Questions about SHARE YOUR CHRISTMAS may be directed to Mrs. Clara B. Pope, 875-3868 or 875-4106 or Sadie Costantino at 875-4750.

On Christmas tour This dining room in Mr. and Mrs. Luke McNeill's home on Main Street will be on the Raeford Junior Woman's Christmas Tour. Other parts of the house will also be open for viewing during the December 2 event.

McNeill home on house tour

The Main Street home of Mr. and Mrs. Luke McNeill is to be open for the December 2 Junior Women's Club House Tour and Craft Show. The McNeill's home was completed in 1960. Its furnishings are primarily 18th century styles. It has a Williamsburg influence. Mrs. McNeill's needlework highlights the home. She creates needlepoint and cross-stitch pictures and pillows. Her Christmas tree will be decorated with cross-stitch ornaments.

During the afternoon, while homes are open for visitors, craftsman will be showing their work at the Civic Center on College Drive. The Rev. Wayne Ham is a minister with Synder Memorial Baptist Church in Fayetteville and he creates paper punch lamp shades. He has been making them for about three years and his work is selling as far away as Oklahoma. His lampshades are one-of-a-kind and he sometimes uses watercolors. Mereille Green will have her knitting machine at the craft fair. She will show how quickly a knitter can make a sweater. Mrs. Green is going to be demonstrating and taking orders for her machine. Melinda Smith of Raeford will be showing her fabric art. Her fine work was displayed last year at Hoke Heritage Hobnob. Mrs. Smith has many fine examples of her crafts for sale. In addition, the first 100 tour goers will receive a complimentary gift furnished by Faberge Inc.
