THE WEEK'S PAPER.

Many persons not now subscribers will teccive this week's paper. It is sont to them as an invitation to subscribe, and we trust that in the paper itself they will find sufficient inducement to do so.

It is but fair to ourselves, howeverto mention that in news and reading matter, this number of Tun GAZETTE is a little behind the average. On the fourth page alone there is a county advertisement occupying over five coiusually occupies. But this happens only once a year.

With these words we place the paper in many new bands. All are welcome to it and are invited to read it-adver-Christmas season and a prosperous New Year.

WITH OUR ADVERTISERS.

An array of advertisers and advertisements such as we have never before been able to present to our readers greete them brightly from our pages to-day. In fact, a quodly portion of this week's paper has been edited by our advertisers. They have important messages for our readers and these messages will repay careful reading, for they not only form interesting business news, but they show buyers where their money may be spent to the best advantage and carry therewith an added element of value to our roaders.

To our advertisers THE GAZETTE wishes to make public acknowledgement of its appreciation of their good opinion as implied in the generous use they have made of our columns. Crowded as they are, we have done the best we could by all, and if at any joys of a huppy Christmas.

The Future of Southern Milling.

merican Miller, Chicago One of the most remarkable and the South of late years is the present tendency to curtail the cotton acreage and to enlarge that devoted to wheat. and to enlarge that devoted to wheat. This movement is a genuine one, and not one of those many paper ones of the past, visible only to the inner eye of newspaper men who have been wont to say in the fall that that will be next spring which ought to be, but which, owing to the financial system in voque in the past in many parts of the country, which enabled the factor to dictate what the farmer should grow, rather than the latter's own judgment, often than the latter's own judgment, often failed to materialize as announced. But this fall the movement to grow orts of fall seeding to wheat from new districts in the Carolinas, in Alabama, Georgia, Tennessee, Arkausas, Texas, etc., bear all the earmarks of fact; so etc., bear all the earmarks of mot, so that, crop conditions being reasonably favorable, the South shou d next season have more wheat to grind at bome than than part of the country has seen for many years, if ever before.

There will be no lack of mills in the South to grind this coming crop.

That part of the business of supplying the South with home-made floor has the South with home-made floor has always been dependent upon the farmer and held in check by him, and he has not done his fair part. But now that the farmer has come to see that the mill is likely to be a more profitable buyer of his product than the cotton merchant, the future of Southern milling certainly has a rosy cast. For a year and more the movement toward more local mills has been especially observable, and mills have been built in enexpected localities. One or more good grops of wheat at this juncture will give the industry an impetes that may work surprising changes in that may work sorprising changes in the agriculture of the South. The public certainly seems enthusiastic in ts desire to raise and manufacture its at five o'clock last Saturday morning, causes a serrow that is felt deeply wherever he was known. By remarkable tenacity of life and a triumph of medical and surgical skill that is among the marvels of the healing art, he survived an attack of typhoid fever some S or 10 years ago. While apparently as well as ever since that time, it it is believed by those who knew him best that his physical system was not so strong as before its successful resistance to so powerful a malady.

About the last of October, while the Synod was in session here, Mr. Henderson began to feel unwell from a pain to his side. Shortly afterward be grow worse. As the Democratic candidate for county treasurer, he was anxious to do his part of the campaign work, but his tilness forbade him. Election day found him to ill ton leave his bed. Ho was elected by a bandsome vote along with his colleagues on the ticket. He was elected by a bandsome vote along with his colleagues on the ticket. He was gratified thereby and was cheered by the congratabilitions he received from his many friends. Having made so bave a fight with death and won against such heavy odds in his severe sickness of many years ago, the patient sufferer was believed by his hopeful friends to have good chances to win in this contest with posemoria, notwithstanding the unfavorable complication. But their hope was destined to disappointment. The traye man was in a losing fight with death and wore away by inches.

A good man is gone. He was a away by inches.

A good man is gone. He was a neighborly man, a warm friend, and had a kind and gentle soul within him. had a kind and gentle soul within him. There are many besides those who are related to him who will mourn the loss they feel to his death. The writer of these lines first knew him about eight years ago, and our acquaintaned with him since that time contains nothing but pleasing recollections of his many excellences and graces of character. There is no one who knew this good man who will not mourn with his devoted wife and seven little ones in their unspeakable loss.
