

SERVICE MAGAZINE HAS STRANGE ADMIRERS—A copy of "Yank", the American Army weekly, found its way to the distant Fiji Islands. Here a Fijian chief and his family view its pictures with interest ranging from the patriarch's critical study to outright amusement among the younger members of the group.

to Mullins, last Friday and sold it to a warehouseman for $40 a hundred. It was graded fair.

Rains seemed quite general Sunday night, and Monday morning. As a rule a dry May is followed by a wet June. Wheat harvesting by combine is now going on here. If that is not handled carefully, it will mold, and we need it.

The Russians claim to have shot down a large number of German planes—just how many I do not recall—but on good authority 666 Allied ships have been sunk in the Atlantic.

Just as I have repeatedly said, the Japs know the islands in the South West Pacific Ocean, and will have to be repeatedly driven from footholds they may get on those nearer Australia.

If people used to live farming when they received only 8 1-2 cents a pound for their cotton, it looks like they might be full-handed when they get 22 cents a pound. But something takes all they get no matter what price they get.

I have lived through three wars, and hope to be thriving when this one is over. I mean by thriving, being in good health and strength so I can continue to eat, drink and sleep like a log.

Nobody Home

Increase in juvenile delinquency is causing law enforcement agencies, military authorities and psychologists to tear out their hair. Among their other suggestions for remedies is one that sounds simple—inforce parents to exercise some control over their wild boys.

These experts know that all the parents in America can't keep their children off the streets and away from the danger spots unless the old folks cooperate. Crime prevention and avoidance of delinquency begin at home. Pa and Ma were the original policemen, judge, jury and warder.

But often the old folks are themselves too busy having a good time, busy hot spotting and engaging in adult delinquency to have any control over their offspring. Decadence in some life is often due to lack of participation by the head of the house and his mates. They aren't at home half the time.—Charlotte Observer.

POOLE'S MEDLEY

By D. SCOTT POOLE

We had all agreed that the United States of America was the greatest of all governments among the governments of the earth. We have been afraid to not obey the mandates of those in authority. But mirrors have shown us something—had—maybe.

Peoples of the South loved their country. They would never have fixed up on the Stars and Stripes until after secession. The South did not rebel against the Government of the United States, so they should not have been called "rebels".

The states which left the Union had a right to secede. So the citizens of the United States said, when they amended the Federal Constitution, for bidding a state to secede.

The Great government of the United States had demanded respect of its orders and decrees, and I had no idea there was a citizen who dared to say he would obey the dictates of a nation's organization, but would recognize no other authority in the United States.

Never-the-less, "God reigns, and the Government at Washington, still stands." I have no doubt that those citizens now in revolt against the only Democracy on earth will be brought to see the error of their ways.

Back in the 1870's an American citizen had been arrested in Cuba and accused of being a spy by the then Spanish authorities. The man pled not guilty, but he was condemned and stood before a firing squad. The U. S. Consul of that city pled in vain for the man's release, but to no avail. At last the U. S. Consul spread the U. S. flag over the man, and said "shoot him through that if you dare". The man was released.

It was published in newspapers that U. S. flags floated over each and every mine, where those coal miners were striking, and it was said they were in the employ of the U. S. Government for the past four weeks, or so. In a case like that, I cannot see how those miners had any right to strike.

I fully believe each and every strike in the industries of the United States will be called into account when the proper time comes. Every body whom I have heard speak of the matter is of one opinion and that opinion is such cannot be tolerated. And, they are striking in a number of places.

I am proud of our South. You rarely hear of a strike down this way and when there is one, it is never by natives. Southerners will fight, but they will not do much fussing.

Let every one produce enough meat and bread to supply home wants. A small plot of ground will make corn for bread, and a fat pig will furnish meat. One thing certain, you will not be able to buy meats of anykind before another twelve months pass by.

★ BONDS BUILD FORTRESSES FOR FREEDOM! *

TO THE boy beside him, this Boeing Fortress pilot ranks with Superman.

One look at the instrument panel and you feel the same way. It's hard to believe that ordinary mortals could ever master the maze of dials, buttons, levers and switches required to fly and fight a thirty-ton bomber.

But young Americans are doing it with deadly efficiency. (Ask Adolf, Benito or Tojo.) And they don't learn their jobs just by reading a book. It takes intensive training and practical experience to produce the bomber teams who risk their lives together.

The electric power business is like that. You can't make kilowatt-hours with theories. You've got to learn how — by growing up in the business.

That's the way most electric company men got their start. It's the American way. Do a better job and you get better jobs to do.

The system is simple, but it works. It works so well that America's big peacetime industries became great war machines overnight.

It works so well that the electric companies under business management were able to push power production up and up to supply war plants with far more electric power than any nation has ever known before — and at low rates.

The same business system that is helping to win the war today will also enrich the peace — when air freighters are delivering radios and refrigerators — instead of block-busters!
