Hoke County School News

As a part of the guidance program to be carried out in the high school this year, representatives from various professions and occupations will speak to the students at the assembly period. The first of these speakers was Dr. C. D. Thomas of the Sanatorium, whose talk on entering medicine was both informative and inspiring.

Report cards will be sent out this year every six weeks. We are now at the halfway period, and students whose work is not meeting the requirement have been notified and urged to spend more time on their studies.

Plans are going forward for the annual Halloween carnival which will be held in the Hoke county high school building, Oct. 28.

Ability tests will be given to all high school students on Thursday of this week. The purpose of these tests is to help the students discover their abilities and aptitudes and to aid them in deciding upon and planning for a definite kind of work.

The home economics laboratory is open to adults on Wednesday afternoons from three until five o'clock. Miss Peele will be available at that time for consultation and help, and is eager to render this service.

Principal V. R. White and several teachers of the county will attend the Fall Leadership Conference of the N. C. E. A. in Rockingham this afternoon.

Mildousin

Mrs. W. S. Morgan, primary teacher in the Mildousin school is now at work after having been ill in a Lumberton Hospital. Mrs. Archie Howard substituted for Mrs. Morgan.

The fourth and fifth grades, directed by Mrs. Gillis, will give a Halloween Program in chapel, Friday morning.

Our school is sponsoring "The Tar Heel Boys" on Friday evening, October 22, at eight o'clock. They play over W.F.C. Fayetteville, from 7:05 to 7:30 A. M.

Age 38 Is Not Army Barrier

Salem, Ore., Oct. 15.—Don't be too sure you can't be drafted just because you're over 38.

Col. Elmer V. Wooten, Oregon director of selective service, issued this warning—and cited two cases.

There was a shipyard worker, he said, who quit his job on reaching his 38th birthday, left his wife and children, picked up a girl friend, and started doing the night spots.

The U. S. Employment service pleaded with the man, but was told in effect: "Nuts to you; I'm over 38; they can't draft me."

Then there was a poolhall employe who was advised to get an essential industry because his job was nondeferrable. He said he was 40, and wouldn't quit the poolhall.

Wooten said both men will report for induction in a few days. It's done with the aid of Army waivers.

Centre Ingathering Brings $1,900

The sale of farm and pantry products, which was held at the annual Ingathering of Centre church last Friday brought in a little more than $1,900. The large number who attended the affair enjoyed a day of fellowship and dinner of barbecue and chicken salad.

LABOR HURTING OWN CAUSE

Thurman Arnold Suggests Measures To Save Labor from Its Leaders

COLLECTIVE bargaining is here to stay. This has been established by law, and as Thurman Arnold expresses it, "every thinking American should be glad of it." It is firmly entrenched, and labor unions have become one of our great national headaches. In the November issue of Cosmopolitan Magazine, Thurman Arnold presents the case of labor against itself.

"If you travel over the country you find labor about as popular with small independent businessmen and consumers as the New Deal in an exclusive New York club. If you talk with soldiers you discover bitter resentment and threats of future retaliation."

The most surprising situation, is the dissatisfaction of the workers themselves with their labor unions.

This is very unusual when it comes from the supposed beneficiaries of vigorous organizations.

"Both Petrillo and Lewis have contributed greatly to the present feeling and have hurt their cause with the forcefulness of their directions," Mr. Arnold explains. "And so it appears that the freedom to produce an article which a labor union doesn't like is gone from our list of freedoms, and both the companies and the government are helpless."

Labor has used coercion for price control, eliminating cheap methods of distribution, creating local trade barriers by restricting the use of materials made outside the state, preventing organization of new firms, eliminating small competitors and owner-operators, preventing the efficient use of machines and materials, retarding the efficient use of labor, limiting the work done. Labor unions have exploited labor for their own, selfish uses in many ways, and by practices which were first brought to public attention by grand jury investigations.

"If we want to preserve strong unions, free to bargain collectively without government interference or control, we must reestablish the power in the Department of Justice to prosecute those who abuse the privileges of organized labor to gain ends which are not only against the public interest but against the interest of labor itself," he writes.

Meet General and Mrs. Patton

A DELA ROGERS ST. JOHNS has never met Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., but she says it doesn't matter. She has met his wife, and in the Army it is a recognized fact that to know one of the Pattons is to know the other.

"When a man's wife, having lived with him half a lifetime, gives him full and unqualified respect glowing with steel truth, it's a decoration beyond any even the Commander in Chief can bestow," Miss St. Johns says in the November issue of Cosmopolitan Magazine.

The Pattons have been a partnership that has become a tradition of real union. You know that the man who is leading American forces into battle must be a great guy. You know it because his wife is a great woman, and she reflects a two-fisted husband who has never been away from her except when he's gone to war.

Typical of the devotion of this General and his lady... illuminating the character of one of our Country's leaders is the straightforward simple directness of Mrs. Patton's answer to how she felt when she knew that her husband held in his hand the lives of many thousands of American men. She said what she thought, what she believed, simply without hesitation: "I always think how lucky they are to be with General Patton."

Across the miles of sea and sand, danger and terror, the General's wife was sending him supplies no submarine could menace, no torpedo destroy—supplies of faith and steadfast courage.
