CAPTAINS AND WORKERS ARE BROUGHT TOGETHER

Definite Methods of Work Discussed and Decided Upon at Roll Call Meeting Last Night.

The meeting in the second Presbyterian church Sunday school room last tight in the interest of the Red Cross Christmas roll call was not as large as it probably would have been, had not the influenza and the weather
both been in the way.

But the meeting was pronounced a success in that it brought captains
and workers together; one to talk,
the other to listen to the plans and regulations governing the Christmas roll call campaign that is to be inaugurated on next Monday. The inspiration of action is universal membership in the Red Cross. The campaign, while seeking and asking money—a dollar "per," and as much over as one cares to give—is for membership.

The National Red Cross association over as one cares to give—is for membership.

The National Red Cross association

The National Red Cross association and Red Cross war council have both issued statements calling for workers, and stating that "the coming of peace has simply shifted the problems of the Red Cross and doubled its duties, and that workers in every line of endeavor are needed more today than during offensive warfare. The battle is now defensive, and it means protection from want, suffering, disease and death. The war council states that even with peace let no one suppose the work of the Red Cross is finished. Millions of American boys are still under arms. Thousands of them are sick or wounded, and owing to shortage in shipping facilities it may take a year or more to bring our boys home from France. Our soldiers and sallors are enlisted until the commander-in-chief tells them there is no more work for them to do."

The Red Cross has an object: to "carry on," to keep the work of the Red Cross more active now, if possible, than it was during the war. The Red Cross was not in any way represented in the recent campaign for funds for the united war work. This is a roll call for the payment of dues of existing members and the enrollment of new members. The plan of the universal campaign is a systematic house-to-house campass.

Mrs. F. C. Abbott, director, explained to the captains and workers last night how to work and where to work. An idea emphasized was that in the mili villages where the father and mother were apt to be away from home when the workers called that they be asked to leave a dollar with their name and address at the house with some reliable party. so the workers could get same when they came.

worker, thus making the work very much easier.

Another point discussed was the asking of the soldiers for membership. Dr. Mangum, of Camp Greene, was present and was referred to. He was heartly in favor of asking the soldiers. He said that the men in uniform would give gladly, he was sure. The matter was discussed and it was thought best finally to ask the soldier on the street, but not at the camp and not to urge him.

"The Red Cross has got to increase," said Dr. Mangum. "We don't realize the desolation in Europe. The Red Cross is the biggest thing in the world, the most vital. It is going to be with us just as long as there is human need. I think we are going to have a fine campaign. Please don't fail to ask the man in uniform for one dollar."

At the Keith House.

Only this afternoon and tonight remain in which Charlotte patrons of Keith vaudeville may witness the excellent program that has been provided at the Academy of Music for the last half of the week. If those who have not been there knew how good a program they were missing they would not fail to attend at least once. Those who have seen it are generally in agreement that it is one of the strongest bills in recent mediand that it represents the Keith circuit at its best.

The Four Beulah Belles, four young women vocalists, have earned a warm place in the hearts of those who have heard them during the latter half of the week. Their singing is one of the best things on a splendid program. They do not sing solos but confine themselves to quartet work and this is much enjoyed.

The Thomas trio of comedy acrobats who perform on the trampoline and on the three bars are exceptionally clever and keep the audience last in wonderment at their audacious stunts and in laughter at the humor they are able to throw into their act.

Miss Una Clayton and her partner, Herbert L. Griffin, are the only members in the cast of one of the most engaging bits of comedy that has been put on at the Keith house in a long while. It is entitled "Keep Smilling," and depends for very much of its success on the exceptional ability of Miss Clayton, who appears in the role of a "scrub lady."

Loney Haskell, a celebrated monologist and a manager of proved success in the show business, is appearing on the program during the latter half of the week.
