A Little Local News

By Kay Thomas
I learned this week that Leisl Newsome of Southern Pines has been selected as a district winner in the Morehead Scholarship Competition.

Leisl's parents are Larry and Linda Scarborough Newsome and her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. T.C. Scarborough of Raeford. Miss Newsome and her family must be very proud. I am proud, and she doesn't even know me.

I think it seems a very short time ago that Anne Dickson and I rode to Hoke High every morning with Linda in her grey Studebaker.

I have a question for Raeford folks who remember 1947. Who would have been "a lady from Raeford, a Scottish balladeer" who appeared before the Moore County Historical Association in the holiday season of 1947?

The Raeford woman and two students from Chapel Hill entertained at the Association dinner-dance. One of the UNC students was "a youthful baritone" named Andy Griffith.

Thanks to Sam Morris and "Around Town", the Hoke County Historical Association is shaping up. Dues are $10 per household, Palmer Willcox is the Treasurer. A number of caring people have sent checks signifying "I care, let me help."

A very interesting pattern has developed. At least one-third of the new members are out-of-county Hoke Countians-of-the-heart. They are certainly appreciated. Their sentiments make me feel that our small town must have something special to preserve.

Preparing for Raeford

Woman's Club

Education Garden Public Affairs The Arts

The Woman's Club of Raeford plans to meet for the annual January covered-dish supper on January 8 at 6:30. From the supper and business meeting, the group will move to the Library Conference Room for the performance of the N.C. String Quartet at 8 p.m.

The January Open Meeting of the Club has traditionally been dedicated to an Arts Festival co-sponsored with the Raeford Jr. Woman's Club. This year, plans have been changed. The club is inviting Raeford Juniors and Chaminade Music Club members to join them for dinner. The concert and the social hour to follow are being hosted by the Chaminade Music Club.

A special guest for the dinner meeting will be Greg Hathaway. He has been asked to report on the activities and aims of the local Alzheimer's support group. The Woman's Club plans to help this group in some project. The General Federation of Women's Clubs has adopted Alzheimer's help as a special project for this and next year.

Christmas Followup

Mrs. Joyce McDiarmid reports that the Club Christmas contribution to Sandhills Youth Center was very fine. Club members provided twenty homemade layer cakes for the SYC Christmas party. Shaving cream, boxes of stationery, cartons of cigarettes, mens' toiletries, and one hundred pairs of socks were collected for gifts for the men.

Mrs. Sadie Constantino and Mrs. Clara Pope report that Share Your Christmas-1984 represented the hard work and dedication of all the club. Final tallies show that 208 households received help (totaling more than 1000 people) and that around $2,300 was contributed and spent. The clothing, food and household items cannot be given a monetary value, but the contributions were nice and the amounts overwhelming.

Some help came from outside the club, but this year's community project was carried through by club members. As money was donated, shopping was done for fruit, sugar, candy, children's clothing, and a few small toys (coloring books and crayons). The toys which were distributed were those which had been donated. The dolls were those which had been given and then dressed lovingly by ladies of Hoke County.

The leaders of these Christmas projects are thankful for the support, time, energy and money which helped others at Christmas. The club is very grateful for the leadership of these women, for their enthusiasm, and the way they gave of themselves so generously this holiday season.

Personals

Mrs. G.M. Freeman spent Christmas week with her son, George, and his family in Washington, D.C.

Mr. and Mrs. Huey Long and Mrs. Addie Vic of Laurinburg spend Sunday with Mrs. G.M. Freeman and her sister Mrs. A.J. Freeman.

Mrs. Jane Pratt Davis of Marietta, Ga. visited her sister, Mrs. Betty Lowe, recently. Her son, John Harmon, and daughter, Jennifer, came with her.

Mr. Ras Ellis and his grandson,

Lynn Ellis, celebrated their December 29 birthdays at a party at the home of C.L. Ellis. The party marked the grandfather's eighty-seventh birthday and his grandson's twenty-third. Approximately twenty guests were served finger foods and punch as the honorees opened their gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Upchurch spent Christmas Eve with Mr. and Mrs. Larry Phillips and children, Brad and Brooke in Asheboro. The Phillips returned home with them and spent Christmas day with them and Mrs. W.C. Phillips and Bill.

Beauty search announced

Young women interested in entering a nationwide beauty and talent contest are being sought by Jantzen's State Director for American Beauty Search. Juanita Duff announced this week that the State Pageant will be held in Charlotte.

The pageant is called the All-American Music Pageant.

Jantzen, Inc., a leading manufacturer of swim and sportswear apparel, will sponsor a "grass roots beauty and talent competition."

There will be local and state contests and the national event will be a two-hour television spectacular carried live from Music City, U.S.A. on April 15.

Selected stores and radio stations will be closely involved in discovering the talented young women in every state. When the fifty state winners have been picked, they will be photographed in their Jantzen wardrobes so that the public can vote for their choice to win the national pageant.

Ballots will be available in participating stores and the results will be tabulated for a special award on the television show. Each person who casts a ballot will be eligible to win a Jantzen swimsuit and sportswear outfit.

Juanita Duff is the North Carolina Director for Jantzen's American Beauty Search. Those interested in entering the contest can call her at 615-356-6847. Persons with general questions can call 1-800-523-1954.
