EDUCATION COSTS

It costs much more to "educate" a child in the public schools, so far as the state's pocket book is concerned, than it did 25 years ago but it does not cost as much now as it did a year ago.

This is the gist of the latest issue of "State School Facts," published semi-monthly by the state department of education.

In 1900-01 it cost an average of $2.87 to educate each child in the public schools. Now, 1925-26 it takes an average of $39.63 to pay for the education of each child enrolled in school. This is $3.23 less than it cost the preceding year.

The same general trend is shown in per capita expenditures as was seen in total expenditures. There was a regular increase every year except 1923-24 and 1925-26.

In the year preceding the first of these two years an excessive amount of building was done by the cities to make up for the little building activities during and immediately following the war.

In 1925-26 there was a general decrease in building activities in both rural and city schools.

How does the Old North State stand with the others? The latest available data for other states are for the school year 1923-24. In that year the average per capita cost for the United States as a whole was $74.96. In the same year the five leading states spent per child the following amounts: Nevada $132.23, New York $128.97, California $121.55, New Jersey $118.84, Wyoming $112.87. The five leading Southern states spent the following amounts per child enrolled: Maryland $79.94, West Virginia $56.21, Alabama $49.94, Louisiana $49.46, Missouri $41.

Viewed in the height of these facts, the average cost in North Carolina is not excessive," School Facts says.

SUMMER WHITE HOUSE IN BLACK HILLS

The "Summer White House" in the Custer State Park in the Black Hills of South Dakota, where President Coolidge will spend the summer months, adjoins the Black Hills National Forest and the Harney National Forest, which are not only rich in Indian lore and pioneer historic interest but furnish one of the earliest examples of forest management in the United States. The President will therefore have the opportunity both of enjoying the hospitality of the State of South Dakota and of making himself at home on a million-acre Federal forest estate.

The State park of 60,000 acres, where the Summer White House is located, is adjacent to the Harney National Forest and a few miles south of the Black Hills National Forest. This park was the southeast corner of the Harney National Forest until the Federal Government exchanged it, as a solid block, for State lands scattered throughout the Federal holdings. The two forests, set aside by President Cleveland in 1897, have a net area of 1,135,167 acres of Government land, 50,000 acres of which are in the Theodore Roosevelt Game Preserve and 50,000 acres in a Federal game refuge adjoining the State park. Within the present boundaries of the forests there are also 289,487 acres of patented lands, some of them in prosperous farms and ranches on the stream bottoms, some timberland more or less abused by land cutting and fire, and some mining claims.

The name "Black Hills" was given to the region by the Sioux Indians. In their tongue, it was "Taha Sapa," in allusion to the somber appearance of the forest clad heights as seen from the plains. The Harney Forest was named for General Harney who was one of the early explorers of the region.

The President will have opportunity to see how National Forests are administered and developed. He can see how timber sales are made under methods that keep the forest growing; how grazing is regulated to keep the range green; and how land more valuable for farming than for timber growing has been made available for homesteading. The first timber sales in any National Forest were in the Black Hills in 1899 and 1900, and the timber to be cut was so carefully selected, under scientific forestry, that the area can be cut again by 1935. About 25,000,000 board feet of logs are cut each year from these Federal timberlands under the same methods, with such an improvement to the forest that the foresters expect to maintain this annual harvest forever, and even to increase it to 40,000,000 feet. This is partly because the old defective trees in the virgin forest are removed in the first cut, and the thrifty sound trees left to grow. When the logger comes back 35 years later, the timber he then gets is much more free from rot and other defects than was that cut the first time. Also, young timber is coming in on old burns and other barred places and will thus increase the areas which can be cut over every 35 years.

Within and near the Black Hills and Harney National Forests are many points of scenic or recreational interest. The famous Hot Springs at the southern end of the Black Hills are visited by thousands, and the Wind Cave National Park and Jewel Cave National Monument also are well known. Harney Peak, the highest point in the United States east of the Rocky Mountains, Custer Peak, as "Needles", and Sylvan Lake are other points of interest, as well as the old mining town of Keystone, where is located the famous Holy Terror mine, from which came the richest gold ore ever found in the world. Tradition says this mine was named in honor of the discoverer's wife.

USE THE PLAYGROUNDS

Three Greensboro tots were killed in two days in motor accidents. Two of the youngsters were killed in the streets while the third suffered fatal injuries when the automobile in which it was riding with its parents turned over. C. W. Roberts of the Carolina Motor Club uses these sad cases as a text for urging parents to keep their children from using the streets as a playground. The cases might well be used as examples to urge Greensboro parents to see that their children are on the supervised playgrounds each day.

"Vacation has stimulated the play spirit of children and places an especial responsibility on parents to pay close attention to youngsters' outdoor activities," Mr. Roberts said.

"Because they have no other place to play many youngsters take their bats, tops, marbles and skipping ropes into the streets, creating a tremendous traffic hazard. It is the function of parents to discourage this practice whenever and wherever possible and to make this work constructive parents should assist their children in finding play space that is safe.

"Children will play and if no other place is available they will take to the streets regardless of traffic conditions. Telling a youngster to keep out of the street is not enough. Even the obedient child forgets, in its enthusiasm for baseball, rope skipping or some other form of play, that the streets is dangerous. The wise parent will go farther than merely telling the child not to play in the street. He or she will attempt to find an available safe play space.

REV. C. P. JEROME

Rev. C. P. Jerome, Methodist minister, yesterday celebrated his seventieth birthday. Children, grandchildren, nephews, nieces and brothers gathered for a picnic dinner at Crescent Lake. During the day Rev. Mr. Jerome received many telegrams of best wishes from friends over the State where he has served churches. The News joins with these friends in wishing Rev. Mr. Jerome many happy returns of the occasion, for great is the contribution he has made to North Carolina, not in money nor in riches, but in spiritual values.

WILLIAM BICKETT, CITY PROSECUTOR

On July 1 William Bickett, a son of Mrs. T. W. Bickett of Raleigh, and of the late Governor Bickett will succeed D. C. France as prosecutor in the Raleigh city court. This will mark the first appearance of the son of one of North Carolina's most beloved governors in a public office and the state will watch with interest and best wishes his appearance in the position.

CHIPS OF THE OLD BLOCK MLB

Admiral Sherard brought some onions into the office the other day so big and strong and sheik-like that he said they made the potatoes' eyes water.

Dr. Ivey said he loved to smoke a pipe but it got so every pipe he smoked soon needed physac of some kind and he liked to get paid for his work.

A gentleman slightly under the weather came home late the other night to be greeted with the statement from a nurse that he was the proud father of twins. Weaving his watch out of his pocket he said "what a coincidence. Here I come home at two o'clock and find twins. Its a good thing I didn't come home at twelve after all.

Things certainly grow on a man's mind. If he works and thinks and live with a given subject that finally becomes his whole life. You've noticed a preacher for instance. In pulpit and out he always preaching with him. Why the other day a farmer went in to sell Albert Handley a hen and the latter said "che-ever-lay."

RUM RUNNERS FIGHT AGENTS

800 Cases of Whiskey Worth $138,000 Are Captured Off West Coast

SAN FRANCISCO, June 16 (AP)—A gun fight today between prohibition agents and rum runners near Yellow Jacket bay 50 miles south of here ended with the capture of four men and 800 cases of whiskey valued at $138,000.

Dry officers ran into the smuggling activities early today. Scouts for the rum runners sighted the officers and opened fire on them. A fierce fight followed for a few minutes until about 75 of the rum runners fled.

The liquor was landed from a ship anchored about 400 yards off shore. Bail for the men was fixed at $20,000 for the leader and $10,000 each for his companions.

Will Rogers Undergo An Operation Today

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., June 16 (AP)—Will Rogers, noted humorist and mayor here, was removed to a Los Angeles hospital today where he will undergo an operation for gall stones tomorrow. A slight illness characterized as nervous indigestion took a sudden turn to a serious nature 65 days ago.
