Although residents apparently affected by the storm's destruction seemed "in shock," Cook said "everyone was trying to help everyone."

"Everywhere you looked people were helping people. Some were directing traffic while others were helping clear the roads for am-bulances to get through," Cook said.

"The people have been good disaster," Rescue Squad member Mark Posey said.

Posey and three rescue squad crews were also dispatched during the Wednesday night disaster.

Crews assisted in Laurinburg, McColl, South Carolina, Bennettsville, South Carolina, Maxton and Red Springs, aiding in searches for victims, clearing roads and transporting the injured to nearby hospitals or medical stations.

We helped search the remains of one home and found six people dead, pinned in," Posey said.

In addition to medical personnel, Hoke firemen and city work crews helped throughout the week, cutting trees, cleaning yards and trying to wipe away at least some memories that the tornadoes had left in their path.

"Everyone has been great," State Representative Daniel DeVane said.

Airport plan studied

Under the proposed resolution. city and county officials would appoint the airport commission members, remain joint owners of the property and have control over the budget.

"I think this will give a day to control to the commission while it still allows you to have a good deal of ultimate authority," McFadyen said.

"I think that would be the best," Commission Chair Commission Chairman John Balfour said.

"I hope we will be able to approve the resolution and appoint the members at our next meeting," Balfour said.

The county and city joined hands on the facility last fall with plans to appoint an airport authority that would oversee the day-to-day operation.

The authority will have five members with two appointed from both governmental bodies and one member appointed by the Hoke-Raeford Chamber of Commerce.

In unrelated matters, the commissioners agreed to help "finan-cially support" the Hoke County Heritage Hobnob and contributed $1,000 to the festival.

'I think we should agree to participate for this year only," Com-missioner Wyatt Upchurch said.

"I don't want to commit for any longer than that," he added.

Commissioners also approved $900 in funding for five "Welcome to Hoke County" signs that will be erected on Highways 211, 401 and

The signs will display a North Carolina flag and a county seal.

Each sign will cost $175, according to Hoke County Manager James Martin.

"I think that is what we need: We want something that people can see that will make them feel welcome in our county," Balfour

The signs will go up approximately 60 to 90 days after the order has been made, Martin said.

"The Department of Transportation will have to approve the design and locations before we can order them," Martin said.

In further business, commissioners approved over $600 in tax releases and refunds and agreed to sell nearly two acres of pine straw at the county-owned landfill.

The county received $105 for the sale of the pine straw.

Hoke rainfall about normal

Hoke County had a normal amount of rainfall during the first quarter of 1984.

Rain which fell during the 13-week period registered 13.30 in-ches, National Weather Service observer Robert Gatlin said.

This is the first year in four that the county has had a normal amount of rainfall, which is about one inch per week, according to Gatlin. In 1983 and 1982, Hoke County registered an above normal amount of rainfall while in 1981 the county was well below the average measured precipitation.
