Cutting up at school

These Upchurch Jr. High School students are the winners in the school's costume contest. It is hard to know who the students are in their Halloween regalia, so we will leave them unidentified.

The sight's a fright

It seems that almost everyone gets into the act of Halloween around Raeford. Persons coming to the Green Street Senior Citizens' Hall on Wednesday, were met with sights such as these. There is nothing that says senior citizens cannot have fun. Of course, there was a costume contest and here are the winners. Winning first through fourth places were Pauline Pittman, Myrtle Sappenfield, Vary Lee Dell and Ella Carr.

Halloween brings out the character in everyone

A hard day

Said Jack as he plopped down next to a hay ball on 5th Avenue in Raeford. This Jack O. Lantern ran around so hard Halloween afternoon that he was just pooped when the evening rolled around. So, instead of making his usual Halloween fright rounds, he just stayed home and played it cool.

Strange eyes

Hi there, I just blew in from the corn patch to do a one night show for the kiddies on Halloween night. Being packed full of straw makes it easy to be blown around, you see. The owner of this house on Roberts Street made trick-or-treating a little more pleasant for local young people, or at least a bit more adventuresome.

First Halloween

Even Angelica Marie Dial found this fine pumpkin costume complete with hat to wear for the occasion. Angelica is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Terry Dial.

A banking ball

These United Carolina Bank employees turned the Raeford branch into a Halloween carnival when they dressed in costumes Wednesday.

Trying to dodge...

The sneaky camera of the Halloween Phantom almost worked for this young witch, but not quite. She was caught haunting Southern National Bank on the day when all saints are praised, Halloween. Actually, with a nose job, this witch would probably be quite attractive. Many of the employees of Southern National dressed for the occasion.
