MUCH CEMENT IS USED IN STATE

Carolina Only South Atlantic Seaboard State Not Having Plant

RALPHIGH, June 16 (AP)—In spite of North Carolina's rank of second in the state in the consumption of Portland cement, this state and S. Carolina are the only ones along the south Atlantic seaboard that do not have plants for the production of this material.

Statistics from the United States Bureau of Mines, just received by the division of mineral resources of this department, show that North Carolina is one of the ten leading states in the consumption of Portland cement.

During the months of March and April of this year 682,174 barrels of cement were shipped into this state. The only Southern state surpassing North Carolina in consumption was Texas with a total of 884,082 barrels. The total consumption in North Carolina during the same two months of 1925 was 506,726 barrels or 174,416 less than this year.

Florida, which ranks third among the Southern states in the use of cement, has only recently undertaken the investigation of natural resources suitable for the manufacture of cement. Such investigations should be made in North Carolina either by state agencies or private companies.

A preliminary study made recently near Pollockville, Jones county, revealed a good grade of material. Most of the deposits of limestone and marble in the western part of the state, however are too high in magnesium to be suitable for cement. This department does not have funds to examine thoroughly all of the deposits of the state and as a result little is known of some of the deposits.

At present Georgia, Tennessee, Virginia and Pennsylvania supply most of the cement used in North Carolina. Difference in freight costs should mean a large saving in North Carolina for users of Portland cement, besides building up a considerable industry. Such an industry with no competition in the state would seem an assured success.

Didn't Kidnap Mary After All Rucus

HOLLYWOOD, June 17. (AP)—Mary Pickford apparently had forgotten tonight that she had been cast in a new kidnaping sensation. Not a machine gun or any other kind of gun was in evidence as about the studio where the actress worked late today. This was taken to indicate that studio officials thought the danger of the little star, if any had existed, was definitely passed. Kidnaping threats had been reported.

Miss Pickford had intended remaining over night at her bungalow on the studio lot after working late, but when weather conditions unsuitable for evening pictures developed she decided to return home.

Find Six Keys to the Popularity of Coca-Cola

PURE AS SUNLIGHT

The proof of its purity is in the testing. Twenty-two scientific tests for purity, covering every step in its preparation, safeguard this drink of natural flavors.

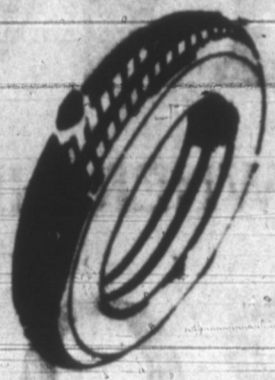

Have you entered this great contest? Two of the "six keys"—six reasons why everybody likes Coca-Cola—have already appeared. The third you'll find in the Coca-Cola story above. All "six keys" are being illustrated and presented in Coca-Cola advertising between the first week in May and the middle of August. You'll find them at intervals in The Saturday Evening Post, Literary Digest, Liberty, Collier's Weekly, and Life. If you have not already entered, check back through old magazines and find the "keys" you have missed. For the correct naming of the "six keys" and the best answers to two simple questions, 635 cash prizes totaling $30,000 will be awarded by The Coca-Cola Company, Atlanta, Ga. The first prize will be $10,000. Contest closes August 25, 1927. Visit our plant and we'll be glad to give you further information about the contest.
