

Not quite as high as an elephant's eye

Corn in the Arabia area of Hoke County is reaching maturity, but is slightly behind schedule, according to County Extension Chairman Willie Featherstone. Tasseling should begin in two weeks in most areas of the county, and farmers expect this year's crop to exceed the $1 million mark. "We expect a good year in corn," Featherstone said.

Man sentenced to jail for traffic offense

A Ft. Bragg soldier will begin serving the first of 45 weekends in the Hoke County Jail Friday after being found guilty in District Court of a second offense of driving with license revoked.

District Court Judge Warren Pate sentenced Danny Dexter Ingram, 25, to no more or less than two years in jail but suspended that sentence for three years special supervised probation and fined him $750.

As a condition of the probation, Ingram was given a 90-day active jail term.

In another case, Pate sentenced Eugene Campbell to 10 days in Hoke County Jail after he pleaded guilty to being drunk and disorderly, drinking beer in a public place and using vulgar language.

The 46-year-old Raeford resident was arrested and charged on May 9.

David L. Icenhour received a two year probationary sentence as he pleaded guilty to assault on a female.

According to a warrant sworn out by Dorothy Icenhour, the man hit her with a broom handle and a water glass on April 16.

As well as the supervised probation, Icenhour was ordered by the court not to harass or harm the woman and to submit himself to any mental health counseling that his probation officer may recommend.

Gary Wayne Bease, of Raeford, was in court last week on charges of shoplifting.

According to court records, Bease was arrested May 28 for allegedly trying to walk out of the Raeford A&P store with two packages of boiled ham.

Bease was sentenced to six months in jail but this was suspended for one year and unsupervised probation and a $100 fine.

Also in court charged with shoplifting last week was Donald Marcus McMillan.

McMillan was accused of taking a tape deck from Maxway on May 5, and he pleaded guilty to the charge.

The 16-year-old got one year supervised probation and a fine of $100 for the larceny.

Sylvester Stroud spent a day in court Friday after he was charged with two traffic violations and two counts of writing worthless checks.

Stroud pleaded guilty to all charges against him.

The traffic violations, not having a current registration and not having insurance, were consolidated for sentencing. The defendant was given one year supervised probation and fined $200.

The McCain resident was ordered by the court to pay restitution to the local Sky City and Graham's Service station in a total amount of $73.88 for the worthless check charges.

Teresa Lynn Blue, of Raeford, appeared in court charged with driving while impaired (DWI).

She was arrested on January 22. The 23-year old woman was sentenced to 60 days in jail, suspended for one year unsupervised probation and fined $100.

She was also ordered to spend 24 hours in the service of the community.

Randall Steven Ballard was also in court pending DWI charges of April 21.

Ballard, 19, got a 60 day suspended sentence, one year probation and a $100 fine.

Brenda Pratt, of Laurinburg, was in court on charges of DWI.

According to court records, Pratt caused a wreck in which someone was injured.

She was arrested May 13:

Pratt received 120 days in Hoke County Jail that was suspended for one year unsupervised probation and a fine of $200.
