Thrashing Machine Combine Licensed

Raleigh, N. C., June 4.—Frank Parker, statistician with the State Department of Agriculture, called attention several days ago to the Thrashers' Act, which was passed by the legislature in 1918 and which provides that each thrashing machine and combine be licensed by the Register of Deeds of the county in which it operates.

"Because records of acreage and production of grain crops are so important at this time, we must emphasize the fact that each operator of these machines comply with the State thrashers' law," declared Parker.

He pointed out that compliance with the law will result in the gathering of information essential to war program planning, individual farm records, business practices, official records, machinery rationing and county crop goals.

Parker said that "because of this law, North Carolina farmers have gained special favors and better programs than would have been possible otherwise."

Bed Springs Under Ceiling

Dollars-and-cents ceiling prices on used metal coil and flat bed-springs, which in some crowded war centers have been selling higher than original cost, will go into effect Wednesday, the regional Office of Price Administration announced today.

Limited production of new bed-springs and an unusually large demand for used springs, OPA officials said, brought about the necessity for ceilings, which are established at wholesale and retail. The new regulation applies to five types of springs, and requires retailers to attach a tag to each spring indicating its maximum price. A sale by one person to another comes under the regulation, as do sales at auction.

Remember these Fat Facts: Overheating is the quickest way to spoil any fat.

Improper storage spoils fat. The best way to keep fats is in a closely covered container, in a dark place, and away from strong-flavored and strong-scented foods.

Fats, which are saved over from cooking, spoil more quickly than new fat. So keep used fat extra cold and use as soon as possible.

Flavorful fats, such as butter, are least abundant of all. So when you use your share of these, be sure to put it where the flavor will count most with your family. In these days of limited fat supply, dishes rich with fat are out of step with the times.

Try cooked salad dressing with flour as a thickener to help spread the fat. When you make a French dressing, remember not to be a "spend-thrift of oil."

Add the fat for flavoring cooked vegetables either just before the vegetables come off the stove or after you have them in a serving dish. You can get more seasoning effect from less fat by this method.

Rinse the fat out of cooking pans with a little hot water and add to your soup kettle or use in sauce or gravy.

Save the wrappings that come off fats. Melt, or scrape off, any fat that clings to wrappings, use it to grease pans; or rub over the crust of your home-baked bread.

The United States produced more than 10 billion pounds of small arms ammunition last year.

Restrictions Lifted On Feed Shipments

North Carolina livestock and poultry feeders and feed processors should be able to obtain larger supplies of soybean meal from western producing areas as a result of revocation of shipment restrictions by the War Food Administration, according to H. A. Patten, State AAA Executive Assistant.

The shipment restrictions were embodied in Oilseed Orders 4 and 5 which were issued last winter and which provided that no soybean oil meal could be sold for shipment from the Corn Belt into designated areas without specific authorization of the Commodity Credit Corporation. This order, however, did not affect movement of soybean meal produced in processing plants located within these areas. North Carolina was included in the area of the Southeastern states. The orders were issued in order to make more meal produced in the Corn Belt available in that area and in the Pacific Northwest during the heavy feeding season, and to facilitate the use of soybean meal produced in eastern and southern mills in markets near these mills.

"Many of the mills in this area soon will complete crushing of soybeans for the season, and it will be necessary for western mills to distribute their meal over wider areas," Patten said. "Smaller feeder demand is seasonally smaller now than during the winter months, many North Carolina feeders are in urgent need of supplies."

It is expected that only a small quantity of western soybean meal will be carried over into the 1943-44 season. Patten declared, and this situation emphasizes the need for maximum production of soybeans this year.

Dusting Peanuts.

State College Answers Timely Farm Questions

Q. How can I stop my combine from cracking grain?
A. Cracking of grain or seed, when combining, may be due to several causes, says J. D. Blicke, Extension Engineering Specialist at State College. First look into the tailings return and, if there are more than a few clean shelled grains or seeds present, adjust your chaffer, sieve and air blast to reduce the amount of tailings.

If a finishing screen is being used, be sure it is the correct one for the crop being combined. If these checks and adjustments do not stop the trouble, reduce the cylinder or increase the clearance between the concave and cylinder—or both.
