Ideas Cannot Be Rationed

NO ONE need fear the lack implied by rationing unless he can be convinced that the wisdom and substance of his heavenly Father, divine Love, are running low. Can it be possible that God has not enough of good to go around? No, for as the father in Jesus' parable said to the elder son remaining at home (Luke 15:31), "Son, thou art ever with me, and all that I have is thine," so our heavenly Father is reassuring us today: "All that I have is thine."

The Psalmist expressed confidence in the fact that "the earth is the Lord's, and the fulness thereof" (Psalms 24:1). Jesus' thought and action expressed an unflinching sense of abundance in every situation. Obviously, he knew the source of supply was not matter but Spirit. Today "the earth is the Lord's," and His fullness has not changed. Frightened mortals, entertaining a finite concept of supply as material, may not comprehend the infinite abundance of Spirit; nevertheless, good is forever unlimited.

"Fear was the first manifestation of the error of material sense," writes Mary Baker Eddy in "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" (p. 532). War is unquestionably an error of material sense, a belief in more than one Mind. Is it not fear, then, that misleads mortals to expect a lack of necessities and proceeds to manifest this accepted sense of scarcity? True, some avenues of material supply are today so blocked as to cause a lack of certain commodities. Yet three ways out of the difficulty have already presented themselves: first, such rationing of these commodities as to ensure impartiality of supply and to prevent selfish hoarding; secondly, discovery and manufacture of acceptable substitutes; and lastly, awakening to the fact that many things once deemed essential are not actually needed. And what are these activities but evidences of wisdom, resourcefulness, and a revised outlook upon human need, unfolding to relieve the human extremity? Solving of the problem of insufficiency shows the equally practical solution

READING & WRITING
BY Edwin Seaver AND Robin McKean

GOOD news for our boys who like to read! The Book-of-the-Month Club will more than double the number of free subscriptions it is now giving to the armed forces, it is announced by Harry Sherman, president of the Club. The 1942 donation of 1,156 subscriptions will be increased this year to 2,300, Mr. Sherman states. This means 27,000 new books in all, with a retail value of approximately $175,000. The new books to go out under the new arrangement will be the double selection for February—"Gaudian Diary" by Richard Ligonias, and "Let The People Know" by Sgt. Norman Angel.

The Book-of-the-Month Club will also ask its more than 350,000 members throughout the country to raise books for the Victory Book Campaign. In 1942, at the request of the Club, subscribers donated more than a million books to the armed forces. It is expected that an equal amount will be raised this year.

The wise foreigner does not ask personal questions of the Chinese, Vanya Oakes, author of "White Man's Lily," learned in her tour through China. Once she made the mistake of asking an ancient Chinese on a railroad platform how old he was. "Me?" he said. "Yes, you." "How old?" "Yes, how old." "How old am I?" "Yes, how old are you?"

At this stage of the conversation, a large crowd of bystanders had collected. A wave of chatter and laughter rose. The question was tossed from one to another, more people running up to join in the discussion. The old man provided each newcomer with a strict account of events up to that moment, all rather in the vein that the town had suddenly unaccountably been visited by a crazy person from the West with a peculiarity of wishing to know crazy things such as how old one was. When Miss Oakes' train finally arrived and she had got herself safely aboard it, the crowd at the station was still working on the problem.

The contrast in the way the Japanese and the Americans treated their exchange prisoners is shown in this story, told by Max Hill in "Exchange Ship":

At the Port of Laurence Marques, in Africa, three exchange ships were docked. One of these was the Gripsholm, carrying Japanese internees from America; the other two were the Asama and Coste Verde, bearing American and English internees from Japan. Through the dock barriers, two small boys exchanged comments—an American boy, born in China, and a Japanese boy born in the United States. "Gee," the American boy exclaimed, "I'll be glad to get some candy again. We didn't have anything on the Coste Verde kids like." "Goshi!" the Japanese boy replied. "We had movies and ice cream and chewing gum and candy and swimming pools." He paused and shook his head, and then added: "You sure got gyped!"
