably unsurpassed in the tobacco-selling world, is still interested in the "game" and will be around to greet his friends when the Farmville market opens next Thursday morning.

Edwards, a painter by trade who learned the chant as a boy at warehouses in his home town of Henderson, began his auctioneering career in Monks Warehouse that was situated on the West Wilson street lot where Jimmy Lewis' service station stands now. His first full season of work, however, was with Dick Joyner and Tompkins, in 1908. The following year he went back to work for the late J. Y. Monk and remained as the firm's auctioneer for more than 40 years. He saw the first pile of tobacco bought in Farmville. Bill Fenner was the auctioneer, the late A. C. Monk the buyer.

When Edwards first began auctioneering, 10c-bids were made on tobacco. Later, this was increased to 25 cents. The chant, likewise, has increased as sales have been speeded up.

Despite the years he has devoted to the tobacco business, cigarette merchants would have rough-sliding if they depended upon Edwards' trade. Each Tuesday, he receives a carton of Lucky Strikes as a gift from the American Tobacco Company for an endorsement he gave "Luckies" about 15 years.

Approached on the sales floor one day by a stranger, Edwards was asked how many piles he could sell in one day and what the largest amount he had sold in one day. His answers were 500 or 600 piles and 450,000 pounds. Next the stranger asked the length of the warehouse. Told it was 350 feet, he calculated that Edwards must have walked the distance to California and back selling tobacco. Edwards loved as he supposed he had. Then the stranger wanted to know if Edwards smoked. The auctioneer replied that he did. Asked if he smoked Luckies, Edwards pulled a pack from his pocket. By that time, the stranger had identified himself as a representative of the American Tobacco Company and offered him $500 for an endorsement of Luckies. Edwards accepted the offer, gets a carton of Luckies weekly.

That interview also led to a position with the advertising department of the company, and traveled Florida and Georgia, visiting many markets there. He auctioneered with other outstanding auctioneers in Durham and was in Sims made of sales in Durham.

Edwards stated that models who make such lovely creatures in cigarette ads are certainly not the prettiest girls he has ever seen. He says they are just photographic. Edwards traveled with a crew of auctioneers and girls, making pictures and preparing ads. He remarked that on one occasion the troupe used 100-worth of flash bulbs making pictures in the sunshine.

Edwards was born in Warren county, a son of the late James W. and Nannie Marshall Edwards. He lived in Henderson from the time he was 12 years of age till he was 26.

Edwards says he has been out of work during his long career only once, and that was due to an appendicitis operation. During a major military of this kind, he'll be around next Thursday—and his friends sincerely hope nothing will spoil the start of another season for him.

German Teacher Expresses Thanks For Local Hospitality

Miss Ingeborg Huebschenberger of Munster, Germany, was a visitor in Farmville recently. She was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Baker while making a study of educational systems in this county.

During her visit here, she spoke to the local Kiwanis club and as a token of their appreciation of her visit with them and her interest in the educational programs of America, President J. Glasgow Smith presented her with a table model radio.

The German native is a 1947 graduate of Munich Teachers' College and was in the United States under the sponsorship of the U. S. Department of Education along with 150 other German teachers.

Now in New York, Miss Huebschenberger in a letter to the Baker family mentioned Farmville and the Kiwanians. Excerpts from the letter follow:

"It will take me a while to get used to the life in a big city again after the quiet days in the South... and of course there is nobody who will take care of me like the friendly people in Farmville did—especially you, my dear family Baker, who spoiled me like your older daughter. I unpacked, put the radio on the table and while I am listening to Richard Wagner's 'Tristan and Isolde' I think of you and of the Kiwanians. They really spoiled a girl that will always remind me of them."

WAREHOUSE NOTE

Members of the East Carolina Warehouse Association will hold a pre-season opening meeting at the Country Club, Farmville, Tuesday, August 19, at 10:30 a.m. The Board of Directors will meet at 9:30.

The meeting has been called in order that the Stabilization Corporation contract may be presented, discussed and signed, and for the purpose of receiving supplies from the corporation and Tobacco Associates.

Member towns in the association are Ahoakie, Clinton, Dunn, Farmville, Goldsboro, Greenville, Kinston, Robersonville, Rocky Mount, Smithfield, Tarboro, Wallace, Washington, Wendell, Wilson and Williamston.

NEW BUICK DEALER

W. R. Duke, owner of the new Buick agency which will have its formal opening on Friday of next week, is a veteran in the automobile business, having been in the business since 1938. He came to Farmville from Louisiana. He is a native of Wilson, was a key member of the Wilson Lions Club, a Mason and a Baptist. Mr. Duke is a member of the Eastern Star. They have three children. The Duke's will continue to live in Louisiana, with Mr. Duke commuting, until housing is available here.

Sales manager for the new firm is W. R. Champion, also an experienced dealer. Mr. and Mrs. Champion, who have been living in Louisiana, have one child. They are living on Waverly street.

BARN FILLED WITH TOBACCO BURNS ON MAY FARM MON.

A barn filled with tobacco in the curing stage was burned Monday morning on the May farm on the Wilson highway a short distance from town.

Robert, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward May, noticed the smoke coming from the barn and called to his father, who entered the barn before the tobacco burst into flames but who could not prevent it from being ignited. He stated that the fire was caused from a flare-up of the burners, and could not be extinguished by the wet sack he placed over it.

Local firemen answered the call but were unable to save the barn and its contents.

ATTEND JEWELRY SHOW

Mrs. D. B. Morgan and son, Dan, are attending the Jewelry Show in New York City this week.

Farmville, which can continue to boast that it is the best tobacco market in the world as long as it maintains the highest average paid for tobacco, is all ready for the season's opening sales, next Thursday.

All of the town's seven warehouses are ready for the big occasion, and the operators have been busy for several weeks renewing contacts and insuring a satisfactory flow of tobacco for the local buyers.

All of the major buying companies will have representatives on the market, and two full sets of buyers will follow the sales.

Operators anticipate that sales on the opening will be fairly high, but they anticipate a sharp decline until all the tobacco is cured and ready for the floor.

Farmville's seven good warehouses and two sets of buyers are supported by two adequate factories—A. C. Monk and Company, and the Farmville Leaf Tobacco Company—are insurance that growers will get the highest prices for their tobacco.

Last season, Farmville sold more than 29½ million pounds for an official average of $56.72, the highest in the fine-cured belt.

Cuban Pitcher Has Fine Record With Local Club

A 19-year-old Cuban baseball pitcher, whose name few persons in this locale pronounce correctly, is doing a grand job with his country's Good Neighbor Policy as he goes about his job of consistently winning games for Farmville in the Bright Belt. Joe Dominguez, the young hurler, has won the admiration and friendship of local fans for the methodic, "all business" manner with which he handles his pitching chores.

Dominguez, whose habits on the diamond show an intense love for the game, has won six games for the Farmville Red Sox. He reported to the local team when it was in dire need of pitchers, and has been one of the mainstays.

The cool Cuban, whose Spanish temperament has yet to display itself on the baseball field, pitched 21 innings in two nights as a relief hurler. In a Saturday night game here, against Ormondville, Joe relieved in the first inning, with nobody on the base and the score 5-0. He went the nine innings, Farmville losing 7-5. Against the Cherry Point Flyers on the following night, the starting hurler was again having trouble. With the score 6-0 against Farmville and nobody out in the first inning, and the bases loaded, Joe was called to the rescue. He finished that stanza without allowing any more runs, and pitched the rest of the game, which went 12 innings with Farmville winning, 12-11.

Joe, a native of Cananagay, Cuba, won five games last year as a member of the strong Oak Ridge team. Prior to that, he played for the University of Havana, winning 10 games for that institution. It is reliably reported that the Cleveland Indians have offered him a $10,000-bonus, but the offer has been refused.

Dominguez is scheduled to enter Wake Forest in September.

BASEBALL SCHEDULE

Farmville's baseball team, assured of a place in the series play-offs, plays Finestops tonight in the local stadium and meets Stantonburg in an important series this week end.

The series will begin next Wednesday night, with all of the games being played in the local park. It looks now as if Farmville and Stantonburg will play each other, while Ormondville meets Fremont.

REV. W. D. MORTON TO ASSIST AT YOUTH CAMPS

Rev. W. D. Morton will assist with the youth activities at Presbyterian Pioneer Camp on the Neuse River near New Bern next week.

The following week Rev. Morton will assist with the Presbyterian Senior Youth Fellowship work at Camp Don-Lex at Angaphos.
