Electric Dealers Attend "Keep 'Em Working" School

The shortage of practically all types of electrical household appliances has become so acute without prospect of betterment during the duration, that housewives of the nation must depend upon the skillful

Kelly, service representative of the Carolina Power & Light Company, is conducting a five-day electrical appliance repair and service school in Southern Pines for electrical dealers and their service department personnel in this vicinity. repairing of existing equipment if the convenience of "electrical living" is to be continued. Fortunately according to experts, the average household appliance can be kept working for a long period if properly repaired.

In order that owners of electrical appliances in this section may have the benefit of the newest and best methods of repairing electrical dealers and their service employees are attending a five-day service school which is being conducted in Southern Pines under the sponsorship of the Carolina Power & Light Company in cooperation with several nationally known appliance manufacturers.

"Electrical dealers of the Sandhills region have expressed such interest in securing special training in repair work that it was decided to stage a training school in Southern Pines for their benefit and that of their service employees," declared H. G. Isley, general sales manager of the Carolina Power & Light Company.

"It has been proven that the average electrical appliance can be kept in workable condition at a very moderate cost, therefore, there is really no need for any housewife to forego the convenience and economy of using her electrical household helps," Isley said. "While many electrical dealers are already rendering a useful service in helping users keep their appliances in working order, it is felt that the training school will pave the way for the rendering of even more efficient service to their customers."

Fayetteville Wants Way Out With Li- brary As Does Hoke

(Fayetteville Observer)

Circulation of books by the Fayetteville Public Library dropped to 6,305 in the month of February. This figure, representing a reduction of 2,647 from the previous month, was the lowest circulation level reported in any month since Bookmobile service was established except for the month of December 1941, when reading in all libraries was affected by the news of Pearl Harbor and the first month of America's participation in the war.

The loss in circulation and the reduction in service are caused by liquidation of WPA and the withdrawal of the Bookmobile from operation here.

The Fayetteville board of aldermen has answered an appeal from the Library board by granting an increase in city appropriation. The board of Cumberland county commissioners has not yet acted on the appeal. The Library's request, even if granted in full, could not make up for the assistance withdrawn by WPA. It could, however, make it possible to keep on rural service through operation of the Bookmobile.

The county has the opportunity of retaining the Bookmobile on loan if funds are supplied for gasoline and maintenance. This library service is very important to rural people. They have made use of it and they will miss it. Surely the granting of enough funds to keep the book truck in operation would be a small enough price for the continuance of this needed activity.

Two counties, Davidson and Alexander are reported to have called special elections to set up legal authorization for county support of public library service. If it is necessary to validate a permanent program here by a referendum, then we should have the election. Meantime, however, it would seem that the county commissioners could bridge the gap by appropriating the relatively small amount of extra funds needed to keep the book truck in service.

LEND - LEASE

The United States is supplying 44 countries with lend-lease food and materials. These countries, in turn, are contributing food, equipment and resources to American armies on foreign soil.

A TRIBUTE TO MRS. S. A. SNEAD

Some distinguished writer said: "The three sweetest words in the English language are: Mother, Home and Heaven." We can easily bring these words into a single group and just mean one thing, "Mother," for there can be no home without Mother, nor will Heaven hold any particular human charm if we have no hope of Mother's being there.

There are other dear ones dear as life itself to us, but none other can supplant Mother. Some time ago I remarked to a group of friends that my children come home to see their Mother, and I did not blame them. That I too, would do just that.

This subject of this sketch was not a "talker". She was a woman of few words, but those few words counted, and each of her children has treasured words, in his or her heart, words of Mother she or he will recall as time passes. And, oh, so often, a word brought so much comfort and peace. And no other remedy held the curative powers as did Mother's blowing it. The little hurt finger, blown and kissed, was almost immediately well.

Ah, well, Mother had to go. We never get ready for this momentous event. Before it actually occurred, it seemed unbearable but God's grace, and sweet memories of her eventful, busy life made it easier to bear, especially, when it is recalled that she has gone to a land "fairer than day," and where there are "rivers of delight, billows of love and seas of Heavenly rest."

We all remember Mother's last word—those we last heard her speak. We read the last words of distinguished persons with great interest, but these are not compared with the last words of my mother's or yours. Mother's love cannot be questioned. Her busy life, her daily tasks so faithfully performed, the self-denial daily practiced and the sweet comforting words ever ready when needed, and the sympathetic look even had especial benefit for her children.

The subject of this sketch was a truly loving wife, a truly devoted Mother, who was absolutely fair and impartial in her dealings with her children, who never tired in her devoted labors for her loved ones, so the remainder of their lives, they will find her life a book of sweet memories, which will daily aid them in correct living. Apart from our Saviour, Mother is to each of us, Heaven's greatest attraction.—By D. Scott Poole.

"KEEP 'EM ROLLING"

Keeping old tires rolling—from consumers to rubber reclaiming centers to aid America's production program—are (left to right) pretty Peggy Hawkins, Janet Howe and Peggy Kraft who have formed a committee to put over Atlantic City's salvage drive. They were caught by the cameraman on the celebrated Wooden Way where the dimout provides an intriguing background for the 1942 version of hoop-rolling.
