Craft seminar set for Jan. 24

Hoke County craftsmen will have an opportunity to learn some marketing skills at a Craft Marketing Seminar to be held on Thursday, January 24, 1985 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in Elizabethtown. The seminar is open to craftsmen, shop owners, or anyone interested in marketing crafts. Dr. Robert D. Dahle, Extension Specialist in Business Management and Cooperatives with the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service, will discuss how to price crafts. Other speakers will cover such topics as where to sell, recognizing quality, and how to display, package, and label crafts. The crafts market is very competitive today and craftsmen must not only produce quality items but use the very best marketing techniques to realize a profit. The crafts marketing seminar, sponsored by the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service will be held in the Bladen County Agricultural Center. Complete information and registration forms are available from the Hoke County Extension Office on South Magnolia Street.
