

GILES WINN BOUND OVER

Negro Alleged to Have Stolen Partner's Coat Containing About $28 in Cash.

Giles Winn, negro, was bound over to the next term of superior court by Mayor Bain yesterday morning on a charge of the larceny of one coat and the sum of $28 in cash from another negro named Will Joyner. Winn was unable to produce a required cash bond of $250, and was held to await trial.

According to the evidence the two negroes had been together for several hours before the alleged theft and had taken a drink or two together. They then entered a house and sat around awhile talking. Both of them had removed their coats and hung them up in the room where they were talking.

After a time Joyner stepped into another room to get a drink of water and when he returned his companion had donned his coat, containing his bank roll and taken French leave. Joyner then swore out a warrant for the missing Winn and he was soon rounded up in the police dragnet.

DEATHS SHOCK LITTLE TOWN

O. C. Liles Tells of Sad and Unexpected Passing of Two Persons in Teachey.

The little village of Teachey, forty miles from Goldsboro, was saddened yesterday by the sudden deaths of two of its prominent citizens—a man and a woman according to O. C. Liles, of Goldsboro, who was there on business.

The woman, Mrs. J. J. Cuttle, rushed into the room of her daughter about 3:30 o'clock calling for aid. Before the daughter could reach her side, she fell over dead. The deceased was about 50 years of age, and was the mother of nine children. Her husband, a traveling man, was in Richmond, Va., at the time.

A. P. Wells, the man, was found dead in the home of his brother-in-law when a member of the family went to call him to breakfast. He was about 48 years of age.

Mr. Wells passed away under the impression that Mrs. Well was in Wilmington. In reality, she had returned from that city late in the night, and thinking that her husband was at the home of his brother, instead of his brother-in-law, went there to be with him. When she reached the brother's home, she found her mistake, but since it was so late, she decided to stay there instead of going over to the home of her brother, where Mr. Wells was spending the night.

85-YEAR-OLD MOTHER IS SENT TO POORHOUSE TO DIE

she came to love Sam the best. Sam had children, Sam was prospering, and his large household and farm held more tasks than the households of the other children. Sam needed her most, and it was there that she stayed. Often-times she would go for a week end visit to one of the other sons, but always on Sunday afternoon the old lady would collect up her knitting, kiss the children good bye, and with her shawl bundled tightly about her shoulders, would trudge off for Sam's home, saying, "I've just got to get there tonight, because tomorrow's Monday, and I know they will need me badly."

Sam K. Simpson, the prosperous farmer and blacksmith, living near Corinth Church, who sent his mother to the poorhouse to die, is about 55 years old. He owns his fine farm home, sawmill and shop in Nixonton township, a farm in Providence township, and in Elizabeth City he owns lots on Pool, Main, Morgan, Cedar, Ash, Parsonage, Panama streets and Euclid Heights. People who know him will say he is financially able to build his mother and home, and provide her with a servant the rest of her days. A person 93 years old hasn't many more days left.

Sam Simpson is a very religious citizen. His friends call him a "Gospel man." It is told of him that he would lock his aged mother in her room in his home, and leave her for hours, while he came to Elizabeth City to attend the Ham-Ramsay revival services, going back home filled with a sniveling spirit filled with righteousness injected by the steam-rolling revivalists. But he hasn't been to see his mother since she was taken to the poor-house.

He is said to be the only one of the sons able to support the mother. Her youngest son, Edward, lives in the mill district in Elizabeth City, but the entire family has to work in the mills. The old lady tried to live with Ed. awhile, but it wasn't safe for her. She would grow lonesome from staying alone all day, and endanger her life on the streets, trying to reach the homes of scoundrel neighbors.

Her son, Jim, who lives on South-Corn avenue, this city, is an invalid, and unable to take care of her. Bill, the eldest, is a widower, boarding around with Pasquotank county farmers. It was Bill who was obliged to seek a home for his mother at the Pasquotank county poorhouse, where it is the proud boast of the county commissioners that economical management enables them to take care of the county's destitute people for as little as eight dollars a month apiece.

HUNGRY, WEARY LADS FIND FRIENDS IN GOLDSBORO

when we go back, or put up some night. It was either pawn the watch or starve since we hadn't eaten in three days. At Wilson we were arrested on a charge of robbing a filling station, but the chief of police completely exonerated us. The chief of Wilson looked after us for two days, and when we started out for Goldsboro, arriving here at 5:30 Tuesday night.

"The Salvation Army gave us a bed for the night and breakfast the next morning. We went out to the Neuse river and fell in with a fishing party. We spent two nights on the banks of the river. Now and then one of the boys would slip us a nickel and we would split a hot dog between us. At last in desperation we came to the police and asked for help. That is our story."

"How do you like the South?" the reporter asked.

"Fine, if we could find some work. The climate here is great." "Are you not homesick?" "You bet we are. And we're going back home as soon as we can, ain't we kid?"

The boys rose from the cafe counter and heaved a great sigh of satisfaction. "Gee, wasn't that steak great?" asked Kenneth.

Masterpieces Taken in $500,000 Robbery

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Feb. 21.—Re-naisance paintings and other art treasures valued at nearly half a million dollars were snatched from his Hollywood home, Martin Daurig, Germany firm of M. Weinschenk & Co., reported to the police when he returned from Catalina island last night. Among the paintings cut from frames or carried away, swames and all he listed:

Cepl's "Daughter of Phillip II of Spain and Elizabeth of Valois," valued at $135,000; "A Vocal Lesson," by Metusa, valued at $125,000; Murillo's famous "Boy Blowing Bubbles," valued at $69,000; a series of pictures by Teniers, "A Madonna and Child" and other paintings by Corregio, and other works by Backer and Lorrain. The thieves also obtained, he said, old incas valued at $12,000 and other art objects, but left behind a collection of paintings and other treasures virtually as valuable as that taken away.

Banks Seek to Save Big Japanese Firm

TOKYO, Feb. 21. (By A. U.)—Re-ports that Takata & Co., one of the largest importing firms in Japan, was in financial difficulties, were confirmed today by an announcement that the government had refused an appeal from the company for assistance. The liabilities re-estimated at $25,000,000. The suspension of the firm has not been announced and it is understood a group of banks are endeavoring to support the company.

The firm ascribes its difficulties to losses in the earthquake of Septem-
