

Hoke students to attend conference

Hoke County students will be present when activities begin at Evergreen State College in Olympia, Washington, the site of Laubach Literacy Action's 1984 Conference.

Highlights of the conference will include keynote speaker Shirley Chisholm (former U.S. Representative D-N.Y.) filmmaker Christopher Jeans, a celebration of Frank Laubach's 100th birthday, and an auction of Philippine artifacts and computer literacy.

Representing Hoke Reading/Literacy Council is Wayne

McMillian, Bobby Peterkin and Lennon Ransom, students of the local council.

In an informal reception held for the students on Tuesday, dubbed "Our Students Are Going Places", project director Barbara Buie, said "The goal of literacy education is to prepare adult students for full participation in their society." A congratulatory statement from Representative Danny DeVane was shared at that time.

This being the first flight for all the men, Volunteer tutor Anne Jordan had planned lessons so that their would be no problems in the busy Atlanta Airport, to help them select seminars and to make sure that the trip was an enjoyable learning experience.

Lutheran Church Women selected The Hoke County Council and offered them the opportunity to send students to Washington. Using an informal merit system that included participation, interest, and student's goals Buie approached the adult students showing them Olympia, Washington, on the map in relationship to Fayetteville and they agreed to go.

"Only those closest to the council can know how grateful we are to Lutheran Church Women. We believe that this type of tangible reward can motivate other students to participate," said the director. She added, "We would like to thank Miss Ethilynde Ballace and Joseph Danders for the donations that allowed the council to help the students with registration, room and board and the many citizens of Hoke County who have supported over six years of literacy efforts."

If you'd like more information on the council's activities telephone 875-2145.
