war is over is a language the folks can read and understand. I would be delighted to know the world had adopted the English language as the universal language.

Tobacco is worthless, or would be, if it were not for an acquired taste. A fellow gets a lot of satisfaction out of a good "chaw", but it does him no good, really.

I used my part of it during the first 72 years of my life, and I had a delightful time chewing, and smoking in various ways, but it gave me indigestion, and affected my nervous system. I sleep better since I quit using it.

You should know how I quit tobacco after so many years of indulgence in an expensive and nasty habit. I was in a hospital, underwent three major operations the next three months before my 72nd birthday. I was more dead than alive, and did not want tobacco. After I recovered, the desire to use it came back strong, but I thought if a sick man could do without tobacco, a well one should. I quit.

But I still want it as badly some times as if I had used it all day yesterday but, I am a man, myself, and I control Scotty, fortunately. And using tobacco is a useless, expensive habit.

I read during World War I, that the Germans had loaf bread twenty years old. It had been baked twenty years, and had been preserved with a coat of varnish. They trimmed off the varnish, and had as good fresh bread as it was at the start.

Reports from the Agricultural Department assure the country plenty of food, and on top of that you hear talk of rationing other articles of food, heretofore not rationed. The truth is: You better make arrangements to have your own food stored and ready.

Old people, as I have said before, thought less of money than people of today, but they thought of storing plenty of food and feed and some to sell. I had an old uncle, of whom it was said saved extra good wheat ten years, to have good seed. Grains are not alike every year. Seeds are often defective. Uncle John saved his wheat by covering the top of the box of grain with a coat of dried salt.

He never would sell "this year's" bacon, but sold last year's, if anybody wanted it. He had "a place for every thing, and a gourd for the gimlet". He had apples nearly every year, and two or more barrels turned to vinegar. He made two wagons a year, while his horse ate at noon.

There were others who planned and spent as just as uncle John. Once as I was spending a night with my cousins, Uncle John said, "Scott, you cannot guess how long I have had these shoes", and I said, "No, I can't" and he said, "Hatter Daniel McLeod made these shoes for me seven years ago." He had a half dozen Contentment is the better riches, and nontaxable. From this day forward the world over, taxation will be burdensome. The people are now complaining of their heavy tax burdens.

As a safeguard to poultry health, pullets should be separated from the old stock and houses cleaned and disinfected, say Extension poultrymen at N. C. State College.

MRS. GORE AND MRS. MURRY HOSTESSES AT BRIDGE SUPPER

Mrs. A. D. Gore and Mrs. R. L. Murry were most gracious hostesses on Tuesday evening when they entertained with an out-door upper followed by bridge.

Guests were invited for 6:30 and when all had arrived they were invited into the yard. A buffet supper was spread on the screened side porch. Each one served herself and then went to the summer house where tables and chairs were arranged. The delicious supper interspersed with lively conversation was very much enjoyed. Dr. Murray proved to be a most efficient head waiter. He was assisted by Mrs. Murray, Mrs. Gore and Bobby.

Five tables were arranged for bridge in dining room and living room. Mrs. Marcus Smith held high score and received defense stamps. Among the guests present were Mrs. Bryan and Mrs. Beckman of the Army personnel. Mrs. Beckman whose husband is in the Reception Center at Fort Bragg and Mrs. Bryan and Lt. Colonel Bryan of Camp Mackall are making their home here.

From where I sit...
by Joe Marsh

At Job Crowell's the other day, we were havin' a glass of beer or two and talkin' about the kind of world there'd be when Peace came.

"Hear they'll have trans-Atlantic airplanes flyin' regular as taxi service," says Ed Carey.

"Yep," says Will Frost, "and television and plastic cars and air-conditioned homes and super-duper highways."

Finally, Doc Mitchell chimes in. "You know," he says, "we're talkin' about the future in terms of luxuries—like air-conditioned houses and television.

"But what really will shape tomorrow's world is what goes on in men's own hearts... like tolerance and understanding."

And from where I sit, Doc's right. Whether it's tolerance of another's politics or respect for a neighbor's right to enjoy a glass of beer occasionally, tolerance is a mighty good foundation for a peacetime world.

Ellery Queen's Mystery Magazine

Edited by Ellery Queen, famous detective of the radio, the movies, and best-seller books, it is devoted exclusively to the best in detective crime short-story literature. And we mean literature. The fact that a story owes its plot to crime and detection need not prevent its being well written. Short detective fiction that is well written is not too readily available. But we are finding them—in books, in magazines, in the files of famous authors—and by arrangement with other publishers as well as with authors, we reprint in the approval Reader's Digest manner the best detective fiction to be produced.

Such masters as Dashiell Hammett, Agatha Christie, Stuart Palmer and Ellery Queen are to be found in it. But stories are selected on their merits, not on authors' names. Though and suave, casual and swift, comic and tragic, they are mingled with refreshing variety and stimulating change of pace. Rare gems, fit for the most critical, delightful to the most naive. You will find the new magazine well printed—sharp and clear, kind to the eyes. You will find the size—same as The Reader's Digest—convenient to hold, to handle, to slip into your pocket. And you will find the contents the most satisfying quarter's worth of good entertainment you have found in many a day. On sale at all good newsstands —25c a copy.

Sounds Foolish And We Think It Is.

Warehousemen of the Border Belts, the mistreated step-child of the tobacco marketing group, are raising a righteous howl this week because of a new restriction on sales in their area. Now, an order goes into effect today which will cut them down to sales of 12 rows of tobacco per sale, in a misguided attempt to save manpower.

Behind the order is the complaint of the leaf-buying companies which say they can't get help to process and store the crop as fast as it is being sold. So, to give them a chance to catch up, sales must be slowed down.

For weeks farmers throughout this section have been making every effort to prepare their crop for the market—taking valuable time from cotton and hay crops—so their tobacco will bring top prices. Warehousemen have full quotas of laborers, book and sales staffs and office workers to help the farmer market his crop quickly. There are thousands of men, women and children engaged in marketing the crop. Now most of them will have to sit around doing nothing while the warehouses sell only a scant part of the daily quota they are equipped to sell—and the Tobacco Sales Committee (who arrange selling time) says its slowing down sales to "save manpower."

Sounds awfully foolish to us — and we believe that the order will waste five times or more manpower in this section than it will save for the leaf companies. In the meanwhile, the crop will be spoiling in the pack houses while much of the farmer's other, and far more valuable, crops are spoiling in the fields.

Warehousemen, may we join in and help you how? "OO-000-oo-ee! 'Taint right!"
