THE VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL

Goldsboro is now profiting from two daily vacation Bible schools which are in operation in the city. Enrollment at the one at St. Paul Methodist church has approached 300 and enrollment at the one at the Friends church was about 75 on the opening day.

In view of the success of the movement here, the following comment from the Winston-Salem Journal, detailing the origin of the vacation Bible School should be read with interest.

"Within the last few years the outstanding denominations of the country have definitely promoted this work. The movement now has the official sanction of the leading denominations of America.

That the need which this movement was designed to meet is acute cannot be gainsaid. According to the report of the committee on education at the Quadrennial Convention of the International Council of Religious Education, held in Kansas City in 1922, seven out of every ten children and young people under twenty-five years of age in the United States receive no religious training.

The State must of necessity leave religious instruction to the churches. If the State continues to train the intellect and the church fails to train the heart, what will be the result in our religious life?

"Southern churches have been slow to take hold of this movement but they are now aroused to the opportunities offered by this work. The Journal has many fine reports from schools in this section. One report is at hand showing an enrollment of more children between the ages of five and seventeen than the Sunday school's entire enrollment.

MEASURES TO CHECK CRIME

Measures designed to check crime have been passed by 19 state legislatures thus far in 1927, a survey revealed, the Associated Press reports.

Thirteen other states adopted measures, such as those altering the penal codes to make former misdemeanors felons, which were considered general anti-crime legislation, but not specific checks on crime.

The measures adopted in the 19 states generally tended toward an increase of sentence, with a tightening of the legal net about the habitual crime, the gangster, gunman and hold-up man.

A significant feature of the anti-crime legislation was the tendency to follow New York's pattern in curbing the activities of habitual criminals and the operations of bands of organized criminals. A number of states enacted laws comparable to New York's Baumes act, a piece of anti-crime legislation passed in 1926. It provides a mandatory life sentence for fourth offenders and generally tightens up the criminal code.

The measures enacted in the 13 states range from Montana's banning of the chewing of mescal nuts by Mexican laborers, a practice thought by some to be necessary to certain religious rites, to Oregon's new measure making it unlawful to skin dead stock without the owner's consent.

A number of legislatures discussed the carrying and use of fire arms. Many states had already provided themselves with checks against this practice and several followed suit in 1927. Measures providing for criminal identification were passed by several legislatures.

The most drastic action towards curbing crime was taken in California, South Dakota, North Dakota, Iowa, and New York.

New York's legislature passed 17 of 41 anti-crime bills submitted by the Baumes Crime Commission, headed by Senator Caleb H. Baumes, author of the Baumes act. Those failing of passage were considered the most important by the Baumes Commission. Most of the 17 laws enacted are virtually amendments to the penal Law and Code of Criminal Procedure.

Iowa's legislature passed a score of bills designed to make more thorny the path tread by the feet of criminals. Most of the measures vest greater authority in peace officers and increase the functional capacity of prosecutors.

North Dakota added nine bills to the anti-crime legislation of the year. Three of these are considered of prime importance. They are the habitual criminal act, comparable to the Baumes act, the uniform motor vehicle theft act and the law eliminating the affidavit of prejudice in criminal cases.

Minnesota passed legislation establishing a state bureau of criminal identification and record, passed a modified copy of the Baumes act and raised to five years the penalty for use of firearms in commission of felony.

The California legislature, having completely revised the penal code, adopted measures for speedier trials, always considered a crime deterrent. Laws were passed abolishing the raising of the plea of insanity during trial, making it more hazardous to use firearms in the commission of crimes and adopting an habitual criminal act, with life sentence for fourth offenders.

Nebraska adopted a law much like New York's Baumes Law, New Jersey provided for life sentence for fourth offenders, Indiana's general assembly passed bills providing for establishment of a bureau of criminal identification, codification of its penal code and measures expected to speed up trials.

Kansas, going most states one better, will now impose life sentence on third offenders. A second sentence for felony will be twice the length of the first, the legislators decided. Embellishments by bank officers will bring them a 50 instead of a 15 year sentence under one new law.

In Texas the embezzlement sentence was reduced from a minimum of five years to two years because of a general belief that the failure to obtain convictions was due to a "too harsh" sentence such conviction entailed.

Washington solemnly passed a bill making it a gross misdemeanor to throw tear bombs or similar devices. Oregon legislators adopted a resolution providing for speeding up of trials, which goes to popular vote June 28.

Utah's legislature passed measures establishing a bureau for the registration of criminals and data pertaining to them and enacted the uniform extradition law sponsored by the American Bar Association.

First degree robbery with a firearm or other deadly weapon may bring the death penalty in Missouri under provisions of a bill passed by the 1927 legislature. Arizona's effort at checking crime was limited to passage of a bill making it a felony to steal an automobile or any part thereof.

The Maryland legislature enacted two statutes tightening the crime laws. One provides sentence of 20 years for robbery with a deadly weapon. The other provides ten year additional sentence for convicts attempting to break jail.

CHIPS OF THE OLD BLOCK

All that follows carries no reflection on God's own agent on earth "Mother".

Tomorrow, June 19th is Father's Day. How many are aware of this fact? Will any son or daughter wear a red or white flower in his honor. It is a good thing it comes on Sunday, for instead of a flower, young son would wheedle a couple of dollars out of the "ol' man" to treat his girl. Yes, instead of a flower, a grrouch if the old man don't come across.

June the 19th is indeed an appropriate day for this celebration. 162 years ago somebody's father fought and won the Battle of Bunker Hill. Betsy

Ross made the flag but she didn't carry it into battle.

And the fight still goes on only at home father is usually the victor.

Down town father is the thing; he is a self-respecting, hard working man. At home he is "here pop, let me take the car tonight; let me have some change; help me with these lessons; stay home tonight; put the children to bed; wash the dishes. A veritable slave in the home; he has striven to make a haven.

Poor father will get his reward some day—in heaven. He'll have to die to get it.

Well it is his own fault; he brings it all on himself.

But why not bring a tear of happiness to his eye tomorrow. Present him with a necktie, a handkerchief; just any little
