DOLORIS CASTELLO CONES TO OPERA HOUSE

Doloris Castello, who skyrocketed to stardom after her screen debut as the leading woman for John Barrymore in "The Sea Beast", will be seen in her new Warner Bros. Picture, "The Little Irish Girl", at the Opera House for 3 days beginning Monday. "The Little Irish Girl" is founded on C. D. Lancaster's story, "The Grifters", meaning crooks who are a sore cross between grafters and lifters. The Irish girl is one whose counter looks are exploited by a gang of city grifters who are operating in a small country town. The story is a mystery-comedy of rural wit matched against city slickness.

STORMY WAS INDEED WARE JUNE DAY

Goldsboro folk shivered again yesterday. It was one of those rare, very rare days about which the poet was writing—perhaps. The day goes on record here, probably without any dispute, as the coldest June 14th in the history of the city. Upon the heels of two storms the temperature dropped like the value of real estate in Florida when the bubble bursted. Goldsboro citizens who went to bed with only a sheet between them and the cold weather were up in the wee hours of morning groping about for more bed spreads. Persons who donned the summer apparel did a winter-time dance all day, trying to keep warm.

SILVER KING WINS RACE

For those who enjoy horse racing—and who doesn't?—"Silver King" through? Fred Thomson's latest starring picture for PBO will prove an unusually absorbing screen story.

Though essentially a romantic story which has its setting in the picturesque west, this dramatic photoplay which will open at the North State theatre Monday for an engagement of two days, contains a thrilling horse race sequence which has all the spectacular emphasis of an annual steeplechase classic. In addition to the close association of the race with the intense love theme of the picture lends it further impulse as a superb screen story.

PLOUGH FIELD WEARING RAINCOAT

According to information received by the News yesterday, farmers in this section are becoming somewhat distressed over so much rain coming at one time. One well known farmer of the county told a representative of The News, that grass was "about to get 'em" and that if it didn't stop raining pretty soon they'd be raising fields of hay instead of cotton and corn. One man was seen in the field, plowing with his rain coat on.
