Fri. night at Hobnob taking shape for fun

Friday night is shaping up as a fun family evening at the Hoke Heritage Hobnob.

The festival, which will be held on the grounds of Hoke High School on May 4 and 5, is expected to feature arts, crafts, musical entertainment, an auction and fine food on Friday evening.

Festival goers will be treated to an assembly of some of the state's best artisans, along with a fried or barbecued chicken dinner sponsored by the Raeford Woman's Club and the Raeford Kiwanis Club.

In addition musical entertainment will be provided during the meal.

Later in the evening, former Superintendent Raz Autry will put on his auctioneers hat and auction items donated by the artists and other festival supporters.

Organizers are hoping to make the Hobnob an annual event to promote Hoke County and are attempting to make the festival self supporting.
