

Leon Cameron Will Work With Carters At Carthage

E. Leon Cameron of Timberland will be connected with the McConnell Warehouse at Carthage this season, according to an announcement from the firm this week.

The McConnell warehouse is again being operated by the Carter family George D. Carter and sons, Dan and Carter. This family has been in the warehouse business for the past 27 years. Their announcement states that they will have a sale every day throughout the season.

Consumption of fresh asparagus, carrots, cauliflower, celery and lettuce have more than doubled during the last 20 years, but we are eating less cabbage, spinach and sweet potatoes.

Prices and Your Purse

Circle Sept. 12 on your calendar. That's the date to start using War Ration Book 3. Between Sept. 12 and Oct. 2, you will be using both Ration Books 2 and 3 for meats, fats, etc. Red stamps X, Y and Z in Book 2 will be good then and so will brown stamp A and B in Book 3. If you don't have Ration Book 3 yet, make application at your local ration board.

Tokyo Likes Hoarders

If you're a hoarder, you'll be pleasing the Japanese.

OWI intercepted a Tokyo radiocast beamed to the United States and Latin America this week in which a "Woman's Hour" speaker pointed to the decreased supply of tin and said, "The smart house-wife will do everything under the sun to get hold of as many canned foods as possible."

What Not to Do

If you don't want to misuse ration stamps, don't:

1. Make purchase with loose stamps. Exceptions, one-point red stamps, used for change; shoe stamps when ordering by mail.
2. Trade ration coupons.
3. Lend your ration book to friends. The patriotic thing is to use rationed goods as sparingly as possible.
4. Purchase rationed commodities without coupons.
5. Attempt to use ration stamps after they have expired.
6. Purchase rationed articles with book not issued to you, except for shoes within a family.
7. Give up unused stamps to your dealer.

Balance in Sandwich

OPA is having a time striking the right balance between the supply of breads. The nation has too much bread for the amount of butter available. Jelly and peanut butter will help, but the fruit supply is short. OPA has just released more sugar to commercial jam makers to encourage production.

It's already unpatriotic to use both butter and jelly, or peanut butter and jelly.

Save Rancid Fats

The Government wants all your waste kitchen fats to turn into explosives—even if they have become rancid. At first, the War Production Board said it didn't want rancid fats because they were too smelly to handle, but the emergency is such that they are no longer choosy.

Waste-Paper Salvage

A waste-paper-salvage campaign is starting again, but on a local, carefully organized basis so it can be disposed of effectively. Last year the Government was almost drowned in a sea of waste paper as a result of a nationwide call.

The new drive is necessary because of decreased production of wood pulp, increased consumption of boxes for shipment of materials abroad, and a manpower-transportation problem among junkmen.

Used-Car Prices Soar

The used-car market is getting tighter every day and the Government is having trouble with dealers who refuse to sell the few new cars they have left, but the real crisis in the automobile isn't expected until 1945.

A ceiling on used cars may be necessary if prices continue to mount as war workers need more and more cars to replace worn out ones.

Shoe Rationing Continues

Rumors that shoe rationing would soon come to an end were dispelled this week when OPA announced that the four "airplane" stamps in War Ration Book 3 will be used for shoes.

Shoe-Stamp Detachment

If you inadvertently detach a shoe stamp henceforth, you have to go to this trouble before you can spend it: Take it to your local ration board and exchange it for a special shoe stamp. You may write, but you must present your book and state why the stamp was detached. Soldiers and sailors will have their shoe stamps removed before they get them, thus eliminating the line with which young women are said to be wooing military men: "You great big beautiful man. What are you going to do with your No. 18 stamp."

Marlboro Mills May Be Sold Soon

Bennettsville, S. C., Sept. 3—Stockholders of Marlboro Cotton mills will meet on September 10 to consider a proposal for the sale of the physical properties of the company at Bennettsville. Notices mailed to the stockholders indicate that an offer has been received and will be acted upon.

The corporation owns mills at McColl which have been leased and are not included in the proposed sale. The Bennettsville mill, which contains approximately 12,000 spindles, has been manufacturing cotton yarn, cords and tire fabrics. If the sale is approved at the forthcoming stockholders meeting, Marlboro Cotton mills will end its operations in about three months.

To be eligible for support prices on cured sweet potatoes, growers must pack them in standard crates, baskets or hampers and offer them in carload lots. Every effort should be made to sell them through normal channels.

State College Will Offer Six Courses For War Work

Raleigh, Sept. 8.—Six technical courses to train men and women for highly-important war work will begin at State College Sept. 27, with the Federal government paying all expenses except subsistence and textbooks, it was announced today by Edward W. Ruggles, director of the College Extension Division.

High school education is the minimum education requirement.

The six new courses and their lengths will be aircraft inspection, 12 weeks, 32 hours per week; architectural and marine drafting, 16 weeks, 36 hours per week; chemical testing and inspection, 10 weeks, 40 hours per week; engineering drawing, 12 weeks, 34 hours per week; fabric testing and inspection, 12 weeks, 35 hours per week; and industrial safety engineering, 16 weeks, six hours per week.

The course in engineering drawing also will be given at Wake Forest College, starting Sept. 27.

WAC Recruiting Office At Bragg Closed Last Week

The WAC recruiting department at Fort Bragg has been closed by order of the Fourth Service command and the personnel has arrived at district Army recruiting headquarters in Charlotte for possible redistribution among offices in the Carolinas.

In addition to the one in Charlotte, WAC recruiting offices are located in Durham, Asheville, and Columbia, S. C.

Public lunch-time band concerts are being given in London.

How Those Tonsils Do Grow In The White Family

The three children of Principal and Mrs. V. R. White had their tonsils removed Monday in Red Springs. This was the first tonsillectomy for Ruthanna, the second for Dorothy and the third for George. It is hoped that this will be their last.

BAGS

Dr. I. O. Schaub, director of Extension at State College, requests North Carolina farmers to turn excess agricultural bags back into trade channels to meet a shortage of this farm supply item.

Care in picking cotton so as to keep it dry and as free of trash as possible can materially improve the grade and the price, says C. L. McCaslan, Extension gin specialist at State College.

Can You Picture
NORTH CAROLINA
without Schools?

The school bells are ringing again—calling North Carolina's youngest generation back to the job of learning to be good and useful citizens. We've all come to think of a good education for our children as the natural birthright of young Americans—but building up and administering a school system as fine as North Carolina's is a gigantic task.

Nearly 900,000 students are enrolled each year in North Carolina's schools and colleges. There are 4,111 primary schools, 990 secondary schools and 52 colleges and universities. The range of studies runs from kindergarten games through the three "R's" to the most advanced scientific and sociological research. Thousands of teachers are devoting their lives to this work—and to them goes much of the credit for its success, as well as to the administrators of each institution, to local and county school boards and to the Office of Superintendent of Public Instruction.

We of the Greyhound Lines take the same pride as all other North Carolinians in our State's educational achievements. We know that our own organization is aiding the school system both with tax support and transportation service. Those of us whose children are benefiting directly from the splendid schooling afforded them feel doubly proud.

In wartime even more than in peacetime, the things that draw us all together, that unify our efforts, that make us good neighbors in every sense, are the things that count most heavily. Both good education and good transportation have decisive parts to play in shaping the present as well as the future of North Carolina in the post-war world.
