

State College Hints For Farm Homemakers

(By Ruth Current of State College)

Keep the medicine chest out of children's reach, or keep it locked. Label all medicines plainly. No patient medicines. Read directions carefully. When measuring medicines, remove the cork, wipe the neck of the bottle again before replacing the cork. Pour medicine from the side of the bottle opposite the label to keep the label clean.

Write on the label the date you bought the medicine and how it is to be used.

Keep poisons in specially shaped, dark bottles and use stoppers different from ordinary ones.

"Spring clean" your medicine chest twice a year and throw away old medicines. Liquid drugs evaporate. Pills and tablets deteriorate with age.

Prescriptions which have been used during an illness should not be kept indefinitely.

Save all metal jar tops this winter, the War Food Administration advises housewives. Wartime scarcities make every jar and lid valuable either for canning or keeping food. Many one-piece screw tops on jars of coffee, pickles, peanut butter, and mayonnaise should be saved for next year's canning. Other lids and jars, not suitable for canning, can be useful for jelly or marmalade, refrigerator, dishes, or dry foods. For future conveniences save each jar with its lid on.

Especially worth saving are the small metal screw caps from coffee and other food jars known as "size 63". More commercial food products are being put up in "63" jars, because the small opening means a saving of metal, rubber and glass. Most coffee jars are now coming on the market with paper caps, but these jars can be used for hot-water canning with caps saved from other jars.

Lespedeza

Plans are being made to distribute lespedeza seed to growers now so that they will be assured of an ample seed supply next spring, reports H. L. Meacham, State College Extension marketing specialist.

Order Top Dressing For Small Grains

Farmers should make arrangements immediately for securing the nitrogen with which to top dress their small grain, says Dr. E. R. Collins, in charge of Extension work in agronomy at State College.

"Small grains should receive from 16 to 32 pounds of actual nitrogen per acre, depending on weather the grain follows a cover crop. This may be derived from 100 to 200 pounds of nitrate of soda, 50 to 100 pounds of ammonium nitrate, or 40 to 80 pounds of uramon", the agronomist points out.

This top dressing can best be put out with a combination seed drill and fertilizer distributor. If the nitrogen is applied at the same time lespedeza is sown in the small grain it may be mixed with the lespedeza seed provided nitrate of soda is used. However, the agronomist warns that lespedeza seed should not be mixed with uramon or ammonia nitrate. When mixed with nitrate of soda they should be planted immediately.

The top dressing and lespedeza seed should be put out during February and early March. Kobe lespedeza may be sown two to three weeks earlier than Korean, and should be used on sandy soils. Korean does better when sown on the red or heavier soils.

Kobe lespedeza is seeded at the rate of 20 to 25 pounds per acre when drilled in and 35 to 40 pounds when broadcast. When the latter method is used, a smoothing harrow should be run over the seed immediately after broadcasting. About 5 pounds less of Korean seed may be used per acre.

"With the present feed shortage facing the farmers and livestock growers during 1944, every effort should be made to produce as much small grain per acre as possible, with the addition of a good crop of lespedeza for hay", Collins concluded.

Fertilizer

To avoid an acute labor, storage, and transportation shortage next spring, farmers are asked to accept an immediate delivery of fertilizer.
